Orval Trail New Head Of Dist. 11

Medinah Dist. 11 School Board formally announced the appointment of Orval Lee Trail as new superintendent for the district Thursday at a special luncheon for new teachers.

Trails was hired by the board Monday night, in time for the beginning of school events. He replaces Richard B. Davis who resigned as superintendent last month.

Formerly supt. of Unit Dist. 205 in Galesburg, Trails said he considered being superintendent of Medinah Dist. 11 "a challenge because it is a growing district."

The district he headed for six years in Galesburg, in west central Illinois, was considerably larger than Dist. 11. Trails supervised a staff of 450 teachers and a student body of 8,000 at Dist. 205.

HE SAID HE "welcomed the opportunity for closer personal relationships with his staff at Medinah," adding that the Western suburbs "are a dynamic and exciting area in the field of education."

Although he has been involved in building programs, Trails said he has never been in a district which was as fast growing as Medinah.

He said he would approach "every avenue of resource" to help solve the problems the district will be facing.

"I am impressed with the board of education, and understand the parents of the community are concerned about their schools and willing to become involved, and I've been told the staff is dedicated," Trails said.

Orval Lee

TRAILS, WHO BEGAN his career in education as an elementary school teacher in Iowa, said "elementary education — its total overall program is one of the most important aspects in a child's life. It is a time when attitudes and habits are formed and ingrained into children. The drop-out attitude is formed in this stage of a child's life."

He lists his efforts at individualized teaching programs, and guidance for elementary students among his most important achievements at Galesburg, and believes children must not only be trained in the basic skills but also in forming positive attitudes and study habits.

Among his goals are to provide long-range planning for the district and promote open lines of two-way communication between the board and the staff as well as the school and the community.

CURRENTLY RESIDING in Galesburg, Trails said he will be looking for a home in the area.

Trails, 48, is married and has four children. He has been a superintendent of schools for 22 years and before that a high school principal for two years.

He has earned education degrees from Waldorf College, Forest City, and the University of Dubuque, both in Iowa. In 1946 Trails earned his Bachelors Degree from the University of Dubuque. He received his Masters Degree from the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, in 1950 and his Doctorate Degree from Colorado State College, Greeley, in 1956.

He is a member of several national and state professional educational associations and has held office in several local professional groups in Galesburg.

Sink Or Swim For Lawyers

It will be sink or swim for two Roselle attorneys Saturday as they sit in a special dunk tank at the carnival sponsored by COPE (Concerned Parents of Diabetic Children).

Jack Wagborne and Ed Mraz have agreed to sit in the dunk tank on the carnival grounds at Scout Park in Roselle, at 2:30 p.m.

The carnival, which began Wednesday continues through Sunday. McDermott Amusements have been contracted to provide rides and games. It will begin tonight at 6 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Mary Sodermark, Roselle, president of COPE said industry, business and individuals have contributed merchandise and money for the carnival.

The most recent contributions were received from The Big Wheel, a new store in Roselle which donated a bicycle and Shirl's Drive-In, which donated various food seasonings.

New Staff Welcomed

Medinah Dist. 11 superintendent Orval Lee Trails wasn't the only unfamiliar face Thursday at a special luncheon for new teachers at Nordic Hills Country Club.

Trails' appearance at the luncheon was his first official function as superintendent of Dist. 11.

He and the board members welcomed 12 new teachers to the district. Teaching a new section of grade 8 at North School will be Michael Lyon.

New teachers at the South School will be Judith Biekert, grade six, Virginia Kindelin, grade four, Betsy Lucsay, grade four, Ann Pleiss, grade two and Marcia Peterson, kindergarten. Joan Friesal has been transferred from the North School and will teach grade five at the South School.

Special teachers for the district are Alice Case, art, Barbara Cohen, physical education, Margo Johnston, special education, Jane Patrick, remedial reading and Phillip Weinberg, instrumental music.

German Classes Signup Starts

Registration for evening German language classes for children ages 4 to 16 will be held through Sept. 11 at the Indian Trail Junior High School, Kennedy Drive and Army Trail Road in Addison.

Classes will begin at 6 p.m. on Sept. 11, at the school.

This program also is open to all children living in communities surrounding Addison, with a total enrollment of 200 being accepted.

Each year eight classes, with a maximum of 25 students per class, are conducted. So far, more than 1,000 in the Addison area have attended the classes.

For further information, call Eleanor Rust, 773-0860.

PREPARING FOR SOME unique and interesting experiences in her first year of teaching, Karen Mensching listens attentively at the teacher institute sponsored by Itasca's St. Luke Lutheran Church.

Citizens Group Is Active

by LOIS KOCH

Who says senior citizens are out of it?

The 55-member Itasca Senior Citizens Organization, now under the direction of the park district, has proved that persons do not have to stop enjoying life once they reach the age of 65.

The group has participated in many activities showing they too can have as much fun and do as much as those of the younger set.

Trips have been made to such places as Shady Lane Theater, for lunch and a play, Honey Bear Farm, for a tour of the numerous novelty stores, and Potawatomi Park, for an all-day picnic. Guest speakers have appeared at many of their meetings lecturing on different topics, including safe driving tips and the operation of social security and medicare programs.

YOUTH ORGANIZATIONS and church groups have sponsored banquets and skits, and members of the organization themselves have shown films and slides of their individual vacations and hobbies — all to provide an interesting pastime for these older persons.

At Christmas, the group celebrates the birth of the organization, which was Dec. 12, 1963. Georgette Douglas, one of the original members, commented that it is very rare for anyone to miss the occasion.

Activities are also coordinated with other senior citizen groups in the area, broadening their scope of entertainment and involvement. For example, two members are presently on a European tour with those from the Des Plaines senior citizens group. An Hawaiian excursion is planned for October.

Those attending the various trips and tours pay their own way, with three bus trips being provided by the park district. Collections also are taken at the meetings to pay for extra items such as refreshments and other materials.

BEING A PART of this group means quite a bit to its members. The many hours they have spent and friendships they have made have become an important part of their lives.

"Life at home can get pretty monotonous and boring. Being a part of the group fills in a lot of this time," Reese Lewis, one of the members, said.

They thoroughly enjoy their meetings and get-togethers, as can be seen by looking at attendance records. "We look forward to our gatherings, because we always have a good time," Frank Douglas said.

"We have such a good time that rain, sleet or snow can't stop us. Even if the weather is bad, we make it somehow," his wife added.

IF SOMEONE CANNOT drive or has no transportation, other members who do see to it that arrangements are made. "We do a good job of helping each other," she commented.

The organization is somewhat smaller than most of the members would like. According to Mrs. Douglas, "Many elderly persons don't want to join, because then they would be admitting they were old."

She also added that there could be more men in the group, but that it is rather difficult to get them to join. Even though they would like more participants, the existing group does very well on its own. Two members have already been named as "Senior Citizen of the Year" for the Chicagoland area. Louis Stolley was among 52 selected in 1965, and Titus Medendorff received the honor in 1966.

BUSINESS MEETINGS are held every second Wednesday at the First Presbyterian Church on Elm Street. Each month a newsletter is circulated with information about birthdays during the month, past and coming events and other items of interest. Scrapbooks are also kept containing such things as snapshots and cards on highlights of the club's history.

The group was sponsored by the Itasca Women's Club for five years before the park district took it over about a year ago. Mrs. Helen Smith, a member of the women's club, acts as chairman of the group, working with the director, June Landmeier, who is hired by the park district.

For its 55 participants, the organization provides a source of enjoyment, giving them a sense of belonging and enjoyment in a world that often pushes them aside. It has added extra meaning to their lives... a feeling most of them would not give up for anything.

Church Secretary Is Key To Information

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

If Medinah had a village hall, Marion Bray would probably be the best qualified person for village clerk. Mrs. Bray, an Itasca resident, is the secretary at the Medinah Baptist Church. Her job covers many areas and requires many talents among them answering phone calls and supplying puzzled persons with information about Medinah.

"Medinah doesn't have a village hall and the church seems to receive all kinds of calls that would normally be directed to such a place," Mrs. Bray explains.

"I've had calls from people wanting to know just where Medinah is because they can't find it on the map. Others ask about names and addresses of residents. I help out when I can and because I know many of the people in the area I can give the answers," she said.

PEOPLE INQUIRING about the area are considered a few of the lighter calls by Mrs. Bray. She also receives calls from people "with deep problems and in need of guidance."

Mrs. Bray looks at her entire job at the church as a "special ministry."

Usually one of the church's three pastors provides counsel and advice to people seeking it. However, Mrs. Bray has taken over when she has received calls from persons needing immediate attention.

Being a church secretary, Mrs. Bray is sometimes called upon to perform unusual acts of charity, such as the time an elderly church member dialed Mrs. Bray and asked her if she would bring a cup of laundry detergent to her home the next day.

When she began her job in 1964, Mrs. Bray's duties were strictly secretarial. She "did what I was told." The church and its membership has grown so that many duties which were formerly done by Pastor Donald Hamman are now her responsibility.

With stencils and a specially illuminated art platform called a scope, Mrs. Bray magically transforms scribbled scraps of notes into attractive church bulletins and promotional pamphlets. She uses her acquired editing abilities each year when she coordinates pertinent information for the church's annual business report.

AS SUPERVISOR of the church's master calendar, it also is Mrs. Bray's job to prevent any of the numerous groups from colliding head on in the church gym.

All this is done in addition to her "normal general secretarial duties at the church," Mrs. Bray said.

Mrs. Bray was hired because of her attention to and fondness for detail. When she does a task she leaves nothing undone. She has help, however, from a little book that is referred to as "Marion's Manual."

The small black book contains valuable information about church procedures and activities, listing steps followed in various ceremonies and on different occasions.

Mrs. Bray has been composing the book ever since she started working at the church. Its value was duly appreciated by her boss, Rev. Hamman, who has asked her to make three additional copies for himself and his two assistants.

Water And Sewer Rates To Change

Most Roselle residents will soon face an increase in water and sewer rates. However, a new rate schedule now being prepared by the village attorney abolishes minimum water and sewer charges and could decrease rates for light users.

"Some people could pay a bill as low as $1.60," Roselle Trustee Ramon Berg said Monday night as the village board considered the schedule.

Under the present schedule, residents are billed a minimum charge of $3 for water and $5 for sewer during a three month billing period regardless of the amount used.

The new schedule would eliminate these charges. Residents will still pay a certain amount for every 1,000 gallons of water used. The amount per 1,000 gallons, which is determined by the total amount used, has been increased.

People using between 1,000 and 10,000 gallons of water during a billing period will be charged 60 cents per 1,000 gallons. They are now paying 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

The charge per 1,000 gallons for people using between 11,000 and 20,000 gallons would be 50 cents and for people using between 20,000 and 40,000 gallons 40 cents.

People using over 40,000 gallons of water would be charged 35 cents per 1,000 gallons. Sewer rates, also based on the amount of water used, have been increased along a similar sliding scale.

Residents using between 1,000 and 5,000 gallons are currently charged for 5,000 gallons at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Under the proposed schedule residents would be charged $1 per 1,000 gallons. Residents using between 6,000 and 10,000 gallons of water for sewer service will be charged 50 cents per 1,000 gallons. Those using between 11,000 and 20,000 gallons of water will be charged 25 cents per 1,000 gallons and those using over 20,000 gallons will be charged 15 cents per 1,000 gallons.

"THE NEW RATES will help many retired citizens and widows who use little amounts of water," Mrs. Helen Benhart, a clerk at the village hall, explained.

Rate increases were needed to put the water and sewer operating on a cash basis, according to trustees who noted the last sewer rate increase was in 1962 and the last water rate increase was in 1959.

MARION BRAY never knows what the next phone call will bring. The secretary at the Medinah Baptist Church could easily qualify for village clerk, if Medinah had a village hall.

Sewer Line Controversy Irks Residents

Some 25 residents of Suncrest Highlands in Bloomingdale spurred a heated debate over sewer disconnections Wednesday night during the village board meeting.

The residents expressed opposition to having to disconnect their sewer lines in accordance with provisions in a suit filed against the village last fall by state Atty. Gen. William Scott.

John Noyerhofer, 144 Warren Ave., asked if the state is actually demanding the disconnection, or if it is simply the choice of the board. According to Noyerhofer, homeowners cannot afford the expense of having to disconnect and install sump pumps.

"Have you people investigated any alternatives to disconnection to rectify the problem, so that the burden would not lie with the individual homeowner," he asked.

BEFORE VILLAGE officials were able to reply, they were reminded by several other residents that all their comments were being taped.

Jack Waghorne, village attorney, answered saying state law prohibits the elimination of storm water into the sanitary sewer, and that the village has been instructed to resolve the problem.

Presently, storm water is flowing into the sanitary sewers, causing an overload to the treatment plant. Because of this, polluted water is bypassing into the streams in the area.

"The suit is pending in court until this fall, at which time action must have been taken on the problem," he said. Apparently if the action has not been taken by Oct. 1, the village would be sued.

NOYERHOFER ALSO asked if connection to the Hoffman Rosner 800,000-gallon capacity sewage treatment plant, to be completed this November, will alleviate pollution of the sanitary sewers.

"The new treatment plant will produce affluent satisfactory to the state's requirement," Waghorne answered. However, he added, this would not take care of the extra drainage water.

"We just don't see why the individual should have to pay. We suggest you don't make demands on the individual Suncrest homeowner," Noyerhofer said. The audience applauded following this statement.

"I agree it is an unreasonable burden, but we are being directed by the state," Waghorne replied. "One possible solution is a general tax of all the residents in Bloomingdale. We could pass a general obligation bond which would be added to the tax bill."

Noyerhofer also added that most other villages throughout the county and state are in a similar situation and are not doing anything about it.

"THIS IS TRUE," Waghorne answered, "but a suit has been filed against Bloomingdale, and we can't defend our position by saying everyone else is doing it."

"Scott has taken a vigorous stand on pollution, and such excuses won't be accepted."

Another resident, Pat Esposito, 134 Warren Ave., said she had contacted Scott's office, and referred to the suit as a "joke." She implied that the suit was not being taken seriously.

Waghorne said that if she would testify to this, he would take action to have the suit dismissed.

'Scavenger' Ordinance To Be Drawn Up

The Wood Dale Village Council recently instructed Village Attorney Sam LaSusa to draw up a contractors scavenger ordinance requiring a $250 fee for scavengers to operate in the village.

John R. Adamson, village manager, recommended the $250 license fee for contract scavengers who would concentrate on hauling away construction materials in the village.

"As of now we have no control what that scavenger will charge a contractor in the village," said Dr. Ralph Madonna, village councilman.

Jerry Folker, village superintendent of sanitation, agreed with the recommended price and the ordinance.

"I think it is a very fair price," Folker said. "We've had people (in the village) who have paid out of their own pocket to have construction material hauled away."

The village sanitation department will not haul away sizeable construction material.

Chief, Officers Cited

Outstanding achievements by two members of the Bloomingdale Police Department have recently earned them several awards.

It has been announced that Police Chief Harold Rivkin will receive the 1970 Service Award from the Illinois Police Federation, at the organization's annual dinner-dance to be held on Friday, Sept. 25, at the O'Hare Inn.

He was chosen to receive the award because of his "ceaseless and outstanding work with the youth of the community and to the association."

OFFICER GEORGE Best was presented with the Illinois Police Federation's Certificate of Commendation, for service beyond the call of duty.

The award was presented Tuesday night at the federations monthly meeting.

Best also received an appreciation award from the Bloomingdale Village Board at their meeting Wednesday night. It was offered for the part he played in solving the burglaries at the Bloomingdale Township Hall and Warman's Hardware Store in Bloomingdale, earlier this month.

Last February he received his first appreciation award, making him the only member of the force to have earned two such awards.

The Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Friday, Aug. 28, the 240th day of 1970 with 125 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

On this day in history:
In 1833 the British Parliament barred slavery throughout the Empire.

In 1922 a New York realty company paid $100 to sponsor the first radio commercial.

In 1963 more than 200,000 demonstrators staged an orderly civil rights march in Washington, D.C.

In 1968 the Democratic Party nominated Hubert Humphrey to run for President as anti-war demonstrators protested in Chicago streets.

A thought for the day: Lytton Strachey said, "Perhaps of all the creations of man, language is the most astonishing."

She also added that a representative in the office offered two alternative solutions to alleviating the problem, the construction of a holding tank or a water storage lagoon.

A request was made by Noyerhofer to hold a special meeting between the residents and the board to discuss the issue further.

"WE WOULD LIKE to meet with you, because the people here aren't going to go along with the disconnection. It is the majority's feeling that we would go to court, and we would like to save the village from embarrassment," he said. "I think this is a reasonable request. If we call a meeting I don't want to get into a fist fight, but would like to present the basic facts and discuss them," Village President Robert Meyers said.

He added that solving the pollution problem is going to cost money; the primary concern in the next decade will be controlling the environment.

You Can't Do Anything About Air Pollution.....Or Can You?

The problem: air pollution. But what do we do until we get it solved? Suffer?

Not at home if you have a Lennox Total Comfort System. A Total Comfort System is a ducted system that treats the air you live in. We take some of that "wonderful" outdoor air, clean it, filter it to eliminate dust, dirt and pollen and mix it with the circulating air in your home to give you a fresh supply four times an hour. And the entire system runs quietly.

... whisper-quiet ... so that you are never aware of its functioning except through the comfort you feel.

Heating and cooling are provided at a central location and distributed gently throughout every room in the home. Temperatures remain constant no matter what the weather outside.

One central system supplies both heating and cooling; and it maintains strict control over the amount of moisture in the treated air, because proper humidity has a great deal to do with comfort indoors.

Call us today (and declare your own private war on air pollution).

WOMAN SUFFRAGE

50TH ANNIVERSARY

A NEW POSTAGE stamp portraying vote was issued yesterday. It is available at the local post office.

New Suffrage Stamp Issued

Apparently, the demands of many women's liberation-minded females to "stamp out inequality" has been taken literally by the federal government.

A new postage stamp, commemorating the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage, will go on sale today at the local post offices.

Yesterday, the new six-cent stamp went on sale in Adams, Mass., according to representatives of the League of Women Voters in the suburbs.

Adams was chosen for the "First Day of Issue" of the woman suffrage stamp because it is the birthplace of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer crusader of women's rights.

Miss Anthony was founder and president of National American Woman Suffrage Association, which became the League of Women Voters (LWV) in 1920.

SINCE ITS founding, the LWV has been concerned with emphasizing the importance of the vote in our society.

In launching the League's 50th anniversary celebration, President Richard M. Nixon said: "For fifty years the League of Women Voters has provided Americans in every state with information on candidates and issues."

The President went on to say, "It has furnished a non-partisan platform for which all candidates may be seen and heard. These activities have strengthened government and have helped to sustain the public weal."

To mark its 50th year, the LWV designated 1970 as the year of the Voter. This commemorates also the 100th anniversary of the 16th amendment affirming black male suffrage.

Vacation Of Street Favored

The Bloomingdale Village Board Wednesday night approved the plan commission's recommendation to vacate the portion of south Circle Avenue running through Circle Avenue Park, to eliminate anticipated traffic problems.

Action was taken following a recommendation by village officials. According to officials, a serious traffic problem at the intersection of Lake Street and Circle Avenue would result once families begin to occupy a section of the Hoffman Rosner subdivision to be built south of the park.

Residents will now have to use the two other north-south streets, Euclid Avenue and Glen Ellyn Road.

The board also amended the traffic ordinance to place four-way stop signs at the intersection of Byron Street and Glen Ellyn road, Harvard Lane and Army Trail Road, and Edgewater Drive and Glen Ellyn Road.

Police Department To Add New Officer

Roselle will have another full-time policeman soon, bringing the number of patrolmen to nine.

The village board approved the hiring of a full-time man after considering a request from the Fire and Police Commission for additional men on the Roselle Police Department.

The commission pointed out the increasing population of the village and its continual growth through annexation made the manpower additions necessary.

Voice Of Teachers Heard

More than 7,000 delegates to the 1970 convention of the recent National Education Association meeting in San Francisco supported a resolution initiated by teachers and youth of DuPage County which committed the association to create a national Task Force on Environmental Education.

The work of the task force shall be to

Explorers Return From Canoe Trip

Itasca's Explorer Post 56 returned from its seventh two-week Canadian canoe excursion Sunday, reporting it was one of the best trips they have taken.

"The weather was good, and the fishing was great. We saw eagles, moose and other forms of wildlife, and all in all it was a real good trip," Advisor Robert Werle Sr. said.

He added that one mishap occurred when two of the boys overturned their canoe in the rapids, but otherwise everything went smoothly.

Eight troop members and two adult supervisors made the trip, which took them to the scenic lakes and forests of Canada.

develop guidelines for appropriate curricula for use in schools, from kindergarten through adult education. Included in the scope of its concern shall be the areas of pollution, human hunger and population among the range of ecological problems considered.

JOHN CAPOCY, chairman of the Human Resources Council, DuPage Division of the Illinois Education Association and teacher at Kingsley School in Downers Grove, said, "This task force concept was initiated by the youth of our DuPage County involved with the Walks for Development. A group of these young people came to our committee expressing their concern to help plan positive actions regarding the vast range of ecological matters."

The task force resolution, prepared by the young people and members of the human resources committee, was initially approved by the Downers Grove Elementary Education Association and subsequently supported by the DuPage Division of the Illinois Education Association. It is anticipated that some of the youth and teachers of DuPage County will be on the national Task Force on Environmental Education.

Obituaries

Norman K. Berndt

Funeral services for Norman K. Berndt, 39, of 448 E. Montana, Glendale Heights, were held yesterday in Riechert and Meyer Funeral Home, Addison. The Rev. Albert J. Classen officiated. Burial was in Arlington Cemetery, Elmhurst.

Mr. Berndt, who was employed as a lithographer for Excella, Inc., Chicago, died Tuesday in the Cook County Hospital Burn Center, Chicago, from burns he received following an explosion in his home on Aug. 20.

Surviving are his widow, Dolores, four sons, Jeffrey of Addison, Robert, David and Charles, a daughter, Debra, all at home, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berndt of Elmhurst.

He was a member of the Lithographers and Photoengravers International Union, Chicago Local, No. 245.

Off the Register Record

by "HEC"

"I think we are going to run out of money," Peter Ernst, county board finance chairman, told members of his committee Monday as they undertook to make a fresh assessment of monies on hand, which represents the wherewithal the board has to finish the fiscal year and remain solvent.

Specifically he was referring to the travel fund account, which is supposed to guarantee every one of the 31 members two out-of-state trips in any year. Because some have already dipped into travel funds to their limit and are seeking a third trip the finance chairman issued a warning in effect that when you have exhausted your funds you have to stop spending.

Now of course this is good fiscal reasoning but board members have refused to subscribe to it during these last years and despite protests from the floor have adopted a spending philosophy of going for broke. The "transfer of funds" season has already begun. This calls for a rescue from the contingency fund set up in the budget to take care of the needs in overspent accounts. It was reported that the contingency fund still packs a good bit of muscle with $179,000 on hand. Demands on it for the remainder of the fiscal year are expected to be great.

THE RULES ADOPTED after the new chairman of the board took his seat spell out that no more than two out-of-state trips are permissible in any one year. There is evidence now that a movement is afoot to make this rule elastic. How? Throw it in the lap of the county board chairman. He has the authority to make a "judgment decision" as it is called in sports. In this case, Chairman Weeks could determine whether in his judgment a "third trip," contrary to the rules, by say a chairman of an important committee is in the interest of county government.

This does two things. It puts the county chairman on the spot (he comes up for election to the board next spring as do 15 other members) and it reinstalls "board politics," at least it recalls charges of favoritism on past boards.

What's the remedy? Many say elect the chairman from the county-at-large and make him responsible to all the voters of the county. Thus, they say, would make him independent and beyond "board politics."

IT WAS REVEALED Monday that the $13,000 in the travel fund will be exhausted when outstanding claims are honored and if requests by four committees are honored to send delegations to national conventions around the country. It is the custom to send four from each committee and the cost for road committee representation at Atlantic City was reported as $2,600.

It was not brought out in so many words but inferences were clear that members use the out-of-state trip to which they are entitled for the annual vacation, accompanied by their wives. The trips are made by plane and the best accommodations are used. Finance committee members maintained a neutral position on these requests by insisting that their duty has no concern whether a trip for any member was justified, but only if there would be money on hand to pay the travel claim on the return of the native.

R. R. Rickson, York Twp., known for pulling a tight string on spending moved to accept the highway committee request for a trip to Atlantic City. He said it and the public works committee were the "big spenders" on the board (they handle the biggest capital outlays) and for this reason such committee members had to keep informed.

Discussion of "out-of-state travel spending" is expected to hit the floor when approval of $7,800 for four around the country trips will be sought.

'No Drug Problem In NW Suburbs'

There is no drug problem in the northwest suburbs.

There are problems, each of which must be dealt with in an individualized manner, and cannot be collectively labeled or treated.

This was only one of the misconceptions cleared up at a drug abuse meeting at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night.

State, county and local officials, over 100 of them, listened as several guests and speakers gave their opinions as to the extent of drug abuse in this area and the many public misconceptions about it.

Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee (PTAC) offered some statistics to bring the scope of local drug abuse into focus.

For example, in 1966 the Palatine police handled 6 drug cases. Two years later this figure jumped up to 19, "and these are only the ones on record," he said.

ANOTHER SOURCE OF Thomas' information came from Northwest Community Hospital administrators who said the number of drug overdose cases and/or attempted suicides via overdose was 11 in January of this year, 14 in February and 10 in March.

"This is up to one every other day now," Thomas said.

When these figures are broken down into age and sex brackets, the results are interesting.

Of these cases, 4 can be attributed to females between 12 and 20, 9 to women between 21 and 39, 15 to females between 40 and 64, and 1 to a woman over 65 years of age.

And for males, 3 cases dealt with those between 12 and 20, 2 with the 21 to 39 bracket, 1 for those between 40 and 65 and none for men over 60 years of age.

Although the fact that the women between 40 and 64 years of age had the most cases spoke for itself Thomas reiterated, "Kids are not the only ones using drugs."

FOR EXAMPLE, Thomas said his youth committee staff recently worked with a 14 year old girl on LSD. Her mother was on tranquilizers every four hours and her father was frequently "sacked" from martinis by supper time, he said.

This is not to say that drug abuse among teens is not prevalent. Of the 200 "crisis" cases the PTAC dealt with in the last year, Thomas said about 75 per cent of them had drug problems in relation to their other "hangups."

This is another point several participants stressed. Drug abuse is not a problem in itself. It is often the symptom of other and more serious problems, frequently of which stem from the home.

As a last reminder to his audience that drugs do exist in this area, Thomas said heroin has now cropped up in the Northwest suburbs.

HAVING PURPOSELY attended last night's meeting as an "objective observer" Bruce McQuaker of Traveler's Aid, reaffirmed many of Thomas' comments in his summary presentation.

He said, after listening to the various health, education, communication and community officials discussing drug abuse, that the people who made "the most sense are the young people."

He urged the 100 or so participants to include young people in their program to increase its effectiveness "because these are the people drug users relate to best."

He also warned the participants not to "lump" all aspects of drug abuse into one problem. "Break it down into task force units, otherwise you'll fail."

"And one other thing to remember in dealing with this thing. The Establishment is very real to users, especially teens. You've got to come up with something imaginative and creative. Some thing the kids can relate to or it's just no go," McQuaker said.

Teacher Workshops Slated

Although Bensenville Elementary School Dist 2 students will not have to return to classes until Tuesday, the faculty is scheduled to begin attending teacher workshops Monday.

Teachers will be greeted Monday morning in the Blackhawk Junior High School auditorium by Martin Romme, president of the Dist 2 school board and Kenneth Kaufman, acting Dist 2 superintendent.

Mrs. Jams Freeman, curriculum coordinator, will outline new developments in the curriculum and special programs at Monday's workshop. Herbert Wicke, Asst. Superintendent of business affairs, is scheduled to discuss matters of the business office as they relate to teachers.

DURING THE afternoon, the teachers will meet in their assigned buildings with school principals.

About 30 new teachers are expected to join the Dist 2 faculty this fall. Also, 31 Northern Illinois University student teachers will augment the Dist 2 faculty during the first quarter of school.

A special all-day workshop was held for the new teachers yesterday. The day's activities included a bus tour of the district and a luncheon at the Itasca Country Club, hosted by the Bensenville Education Association.

Five Teachers Will Be Seated

The Lutheran Church of St. Luke in Itasca will install five new teachers for its parish school this Sunday.

They include Karen Mensching, Valerie Kidney and Anita Hahn, who will be teaching in the elementary grades. Magdalene Danzen will be teaching the new Junior Kindergarten class for four-year-olds, being assisted by Darlene Bessner. This special class will be in progress for the first time this year.

The Lutheran School of St. Luke will begin its 86th school year Monday with a service for children, parents and teachers to be held in the church at 9 a.m.

For information concerning the school and its program, residents are asked to call the school office, 773-0996, between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Principal's Group Open To Questions

The Addison principals association for Dist 4 is making itself available to answer any questions parents might have on the referendum which will be held next month.

According to Daryl Unnasch, president of the association, all Dist 4 school principals are available for questions and answers, and will come out to the homes of district residents if requested.

"We felt that we (the principals) were in a good position to answer questions or give explanations regarding the referendum," Unnasch said. "We recognize the necessity of passing this referendum if educational excellence is to continue in Dist 4."

Unnasch stated that any resident can call Fullerton School at 278-5250 to ask their questions, or to request that any one or all of the principals come out to their homes to speak to a group of residents who might have questions.

Stranded, Penniless Boy Finds Friends

by BRAD BREKKE
Mario Hernandez is just a boy. A tough-looking, tight muscled kid who looks older than a lot of guys in his high school class.
But what a man he is.
At 15, Mario isn't old enough to shave yet or even buy a bottle of beer. He won't be able to vote for a few years, doesn't have a social security card and can't even drive a car legally because he's just too young.

Mario Hernandez. He still has to have his parent's permission to buy a pack of cigarettes and can't even get into a sexy R-rated movie unless he's accompanied by an adult.

In fact, Mario isn't even old enough to volunteer for combat duty in Vietnam, like a lot of kids he knows.

But at 15, Mario is as much a man as any man and has done things men twice his age sit around in bar rooms dreaming about.

YOU SEE, Mario has been singing the song of the open road and the rugged life of a migrant worker since he was 13.

Mario isn't old enough to be a pain on the unemployment chart yet and probably never will be, even when he starts paying taxes.

He thinks this kind of vagabond life is fun. He digs working hard under a hot sun for a couple of pennies to rub together.

But last Friday his pennies ran out in Chicago and he was stranded with two pet raccoons, which he carried around with him in a plastic bag.

Thanks to an uncle of his who lives in Mount Prospect, and $52 in cash he received from the Northwest Opportunity Center emergency fund, Mario was able to complete his migration to Weslaco, Tex., before the first school bell rang.

He'll be a sophomore at Weslaco High this year. Mario said he likes school and hopes to graduate from there in three years.

WHEN MARIO became stranded last week, he was returning home from Saginaw, Mich., where he had worked since June as a stoop laborer, picking everything from cherries to strawberries and pickles for a farmer he knows from his home town.

Mario told the Herald Wednesday from Weslaco, a town of 16,000, that he might not return to work in Michigan next year because he wasn't able to save any money this summer.

"I got paid about $20 a week and that just paid for my food and housing," he said.

Mario said there wasn't as much work there as in past years and as a result, he only worked three to four hours a day in the fields.

He shared housing facilities with other workers and said there was only an outdoor toilet for them, instead of indoor plumbing. But he said that didn't bother him a bit.

"I've been going up there by myself since I was 13. A farmer from Weslaco owns a farm up in Saginaw and I rode up with him."

"I WASN'T ABLE save anything this year and wanted to return before school began, so I got a ride with a guy who was driving to Chicago."

"I have an uncle who was supposed to be going to Weslaco last Friday, but when I called him, he said he wasn't going and I was stranded."

Mario said he then called another uncle of his, Arnold Garza, who lives at 401 N. Main St., in Mount Prospect.

Garza is a janitor for the Community Presbyterian Church in Mount Prospect and when he heard of Mario's plight, he asked for advice and the church told him to ask the Northwest Opportunity Center for help, which he did.

The center at first referred Mario to Traveler's Aid, but they told him they had no funds and referred him to another agency, the Department of Public Aid. But they told him the same thing, they didn't have the money, and referred him back to Traveler's Aid.

AFTER THIS, the center decided to give Mario enough money to buy some food and a bus ticket back to Weslaco.

And five hours after he arrived in Chicago, stranded, he was on his way again, this time in a large bus headed for Texas. He arrived safely, he said, and in time for school.

A spokesman for the center said their emergency fund is for such cases as Mario's, but they first try to exhaust other public resources before opening their till.

They expect the persons they give money to during an emergency to pay them back. But most do not.

They don't expect Mario to pay the $52 back, but in a letter Mario wrote to the Herald, he said, "The center gave me $52 for the bus ticket, which someday I hope to repay or help someone else in trouble. Thank you."

During the last three weeks, Mario said he worked in the pickle fields. He was paid by the hour, he said, rather than by the bushel as in other states.

One person at the center described Mario as "a good looking kid, about five feet, seven inches tall, clean-cut and older than his years."

HE CARRIED the raccoons with him, despite objections from the center. They were afraid the bus driver would kick him off because of the animals. But Mario told them they would be safe with him and that he couldn't part with them because he had raised them from babies.

And they arrived home with him in good shape. Mario is the son of a barber and has two brothers and a sister, all younger than he. He said his family was glad to see him arrive but said he was even happier to see them again.

He said next year he'll probably stay home because the work is low-paying and too hard to find.

Mario Hernandez. He was penniless and thought he didn't have a friend in the world last Friday. But he had many.

Unique Mass Provides Meaning

by WANDALYN RICE

The young priest sat quietly under the bare light bulb — listening.

"Let's pray that what we have discovered will become a way of life," the young girl said softly.

Her prayer was the call to worship. The church was a small garage decorated with signs and posters.

"Christ had a dream of love, live it," one read.

"It is better to have loved and lost than to have hated and won," read another.

The congregation sat on lawn chairs or on blankets on the concrete floor.

The priest wore a brown-striped knit shirt and slacks. Only minutes before he had been laughing and talking with the now-silent congregation.

NEXT TO THE PRIEST was a bare picnic table with only a chalice. The picnic table would soon be transformed into an altar where he would say the ancient Christian Eucharist rite.

But first, there was a discussion of readings that had been selected by members of the congregation and the priest.

The discussion was subdued, almost sad. Finally one girl spoke up. "Just sitting here with nobody saying anything is the most beautiful because what we feel just can't be said in words."

This mass was the last official celebration to be held by the Rev. Joe Sander for a mass group formed of area young people two years ago.

The group, composed of high school and college students, gathered at the home of one of the members for the celebration. Father Sander was being transferred to Peoria.

During the prayer of the faithful, one girl said, "I think we should be thankful that Joe has been with us for so long and pray for him and the kids who need him in Peoria."

THE STORY OF THE mass group, however, involves more than the story of the last mass Father Sander said Sunday.

It began two years ago when a young couple, Mike and Rosemary Green, moved into Arlington Heights.

"We had been involved in the Newman Club (a Catholic youth organization) at college," Green explained, "and when we went back to the regular church it was not what we wanted."

The Greens became involved with the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine (the Catholic Sunday School) and through that set up a mass group with young people from several parishes.

Youths from Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines were soon involved in the group and Father Sander, director of guidance at St. Viator's High School, became the group's regular priest.

During the next two years the group developed close relationships. Instead of a sermon, their services had dialogues between those attending and the priests.

"It isn't something you can just go to, you kind of have to come a part of it," Green said.

THE DIALOGUES covered many topics — death, sex, drugs, parents and the meaning of the mass.

"In many ways these are ordinary kids with kids' problems," Green said, "but in a sense they are very different. I don't know how many kids are concerned about the mass they go to and who are upset when it doesn't go right."

Members of the group met every Wednesday night at the Greens' apartment to plan the topic for the dialogue and the readings for the next mass.

The whole process was a learning experience, Green said.

"It doesn't upset me when people say there are young people in your group who don't believe in God. The mass group is a way to come and hear other people's ideas about God."

Now the group is in transition. Not only is Father Sander leaving, but the Greens are leaving too.

"We have told them we are officially quitting on Sept. 1, but unofficially we will probably never quit," Green said.

Last week the group held a meeting to discuss the future. They decided to continue.

"The kids are beginning to realize how much they have," Green said.

THIS FALL THE masses will be held for one month at each of three to five parishes, with different priests officiating each week. The group is also arranging for some adult couples to fill the Greens' role.

St. James and Our Lady of the Wayside churches in Arlington Heights and St. Collette's School in Rolling Meadows have already agreed to let the mass groups use their facilities, and priests have agreed to say mass.

The group is also talking to two other parishes about meeting places.

The one-month-at-each-place arrangement will make transportation problems easier for the group. "Now people have to call every week to find out where we are," Green said.

Father Ray Devereux of St. James, who began a mass group for younger students last year, said he will help with the larger group.

The youthful mass groups are useful, he said, because "the kids are at the age where they are starting to search out the meaning of religion in their lives. When topics in the mass are related to their own lives and needs it will help."

In addition, he said, the participants are likely to bring about greater changes as they return to the regular church.

"THE FREEDOM IN the mass today is great and unless there is someone to say what to do with it, it can be lost," he said. "At first the mass groups are very important to the kids, but as they find their identity they find they have to express it by going out into the larger church."

The youthful mass group will use a creed written by the group.

"Previous creeds were written by priests and cardinals to define what it meant to be a Catholic," Green said. "The kids wanted this creed to define as simply as possible what they believed."

The creed reads:

"I believe in me. I believe in you. I believe the world is mine and yours. I believe that together we can create a world of love."

"I believe in God, therefore I love, I trust, I seek justice, I search for brotherhood and peace."

"I believe in Jesus the Christ. I believe he was a man like us, a man of peace who suffered death and I believe he is with us."

"I believe all this and more."

For Antique Buffs

BY PHYLLIS BENDTSEN

Wood Dale Library

Recently a friend came through town and we decided to go "antiquing" at some of the area antique shops. A good idea except that she had left her antique price list at home. So we went over to the Wood Dale Library to borrow "The Complete Price List of Antiques" by Ralph and Terry Kovel. This is one of the more complete price lists, and excellent for the beginning collector or the expert.

While in the library we browsed through the 745 and 749 sections looking through the selection of books on antiques. Another book, written by the Kovels, "Know Your Antiques," is full of valuable information for the collector. Especially useful are the pages of identifying marks for china, silver, print-makers and toys.

THE KOVELS write a column for the newspapers, so their writing style is simple and explanatory. Rather than use an obscure term and leave you unenlightened, they also include the meaning. There are sketches and profuse black and white illustrations to help you along. The varieties of antiques covered is both diverse and fascinating.

Whenever you get into the study of antiques, you may as well realize you are studying bits of history. Another excellent book about collecting, "The Antiques Book," includes the intriguing background of much of the fine furniture made in this country. There is also a very good article (the book is made up of 35 articles taken from Antiques Magazine) on old flintlocks and other hand-made guns from the early days of our nation. No color pictures, but all illustrations are well captioned, and the areas covered (needlework, gunsmithing, print-making, furniture, silver and glassware) are most interesting.

Antiques being our "today" contact with the past led the American Heritage publishers to create a splendid history picture book. "The American Heritage History of Antiques from the Civil War to World War I."

This is one of those books you cannot lay down. It is all in color, with reproductions of actual advertisements from the past, glorious full-color photographs of some of the finest examples of Tiffany glass I have seen anywhere.

If you are a mystery fan as well as antique buff, you will enjoy two new novels by John Cressies as Anthony Morton. "Sport for the Baron" and "Affair for the Baron" both concern themselves with a marvelous thief turned detective as well as antique and fine arts dealer, and his lovely wife, and their exciting adventures in the world of fine objets d'art and those who would deal nefariously with them. Good reading!

The Way We See It

Ogilvie In National Spotlight

Two resolutions approved by the recent National Governors Conference had the effect of placing Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie in the national limelight.

The resolutions, introduced by Ogilvie, strike at the heart of major political and social problems: urban transportation and the declining role of the states.

Ogilvie introduced, and got passed, a resolution calling for establishment of a federal trust to funnel funds to states with mass transit financial problems. Such funding is essential, and Ogilvie's resolution could be helpful in breaking down the federal emphasis on spending for highways.

A second resolution called for a U.S. Constitutional Convention to provide for federal tax sharing. It was a blunt power play, aimed at forcing Congress to approve a tax sharing program rather than face a Constitutional Convention. And it had that effect, forcing a House committee chairman to release tax sharing legislation. Should Congress defeat the measure, however, the threat of a Convention still hangs as an implied threat.

While we have endorsed federal tax sharing, we are inclined to agree with Illinois Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, who said, "We have to stop the thinking that if we can't get a pet legislative program through Congress that we amend the federal constitution."

The strength of our Constitution is that it is not a piece of legislation. If Congress doesn't pass needed laws, it should be replaced, not circumvented.

The Political Beat

Nixon Needs A 'Rabbit'

by CHARLES E. HUFNAGEL

Whether the word has gone out or not indications are that the financial and business community of the nation are aware that the Nixon Administration expects more than a complacent sitting on hands during the coming hectic 1970 election campaign. The GOP has to get control of at least one of the houses of Congress to bring the President any comfort for the Battle of 1972. By a bit of spectacular fortune, Republican strategists believe control of the Senate can be accomplished. It will take a landslide to swing the House, something that defies all optimism at this time. Can Mr. Nixon pull a rabbit out of a hat, any kind of hat?

THIS MAKES THE Illinois Senate contest now warming up between Adlai III and Senator Ralph T. Smith a key decision in the Nixon plans. The GOP has selected "law and order" as the key issue in the campaign which means clamping down on the college kids and riots and upholding the arm of the police to protect citizens wherever they may be and whoever they may be. It's a Republican challenge to patriotism.

The Democrats will stick to the "bread and butter" issue which has been their staple since FDR took command in 1932. They are encouraged because they say take home home pay not only affects the underprivileged and the low-income people but in this era of advanced technology a recession-inflation puts high income people with college degrees in the ranks of the unemployed.

With the fading out of space and military procurements in various industries, news reports tell of some top income people biting the dust. Will they and should they take it without protest? The Democrats argue that the Nixonites are looking at unemployment and take home pay through the eyes of the 1930's. There is in progress a technological slowdown in a technological society. The college trained are hit as much as the uneducated. Adlai backers are saying it calls for a new deal.

The Democrats will also charge that the Nixon Administration is mixing the old and new economies, a party managed economy with the ancient laissez faire. Such policy with recession-inflation, the Democrats predict, will lead to disaster.

But the big disenchantment is with the Nixon foreign policy which despite Lyndon Johnson's bold adventure in Vietnam in the name of American defense has some Democrats at Washington worried. They see in West Germany's deal with Russia a lost confidence in the American military to make its presence acknowledged around the world. The Soviet boldness everywhere they claim testifies to what is happening.

SO IT COULD very well happen from the events between now and Nov. 3 on the international scene that the GOP "law and order" and the Democrats "bread and butter" will be required to step aside as "the issue." A parent Administration optimism is no safe guideline in a world where distrust prevails on all sides with trade wars growing in intensity and national currencies wobbling. It's the perfect setting for the man on horseback.

There are some who will shrink from so gloomy an outlook. They should be reminded of Spengler's declaration that "optimism is cowardice." It can become a fear to face the realities, to examine them intelligently and measure their impact. The domestic and international situation must be handled realistically by both candidates in the election campaign otherwise Illinois citizens could be voting for self-deception.

Bloomington Beat

Library Prime Town Need

by LOIS KOCH

In the past 10 years, Bloomington has more than doubled its population and promises to continue such growth in the future.

Village officials, developers and residents have worked hard to bring more and better recreational, educational, shopping and many other facilities into the town. There is one important area, however, which has been overlooked — a public library for Bloomington.

The town has certainly grown large enough in size and wealth to warrant its own library. Presently, adults and students must go to neighboring communities, almost all of which have their own library facilities, to acquire reading material for pleasure or to do research.

OBTAINING library cards to libraries in such places as Roselle, Addison and Itasca is not free. For example, a fee of $6 per year is required for an out-of-town family to acquire a card to the Addison library. Added to this is the inconvenience of having to travel out of town.

Bloomington schools do provide some library facilities for their students, but do not take care of the needs of many adults and high school and college age students. A community library is definitely in order to handle these groups, which so far have been neglected.

A village spokesman has said that a committee has been organized to investigate the possibility of creating a public library, and that several offers for possible locations have been received.

He added, however, certain difficulties must be ironed out before any action can be taken.

Lois Koch

MONEY IS available at the federal level for such use, and the village itself is most likely capable of appropriating extra funds also.

Some efforts are thus being made by the several village officials to give the townspeople their own library. Mayor Robert Meyers, in fact, has promised to at least have a deed to a library site before his term expires.

Residents concerned with the problem could also lend a helping hand. Efforts could be made to work with village officials to further the small amount of work that has already been done.

Books could be donated, fund drives could be conducted and possible location sites could be investigated. Just because libraries are run by the municipality does not mean that the individual cannot participate in the activities. Meyers has commented that the village would be happy to work with anyone interested in advancing the cause.

It is time everyone in Bloomington realized the necessity of having library facilities for the town apart from those provided by the schools and surrounding communities.

THE TOWN IS growing at an unbelievably rapid pace in both population and physical size. The approximately 3,000 persons already living within the town deserve their own library, as will those who move into the new subdivisions and developments in the future.

Bloomington is finally taking its place among the many prominent communities in the area, and should be equipped with those facilities expected — namely, a library.

Quota On Human Error?

In reply to the letter of Aug. 20, to the person who requested his name be withheld.

Just as you vigorously objected to the article on ticket quotas, may I object to the reasoning behind your letter. Definitely, as you stated, there usually are contributing factors to all accidents: designs of roads, road surfaces, poor lighting, etc. And who among us can state that anyone designing a roadway, or any roadway, ever claimed it to be hazard-free. However, the major contributing factor to all accidents is human error, that error being committed by a person behind the wheel of a car, who believes as you lead me to believe of you, that he is one of those privileged few who laws do not apply to.

IF YOU THINK 90 miles an hour is a safe speed, perhaps 90 miles an hour should be a legal speed. But if said motorist, going 90 miles an hour, kills your child, or causes an accident which disables you or one of your loved ones, does that make it illegal as well as unsafe in your mind?

I also resent the term "brainwashed" as used in your letter. I am very proud

Another View

This letter is in answer to Mr. Roy's in the Fence Post. He made many sweeping statements for the people of Rolling Meadows and their reasons for not attending the recent Sidewalk Academy at Sacred Heart of Mary High School.

I am a resident of Rolling Meadows and had the privilege of attending three of the four lectures offered and would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the administration of Sacred Heart for making their facilities available and also the sponsors of the Sidewalk Academy for bringing this excellent series to Rolling Meadows. For those of us who attended, it was a very rewarding experience. Simply by closing one's ears and refusing to listen doesn't mean that any of the social problems that are existent in our society today and are going to go away. On the contrary, I think it helps to increase our understanding to hear all sides of a particular question.

HIS LETTER hinted that all the speakers at the Academy were preaching anarchy and that if the people of Rolling Meadows had attended they would have thrown eggs and broken the law and that is one reason they stayed away. I can assure you I did not agree with all the speakers but I didn't throw one egg.

Incidentally, the speakers were not all preaching anarchy. One of the smallest audiences I saw came to hear Mr. Hanrahan, our state's attorney. I would not hazard a guess as to why this series drew such small audiences but Mr. Hanrahan himself expressed disbelief at the size of his audience and suggested apathy so I don't think Mr. Roy should be so hard on the press for coming to this same conclusion.

No, Mr. Roy, please speak only for yourself. I am one Rolling Meadows resident who thoroughly enjoyed the series and only wish it could have been brought to its conclusion as scheduled.

for something he himself did not judge to be illegal or unsafe. He writes as he sees them, as I'm sure 90 per cent of the officers do.

You speak of intelligent people not supporting the police. Who do you intelligent people call when you need help of someone has deprived or tried to deprive you of your rights or belongings? I have had dealings with various police departments and have always been treated courteously and as an intelligent human being, and have reciprocated as such.

When people realize policemen are human beings, screened very carefully before they are hired, and get damn little salary for the physical and verbal abuse they put up with from the intelligent people such as yourself, they might appreciate the job these men do, and yes, even the tickets they give us intelligent human beings to try and prevent us from killing each other for lack of common sense.

Carnival Takes Volunteers

In response to Mr. Robert Bergman's negative comments regarding the Palestine Legion-Lions Carnival, I am curious to know if he is a member of either organization. In all probability he is not, or he would not have offered these comments.

As for the number of attractions offered . . . this is a very limited area due to the lack of volunteer workers of both organizations. Do you realize that each booth, game, and ticket cage is manned by a member of the Legion or Lions who have given up many of their leisure hours to help out? Attractions are also limited because of certain law statutes.

Refreshments are available only through volunteer Legion Auxiliary members. Their work begins two months before carnival time ordering food, pop, etc. Many, many hours are given in the preparation and serving the food. You could almost say that this part of the carnival is a public service as the Auxiliary realizes a very small profit; sometimes none. General attendance has much to do with the competition of other civic events on the same dates, vacations, and last but not least, the weather and the elements.

I AGREE WITH Mr. Bergman's disturbance at having to pay 50 cents for a can of beer. I understand one has to pay the same or more for a beer at ball games, sport events, special events, race track, etc., and those are all profit making enterprises. But he must admit, the beer was cold, and it was in an easy to handle can and not a flimsy paper cup.

He states, "perhaps if next year we were less worried about making money and more concerned about providing some genuine attractions, 'we' might be surprised at the results." WE, the Legion and Lions have to overcome many obstacles each year, and yet always do the best we can. Indeed WE are rightfully concerned about making money as both organizations are non-profit and the proceeds of this event are used for charities, too numerous to list, Veterans, Service Men, and for the welfare and service of the community, state, and nation.

Next time Mr. Bergman, know the facts before you compare.

Rotary: Thank You; Sorry...

May we take this opportunity to thank all of the people (both young and not-so-young) who attended the circus sponsored by the Palestine Rotary this past Monday afternoon and evening. Both shows were completely filled to overflow capacity. Through gifts of local businesses we were able to invite several hundred underprivileged children, including children from Camp Reimberg, Clearbrook, Countryside, Norwesco's Headstart, Maryville City of Youth and Wheeling Service Corps, to the circus.

Our financial success from this venture is not so important to Rotary as our goodwill and respect in this community.

WE, THEREFORE, sincerely apologize for: 75-cent reserved seat section which should have been pre-advertised, the commercialism of selling many items during the show, and the insufficient seating space.

Some of these inconveniences were policy of the circus management over which we had no control and received no profit, our only profit being derived from the sale of tickets.

With these facts in mind we again say that we are sorry that all were not pleased or satisfied, but we are truly grateful to this community for their fine support. Thank you.

Area Doctors, Laymen Study Drug Abuse

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Cholner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

THOMAS SAID community organizations could and should help in the overall effort to handle drug problems by disseminating and sharing more accurate information.

And Dr. Morris, who heads the communications group, said the question of how to get believable information out to the public was a major problem media are now faced with.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benzaquin Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

Meyers Explains His Veto

Bloomington Village Pres. Robert Meyers Wednesday night announced his reasons for vetoing an amendment to the construction performance bond ordinance, approved by the board on Aug. 24.

The board amended the ordinance requiring a $250 property improvement bond for newly built homes, to include an additional $250 bond for all ditch and culvert improvement.

Meyers gave the following reasons for his action:

"A survey should be completed as to the present conditions of all culverts, with pictures being attached.

"A design should be approved by the village for the landscaping of such ditches.

"The ordinance should apply only to new subdivisions that are accepted, and not on existing sub-divisions.

"It is unlawful to require a stand of grass in a ditch.

"A suggestion should be made to amend the culvert bond ordinance, whereas a lot must receive and let all storm water, without restriction, before the culvert bond is released.

"We have an existing ordinance concerning village property and imposing a fine for violation."

Tony Borowicz Uses Hypnotism To Help People

by MARY B. GOOD

"Tell your mother I'm a harmless little old man," said Anthony Borowicz, the Palatine hypnotist.

But who can tell a straight look in the eye from a glance of friendly persuasion?

"I'm not interested in playing tricks," he went on, ignoring skepticism. "Too many stage hypnotists have scared the living daylight out of people with their wows, zowies, bam, SLEEP! Some put people through their paces like animals — scratch for fleas, bark like a dog, so that's why I'm not a stage hypnotist."

Tony counts among his successes: helping people stop smoking, drinking, nail biting; helping to eliminate fear complexes — high places, dark places, dentist's pain, childbirth; (aiding) in study application, speech correction, weight reduction; helping give temporary relief from migraine headache, hay fever and asthma.

"A WOMAN FROM the fat ladies club couldn't come to a session I was holding because of her hay fever miseries, but I told her to come anyway. Within a half hour her nose stopped running; her eyes stopped tearing; she could breathe comfortably again."

Tony employs hypnotism as the key to relaxation. "Shoot," he exclaimed, "I can use it for many things — it enables me to forget my desk job when I leave work; it puts problems in proper perspective."

Hypnotism allows people to do what they can do so much better, according to Tony. "With hypnotism, a student can raise his grades because his concentration is improved. The only reason people under hypnosis look drugged is because they are in a relaxed mood. Actually their senses are sharpened, they can smell or hear things in the next room."

AN INDUSTRIAL ENGINEER by profession, Tony is the father of two married children. He's been practicing hypnosis for 20 years on himself and others. "We all hypnotize ourselves at one time or another. Haven't we all concentrated on something to the exclusion of noise, interruptions and other people's voices?"

Tony's background includes courses at Northwestern University and Maine Township Evening School. He attends seminars and workshops and is always "still learning."

The phenomenon of stopping blood from a wound is the most unusual application Tony's ever seen of hypnosis. "I viewed it at a recent convention where a tooth was extracted and the healing process began shortly thereafter. Today doctors are even easing pain of terminal cancer with the aid of hypnosis. Mesmerism, yoga and Indian witch doctors all contributed to what today is hypnotism." (It's a big trip from the teepee to the cancer ward.)

"THE PEOPLE WHO give hypnotism a bad name are those who merely pick up information by watching a professional and go out and 'try it' on somebody."

Tony suggests that people interested in pursuing hypnotism as a profession contact a reputable organization that offers courses and professional literature, such as the Association for the Advancement of Ethical Hypnosis, 10 Washington, Irving, N.J. 07111.

Tony says that worrying about being able to awaken from a professional's trance is the least of a person's problems. "The worst that can happen is that he goes into a deep sleep and wakes up refreshed."

"Think of nothing — listen to my voice — and relax," he said. The words, the voice, the punctuation, inflections . . . all are the tools of his trade. The hypnotist must be part actor, part orator.

"IF A PERSON is thinking," Tony says, "I'm not tired, I feel fine," he won't go into a trance. It's impossible to hypnotize someone who doesn't wish to be hypnotized, and I wouldn't even try."

ATTENTION GETTERS. A single spiral disk and Chevreul's pendulum are two of the props hypnotists use. Tony Borowicz uses them sometimes, but not often, on people whose attention tends to wander. The Palatine hypnotist uses hypnotism to help people stop drinking, lose weight, conquer fear of childbirth, among other things.

The Equal Rights Fight

A Wider Choice In Education

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(Second in a series)

It is difficult for a young girl growing up in America to understand the double message. On one hand she is told she can do anything that she wants to do.

Naturally she can go to college, but the important things are that she is "supposed" to get married and she is "supposed" to have children because that is the role for a woman.

"Our educational system is not adaptable to the needs of individuals nor does it work around the potentials of women," said Mrs. Eugenia Chapman, of Arlington Heights, state assemblywoman.

The Task Force on Women's Rights and Responsibilities, established by President Nixon in October of 1969, recommended that the commissioner of education establish a woman's unit in his office to lead efforts to end sex discrimination in education.

IN A REPORT published in April, the Task Force states, "Discrimination in education is one of the most damaging injustices women suffer. It denies them equal education and equal employment opportunity, contributing to a second-class image."

Women are on a backslide. The percentage of graduate degrees awarded women today is lower than in 1930.

"It's still a held belief that men need and should have education, but it's purely nice for women," said Mrs. Chapman.

Infant girls are handed dolls and tea sets. Boys receive basketballs and model airplanes. The roles have been set. Separated distinguished avenues continue throughout schooling.

Educators have been urged to examine curriculum at the secondary level, if not earlier, which tends to segregate the boys from the girls even before they join the labor market.

"DON'T PUT THE label 'women's work' on a job and keep women in the traditional occupations — secretaries, nurses, teachers or assistants," says Mrs. Elizabeth D. Koontz, director of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Labor Department.

The National Education Association (NEA) states that schools are not preparing girls for lucrative jobs. Yet the boys are introduced to the sciences, business management and the top professions of law, medicine, engineering and politics.

The American Association of University Women is an organization of college-educated women who seek to continue their intellectual growth and promote other women to greater heights in education.

"We are one of the foremost organizations that have constantly plugged for the status of women," said Mrs. Bryce Engle, a member of the Northwest Suburban Chapter in Des Plaines. "Others have come and gone. Two years ago AAUW affirmed its original purpose to promote equality for women."

"HAVING BENEFITTED ourselves by the advantages of higher education, we feel we have a special responsibility to society to continue our growth. Through study groups we keep our members informed and acquaint them with ways to put their talents to use in the community," said Mrs. Robert Jacks, president of AAUW's Arlington Heights branch.

AAUW is concerned particularly with the limited opportunities for women interested in doctorate and postdoctorate work.

With an endowment fund presently surpassing $6 million, AAUW international and national fellowships are awarded to women who wish to continue in study past the master's degree level.

FEW OTHER PROGRAMS offer fellowships to women. Those that do give men top priority. If women are to receive assistance, AAUW members feel, very largely women are going to have to provide it. And, more than 95 per cent of those women awarded AAUW fellowships do complete their studies.

"We feel there are now many responsible and talented women who are available and willing to fill positions on the university academic level," said Mrs. Jacks.

This is in answer to college presidents or deans who comment that they would be more than eager to employ more women on the college level if qualified women were available.

Yet even more pathetic is the lack of avenues open to the mature woman who desires to resume her education by either finishing up a degree interrupted by marriage or lack of money, or continuing in graduate study.

MRS. CHARLES TOOT, state chairman of the status of women and resolutions for AAUW, was encouraged to return to school to obtain her master's in physical therapy. She is 34 and the mother of two.

At one school Mrs. Toot was told she was too old and second, they were not anxious to enroll married women with children.

"I realize physical therapy is an unusual field," said Mrs. Toot, "but what really amazed me was that I was so naive. I thought I could just go back to school, but I found what I think is typical with most schools. They prefer to accept their own recent graduates."

Although few in number, there are some schools which are initiating programs specifically geared to the needs of mature women and housewives. Mundelein College in Chicago is one.

MORE THAN 200 females will be returning in the fall to Mundelein to finish a degree which was in some way interrupted.

An educational plan based on a special counseling service was created to enable a woman to re-enter the academic world at precisely the right level.

While most attend regular classes, four hour one-day seminars have also been set up to enable those women tied more closely to home to conveniently arrange for baby sitters. Classroom work remains the same.

Harper College right in this area is also beginning to recognize the need for continuing education for women.

The first step was taken in the formation of a Citizens Committee on Women. Beginning fruits will be born in October at Harper's one-day introspection type workshop, "Expanding Horizons."

"WE HOPE TO EXPOSE women to their own feelings and fears," said Dave Groth, assistant to the dean in continuing education, "to help them get out of the homes if they choose, whether it be to return to school, work, go into volunteer work or politics."

"I think there is a real need in aiding women to realize their resources and potentials."

Final Summer Soiree For Busy, Busy Juniors

Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club is having its fourth and final summer soiree next Thursday at 8 p.m. for interested young women to become acquainted with the organization's purposes and programs. A member of the Illinois Federation and the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the local organization will explain its social, educational and philanthropic activities to prospective members.

Mrs. Donald Smith, membership chairman, will be hostess for the September reception. She was also hostess for an earlier coffee held Aug. 12. Mrs. Norman Andrews was hostess for two informative gatherings held July 23 and Aug. 5.

Summer months have been busy for the Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club. The group of young women emphasizes philanthropic concerns but, have taken time during the summer months for social activities as well.

June 6 the Gourmet Committee entertained their husbands with an outing at the new home of the William Hardts on N. Evanston. Highlight of the evening was live grey lobsters flown in from Maine and steamed bright red in large kettles. The menu was completed with appetizers, hot buttered french bread, tossed salads and a large watermelon filled with chilled melons, berries and fresh pineapple.

THE ANNUAL Twilight couples golf outing was held at Rob Roy Country Club June 27. An award was given to the Larry Nasons for the lowest score without handicap. A trophy was awarded to Carl and Anne Kramer for their lowest score with a handicap. Carl Kramer also won a prize for the longest drive.

Mrs. Walter Busch received a prize for the longest drive in the women's division. Ray Becker hit a drive closest to the pin. Rodger Karlson was awarded a gift for hitting the longest putt, and Bob and Terry Scott received the crying towel for having the highest score of the day. Mrs. Nini Moore was chairman of the event. The couples met at the home of Walter and Phyllis Busch for a buffet supper after the nine holes of golf.

A gala Waikiki luau for all members and their husbands will be held Saturday evening the M.P. Schwartz home. Authentic Hawaiian foods will be prepared and served by a local catering concern and the June Rold Dancers will entertain the couples with a history of Hawaiian Folk music and dance.

Highlights of the evening will be contests in limbo dancing and the skillful use of hula hoops. The committee for the event, which is chaired by Mrs. Barry Brune, include Mrs. James Kelley, Mrs. M.P. Schwartz, Mrs. Rodger Lindskoog, Mrs. J. Crise, Mrs. W.D. Ronesburg, Mrs. Norman Andrews, Mrs. Richard Losey, Mrs. Ronald Lach, Mrs. L. Freck and Mrs. Robert Scott.

All Arlington Heights women interested in philanthropic activities are encouraged to call Mrs. Donald Smith at 392-1018 for further information. New residents to Arlington Heights can transfer their previous membership in a General Federation of Women's Club to the local organization.

The Chow's Swell At Lunch Bucket

As one trucker said to the other while working on the Northwest Community Hospital addition, "I quit eating at Joe's since then Pink Ladies started serving that swell chow."

Monday the women's auxiliary of the hospital opened The Lunch Bucket, a luncheonette for the men working on the hospital's new addition.

The Bucketers, as the women have dubbed themselves, are hoping construction crews will eat their way to project completion, so the Auxiliary can honor a portion of its $100,000 building pledge. (That's a lot of ham and cheese on rye!)

But the ladies figure, in bad weather especially, their hot lunches are going to attract more truck drivers than a teamster picnic.

DURING THEIR shakedown run Monday morning Mrs. Frank Westfall of Arlington Heights, chairman of the Lunch Bucket, collected volunteers. ("We can always use more!"). Mrs. Garner Williams, assistant chairman, buyer and menu-planner, whipped up a batch of her own special crab meat recipe, a dish for which Pink Ladies have become famous.

Mrs. Gene Smith of Rolling Meadows doled out free doughnuts to all coffee-buying comers, while Mrs. Lolita Lovewell of Mount Prospect rounded out the production line with Polish sausage sandwich-making and potato chip passing.

"The Lunch Bucket was meant to feed workmen during the building project, but nobody will be turned away," Mrs. Williams remarked.

The Bucket is located just indoors from the excavation pit. If others on the inside, like hospital personnel or stray vigil-keepers, are searching for the Lunch Bucket, it's past the east clinic, round the corner beyond the boiler room, past the tool crib and baby bed storage area.

AND IF THEY can find it, indoor chowhounds deserve the crab meat salad. "It's the best 85-cent lunch in town," commented one muncher.

But the auxiliary isn't overlooking any area of mass feeding as a benefit project. They're planning big doings for Saturday, Sept. 19, at Hendri's O'Hare Inn.

You guessed it — their annual luncheon-fashion show with fashions from Bonwit Teller's. Invitations to the gala affair are in the mail, and taking reservations is Mrs. Oreste Tomei, who may be reached at CL 3-2554.

Storkfeathers

It's Double Or Nothing

Everyone, including the doctor, kidded the John T. Lindseys that they were going to have twins. But of course, the Lindseys only laughed. After all, they already had one set of twins who surprised them almost four years ago.

Maybe kidding can make it so, for the Lindseys became parents of a second set of twins Aug. 14.

Brian Scott and John Patrick, who will be 4 on Oct. 1, are thrilled with their new brother, Michael Joseph, and sister, Katherine Ann, and no doubt consider it quite normal for babies to come in pairs. Michael and Kathy were born in Gottlieb Memorial Hospital, Michael weighing 6 pounds 11 ounces, and Kathy weighing 5 pounds 10 ounces.

Despite having twin sons, the Lindseys have only two high chairs left over for the new babies. "Everything had the slats kicked out," laughed Mrs. Lindsey, who plans to purchase two play pens in the very near future.

The family resides at 285 N. Catalpa in Wood Dale. Grandparents of the two sets of twins are George Market of Wood Dale and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lindsey of Independence, Mo.

Polkow of Mount Prospect and Joseph Branz of Kingsford, Mich.

Daniel Boyd Riley is the sixth child for the Boyd Rileys, 535 Walnut Lane, Schaumburg. Born Aug. 21, the baby weighed 5 pounds 3 ounces. Other children in the family are Dennis, 20, Patrick, 18, Judy, 16, Timothy, 13, and Sharon, 11. Mr. and Mrs. Emmons Riley of Alexandria, Ind., and Mrs. Frank Rutkowski of Norwood Park, Chicago, are the grandparents.

Linnea Dora Roesch, weighing 8 pounds 8 ounces, was born Aug. 19 to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Roesch Jr., Rt. 1, Palatine. Third daughter for her parents, Linnea's sisters are Laura, 2½, and Lesley, 1½. Grandparents of the girls are Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Roesch of Pennington, N.J., and Mrs. Agnes Stadel of Palatine.

ST. ALEXIUS

James Thomas Bruzas Jr., 8 pound 10 ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Bruzas, 525 S. Williams St., Palatine, was born Aug. 8, a brother for 5-year-old Beth. Mrs. Helen Bernacchi and Mrs. Margaret Bruzas, both of Chicago, are the baby's grandparents.

Kelly Susan MacLennan was born Aug. 5 to Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. MacLennan Jr., 519 N. Prospect Manor, Mount Prospect. The 6 pound 6½ ounce baby is the couple's first child. Grandparents are the Stanley Hills of Prospect Heights and the Edward MacLennans of Mount Prospect.

Mary Elizabeth Kurz joins 3½-year-old brother John Jr. in the John Kurz home at 2806 Dove St., Rolling Meadows. She was born Aug. 7 and weighed 6 pounds 12 ounces. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kurz of Mount Prospect and Mrs. Dorothy Jeffrey of Carpentersville are the grandparents of Mary and John Jr.

MEMORIAL-DUPAGE

Lana Esther Lowe joins two brothers, Jimmy, 9, and David, 5, in the Donald Lowe home at 112 Rozanne Drive, Addison. She was born Aug. 8 and weighed 8 pounds. Grandparents of Lana and her brothers are the James Lowes of North Carolina and the George Ghanens of San Diego, Calif.

Bradley Todd Hillervik, first child for the Harald Hillerviks, 24 E. Lake St., Addison, was born Aug. 9 weighing 8 pounds 3 ounces. The William Frazers of Oak Lawn and the Bjarne Hillerviks of Addison are the grandparents of the new baby.

Scott Joseph Piwowarczyk, born Aug. 10, is the first child for the Walter Piwowarczyks, 733 N. Lincoln, Addison. The 7 pound 5 ounce baby is a grandson for the S. J. Kantorskis and the Walter Piwowarczyks, all of Chicago.

Kristin Noel Hinrichs was born Aug. 12 to Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hinrichs, 809 Heritage Drive, Addison. The 7 pound 11 ounce baby is the couple's first child and a granddaughter for the Frank Kubars of Oglesby, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hinrichs of Riverdale.

Jerri Ann White was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jerry White, 263 Nordic Road,

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

Bloomington, Aug. 15 and weighed 6 pounds 4 ounces. The couple's first child, Jerri is the granddaughter of the William Whites of Hammond, Ind., and the Alan Fuhrmarks of Griffith, Ind.

Thomas Lee Larsen Jr. is the first son and third child for the Thomas Lee Larsens, 431 Cherry Hill Drive, Addison. He was born Aug. 13 and weighed 8 pounds 6 ounces. Therese, 10, and Cheryl, 8, are the sisters of the baby. His grandparents are the Wilfred Pellands and the Fred Larsens, all of Melrose Park.

OTHER HOSPITALS

Michael Farr Koenigsberger was born in Community Memorial General Hospital in LaGrange Aug. 15. He weighed 5 pounds 14 ounces. He is the second child for the Arthur Koenigsbergers of 715 N. Lawler Ave., Addison, who also have a daughter, Julie Anne, 16 months. Grandparents of the two children are Mr. and Mrs. A. Arthur H. Koenigsberger of Niles and Dr. and Mrs. Carl Sommerfeld of Roselle.

Wed In Evanston Chapel

A wedding in the Walker Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church of Evanston on Aug. 1 brought relatives together from all over the country for the afternoon festivities. The bride is the former Donna Lohbauer of Evanston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lohbauer of Elgin.

The groom, Paul Schaff, and his family, the John W. Schaffs, are former Arlington Heights residents. Paul is a project engineer for Dole Division in Carol Stream. His parents now live in Boca Raton, Fla.

Arriving from Minneapolis was the bride's sister, Mrs. Clifford Biggs, who served as her matron of honor. Dr. John F. Schaff, the groom's brother, came from Dewitt, N.Y., to be best man.

AFTER THE four o'clock ceremony performed by the Rev. Gary Skinner, there was a reception in the Florentine Room of Pyrennes Restaurant in Skokie. The couple then honeymooned for a week in Wisconsin and Michigan. They are living at 1826 Cleveland St., Evanston.

The bride, a graduate of Northwestern University, is string consultant for Winnetka Public Schools, a coordinator of Preparatory String Division of Northwestern.

The groom is a graduate of Illinois Institute of Technology.

Juniors Set 'Star Spangled Affair'

Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club is making final preparations for its 'Star Spangled Affair.' An American style dinner is being planned with roast beef and apple pie to be held Thursday, Sept. 10, at Trinity Lutheran Church. The evening of surprises and entertainment will start at 7 p.m., and tickets may be purchased for a $3 donation by phoning Mrs. Lawrence Kellerman at 392-7571 before Friday, Sept. 4.

'Star Spangled Affair' is being held to provide women of the community interested in learning more about the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club an opportunity to meet the Juniors.

Luncheon Opens Newcomer Year

A busy club year awaits members of the Arlington Heights Newcomers Club beginning with a luncheon Wednesday, Sept. 9, at Old Orchard Country Club. Cocktails are served at noon with a luncheon at 1 p.m. The theme will be 'Get Acquainted.'

There will be a brief business meeting followed by a variety of card games. Reservations or cancellations are to be made by Friday, Sept. 4, by calling Mrs. Charles Wellnitz, 259-9020 or Mrs. Robert Dion, 593-6952.

Husbands, friends and neighbors are invited to the Annual Charity Card party of the club. This event will be held Friday, Sept. 11, at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott Ave., Arlington Heights. Northwest Suburban Mental Health Association will be the benefactors of the proceeds from this party. Bridge, pinocle and canasta will be played.

TICKETS MAY BE obtained from the public affairs chairman, Mrs. Charles Shields, 255-1667; ticket chairman Mrs. James Coyne, 394-2920 or any board member. Deadline for tickets is Wednesday, Sept. 9.

All residents of the Arlington Heights area who have lived in the village less than 18 months are eligible to join Arlington Heights Newcomers Club. There with many special interest groups as part of the club. Activities include a monthly luncheon and evening meeting. Special interest groups include card groups, bowling, pot luck, gourmet dining in restaurants, sewing and crafts, book discussions, tours, theatre groups and golf.

Membership chairman is Mrs. Alfred Lindsey, 392-4974 who may be contacted for further information.

Newcomers Mark Golden Wedding

If there's a prize for the newest Arlington Heights residents who are also celebrating their golden wedding anniversary, it must surely go to Albert and Clara Sundell.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sundell

Married Aug. 18, 1920 in Muskegon, Mich., the couple made their home life in Chicago for 44 years of their married life, moving to 214 S. Pine in Arlington Heights just two weeks before their 50th anniversary.

They celebrated with an open house and buffet supper at the home of their daughter, Norma, and son-in-law, the junior Walter J. Damms, 710 S. Cleveland, who have been residents of Arlington Heights for 15 years. Another daughter, Beverly, resides with her parents.

The Sundells also have two grandchildren, Jeffrey and Janet Damms, and Clara's sister, Mrs. George Miller, who had been her attendant 50 years ago, flew in from Sarasota, Fla., for the party which was held Aug. 15.

Guests also included many friends and relatives from Muskegon, where both Albert and Clara were born.

Albert's business career has been as a real estate broker.

Fr. Filas Is PWP Speaker Sept. 4

Rev. Francis L. Filas, professor of Theology at Loyola University who has written 10 books and is seen and heard on radio and TV, will be the speaker Friday, Sept. 4, at the meeting of Northwest Suburban Chapter of Parents without Partners.

Often considered a one-man crusade for wholesome family life, Fr. Filas will speak on "Who's Boss, You or Your Children."

The group, devoted to the welfare and interests of single parents and their children, will be meeting at 8:15 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, 15 N. Hickory, Arlington Heights.

Single parents wishing more information about the group may see the membership chairman at the meetings or write PWP, Inc., P.O. Box 472, Palatine, Ill.

The Potting Shed

by MARY B. GOOD

Test your gardening I.Q. . . What do you know about lower cryptogams, migratory waterfowl, soil friability? Maybe you might like to look into Morton Arboretum's fall classes: beginning bird study, autumn nature rambles, and more. A call to 969-5862 will bring a full program of activities.

There are as many rats as there are people in the United States. Either directly, or through the lice and germs that live in their fur, rats spread rabies, typhus, plague, amoebic dysentery and more than 30 other diseases. A major battle of the war against rats will be held Sept. 13 through Sept. 19 with the observance of National Rodent Control Week, sponsored by garbage can manufacturers. Health authorities claim rats could be literally wiped out within six months if all households and businesses provided adequate storage for garbage. (Rats are cannibalistic and would eat each other if their supply of garbage were shut off).

After the first week or two in September cicada killers will no longer bug you if they have been dive-bombing around your lawn and garden. The cicada killer is a large wasp about 1 1/2 inches long with a yellow and black body, formidable-looking but not considered vicious. Like most insects of their type, they inflict a terrific sting when provoked. Their biggest kick is scaring kids, buzzing the begonias and falling into marlinis on the patio.

For years people have referred to the "wildflower preservation list" as THE LIST like it was the Index. But how can we expect people to heed the list when it has never to my knowledge been printed in the media? For the benefit of the conservation-minded a clip-and-save list follows:

THESE WILDFLOWERS are protected by Illinois law: bloodroot, Columbine, gentian, lady's slipper, lotus and trillium.

The following are not to be picked in Illinois (no law protects them, only the good judgment of nature lovers): adder's tongue, bearberry, bellwort, bird-foot violet, bishop's cap, bluebell, blueberry, bluets, blue-eyed Mary, bunberry, cardinal flower, celandine poppy, Dutchman's breeches, false dragonhead, fire pink, flowering dogwood, gerardia, ginseng, goldenseal, gold-thread, grass of Parnassus, harbinger of spring, harebell, hepatica, Indian pipe, Jack-in-the-pulpit, Jacob's ladder, lily (rare ones), leadplant and meadow beauty.

Orchids, painted cup, partridgeberry, pipsissewa, pitcher plant, poppy mallow, prairie clover, prairie parsley, purple coneflower, redbud, rose mallow, sabbatia, shadbush, shinleaf, shooting star, squirrel corn, trailing arbutus, turtlehead, twinflower, twinleaf, wild crabapple, wild plum, wintergreen, wood anemone, yellow-eyed grass.

THE PEOPLE WHO wouldn't know a pipsissewa from a bluebell even if they saw it, but wish they did, may contact the Wild Flower Preservation Society, Illinois chapter, Leon F. Urbain, 343 S. Dearborn, Room 1702, Chicago, 60604, is the president. The group has programs on identification with pertinent commentary. (Garden club program chairmen take note.)

Summer slump got your lawn looking tired? Too little food and too many bugs are a summer lawn's worst enemies. Frequent, thorough waterings, especially during dry periods, will do wonders for most lawns. Watering helps keep the bugs in check, because they like it dry. Spectraicide, containing Diazinon, is one product recommended by the National Audubon Society (bird lovers) as a broadly effective, short-lived garden chemical for controlling lawn pests. Irregular dry, yellow patches or a generally ragged lawn are two tell-tale signs of insects. And a little shot of slow-release fall's-a-coming fertilizer is now in order.

Garden Workshop Set

The Garden Club of Mount Prospect will meet on Wednesday, Sept. 9 at 12:45 p.m. in the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 See-Gwon, Mount Prospect for a flower arranging workshop.

Mrs. Jerome Thelander, past president of the garden club, will conduct the workshop.

Members are asked to bring flowers from their gardens, a container and equipment to create an arrangement.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Vernon Schneider, Mrs. William Balaz, Mrs. Robert Gutmann, Mrs. R. Meeker and Mrs. Max Reiser.

Guests are invited and may call Mrs. William Balaz, 253-8235, for further information.

Femme Role May Change

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — As more women enter man's world of work, families may become smaller because women may feel less need to justify their role in society by having children.

This thought is offered by a Stanford University psychologist, Joseph Katz, who says that among all women who obtained a doctorate degree 10 years ago, four out of five are now employed full-time.

Katz said his studies showed that more than four out of five women now in college plan to work after their children are grown, and men agreed with their objective.

MEMBERS OF Village Theatre held their annual summer bash last weekend to kick off their patron sales campaign. Tickets for the 1970-71 season of VT plays, beginning with "You Know I Can't Hear You When The Water's Running" on Sept. 18, are available now through the box office, CL 9-3200. Serving her guests is hostess Mrs. Dick Burkett, president. Charlie Kuhrich, Jack Ellis and Chris Bauski are ready to dig in following a dip in the Burkett pool.

Romance At The Roller Rink

With her cap all set, a Chicago girl arrived at the Riverview Roller Rink where Leo Taland spent much of his time. And although Leo was already going steady with another girl, he married Ann, the newcomer to the skating rink.

That was more than 50 years ago and on Aug. 25, 1920 Leo and Ann, both Chicago born, were married in their "hometown."

Ann, who insists she's only 25 at heart, admits to retiring after 40 years with an insurance company. Leo has retired from the roofing business. After 40 years of marriage, they moved from Chicago to Elk Grove Village where they make their home at 1284 Cypress.

Their retirement is spent traveling to places of interest which have included visits to Florida and Hawaii. In fact they like traveling so well that they spent their 50th anniversary in Colorado at

We'll Sleep Less

CHICAGO (UPI) — Parents who'd like their children to get to bed earlier and sleep later are fighting a losing battle, says one mattress manufacturer.

Spring Air's experts predict that by the end of the 20th century, children and adults, too, may be getting along on as little as three hours sleep a night and thriving. The prediction is based on the growing endurance of humans, more reasons for staying awake, and the long-term trend of human evolution.

'Mary Sunshine' Opens Sept. 18

"Little Mary Sunshine," Des Plaines Theatre Guild's opening show of its 25th anniversary season, is now in rehearsal. Music On Stage has merged with DPTG to present the musical Sept. 18, 19, 25 and Oct. 2 and 3.

Directors are Tom Ventress and John Shaw.

While Little Mary, Sandy Grabowski of Prospect Heights, and Capt. Warrington, Carl Gustafson of Crystal Lake, are picking posies and hollyhocks in the garden, Nancy Twinkle, played by Karen Mason, and Cpl. Billy Jester, Doug Patterson, both of Arlington Heights, manage to get into the act when they dream of Vienna and days gone by.

Adorning the stage with beauty and versatility are the young ladies from Eastchester Finishing School played by Barbara Curren, Des Plaines; Jackie Shadinger, Chicago; Beth Vandenberg, Wheeling; Karol Verson, Niles; Marcy Vosburgh, Mount Prospect; and Sue Wille, Des Plaines.

Also appearing in "Little Mary Sunshine" are Ron Chesmore, Mount Prospect; Dan Issac, Skokie; Ron Napier, Schaumburg; Don Potter and Roy Quid, Arlington Heights; and Jim Tuversson,

Print-Making Demonstration

The Mount Prospect Art League will hold its first meeting of the 1970-71 season Tuesday, 8 p.m., in the Mount Prospect Community Center.

Robert Cobb, an art teacher at Maine East High School, will present a demonstration in print-making. Cobb has had numerous one man shows and has also won awards at the Illinois State Fair and in several local fairs.

Prospective art league members and anyone interested in the print-making demonstration are welcome to attend.

Plans are also being made by members for the annual Mount Prospect Art Fair Oct. 4 in the public works building, 11 S. Pine. To enter, artists should contact Leonard Johnson, Mount Prospect Art League, Box 123, Mount Prospect, 60056.

Recent Bride

Mrs. Robert Bonner

A small family wedding July 24 united a Bensenville couple, the former Sally Elizabeth Rickel and Robert W. Bonner. The newlyweds' parents are the Lawrence C. Rickels of 639 Red Oak, White Pines, and the George Bonners of 418 S. Barron.

The bride and groom both attended Fenton High school. They are making their home in the Bensenville area.

'Luv' Comedy Big On Action

by GENIE CAMPBELL
The attraction at Pheasant Run Playhouse is not the play "Luv," but Bob Denver, who stars in it. And, it's purely his antics and mannerisms that turn the role of Harry Berlin, a horribly depressed individual, into a riotous character.

"Luv," by Murray Schisgal, is an off-color brash three acts that can't be taken seriously, but can be taken to heart. It's a parody of love that relies mostly on gross action for its primary punch.

Harry Berlin, an exceedingly unhappy individual who feels as though life has stepped on him, decides to make one last heroic act by jumping off a bridge, the one and only setting of the play.

IN THE NICK of time, Harry is miraculously spotted and saved from his suicidal leap by an old classmate from Poly Arts U., Milt Manville. A pep talk from his old college buddy convinces poor Harry that "love" will solve everything.

"I'm more in love today than the day I got married," boasts Milt. "Only trouble is that my wife won't give me a divorce."

For it's also love... for another woman... that has caused certain problems for Milt himself.

Denver sets off the string of chuckles in the first act, when in a series of elaborate pantomime, he consecutively becomes deaf, dumb, blind and paralyzed, all nervous conditions that attack him without warning for his own convenience.

YET, EVEN THOUGH dialogue is reeled off at a fast clip, the first act tends to become tedious and overdone. The lag, however, is immediately pulled taut during the second and third acts which flow smoothly without friction.

Lorinne Vozoff was excellent as the passed around wife, Ellen Manville... when she managed to stay in character. Her entrance on stage during the first act was marred when she let the audience see her trying to refrain from sneaking.

Those in attendance still laughed at her for breaking down, but the true comedy was missed. The entrance of Ellen, ordinarily stern and unflinching, is one of the more humorous scenes. Lorinne recovered, but not in time to save face or the role.

GERALD CASTILLO is Milt Manville, a conniver who finds out that the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence. After rescuing Harry from his untimely end in the beginning, Milt is only too happy to send him to his destruction in the end.

Bob Denver in "Luv" will be at Pheasant Run Playhouse through Sept. 7.

The Lighter Side

'X' Finally Makes It

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI—Ran into Sam Plappable the other day. He's a former colleague of mine who left the service of journalism a few years ago to take a government job. Asked Sam how he was getting along.

"It has taken me a while," Sam said, "but I have finally conquered the handicap that was hindering my career as a federal official. From now on I am looking forward to rapid advancement."

Asked Sam what kind of handicap he had overcome.

Pays

"My signature was legible," Sam replied.

Asked Sam for fuller explanation. "Once you reach a certain level in government, you are expected to sign your official letters, inter-office memos and other papers with an undecipherable scrawl."

"THIS STAMPS you as important mover-and-shaker who is too busy making vital decisions to waste precious seconds on discernible autographs."

Asked Sam at what point illegibility became a job qualification.

"Generally speaking, it's when you get your own secretary. If you share a stenographer with another bureaucrat or get help from the stenographic pool, it's okay to write your name so that people can read it. But once you have a private secretary, incomprehensible chirography becomes de rigueur."

Asked Sam why that hindered him. "I couldn't get the hang of it. I would try scribbling my name real fast with my eyes shut, which is standard procedure in the style of penmanship known as the 'executive scratch.' But people could still recognize it as my signature."

"Consequently, nobody took my inter-office memos seriously. They figured that if my handwriting was legible I couldn't possibly swing any weight. So when I was due for promotion, I got passed over."

ASKED SAM what he did about the problem.

"I went to see a psychiatrist," Sam said. "The shrink told me I was subconsciously still in love with Miss Pringle, the fifth grade teacher under whom I learned the Palmer Method of calligraphy.

"When I tried to switch to the 'executive scratch,' I would develop a mental block caused by a guilt complex stemming from a subconscious feeling of disloyalty toward Miss Pringle."

Asked Sam how he overcame that handicap.

"I simply quit signing my name," Sam explained. "Anytime my secretary brought me a paper to sign, I would mark it with an 'X.' Almost immediately, my superiors pegged me as a man with a brilliant future in the federal government."

Men's Club Sets Meeting

The first open meeting of the Men's Club of Maine Township Jewish Congregation will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 2, in the Auditorium, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines.

An oriental dancer will perform. Neighbors and friends are invited. Refreshments and games will follow the interesting meeting.

Bowlers are now registering for the full season. A few openings remain in the Sunday morning and Tuesday night leagues. The Sunday league will begin at 9:45 a.m. Sept. 13. Tuesday evening bowlers start Sept. 15th at 9:15 p.m.

Both teams play at the Golf Mill Bowling Lanes. For further information call the Men's Club president, Marvin Sirota 299-6316, or the Synagogue office, 297-2008.

Open meetings of the Men's Club are held on the first Wednesday of every month. Special events are being planned for the future, including movies and guest speakers. New members are being sought.

'It's Still Hard For Me To Believe'

Fritz Peterson...A Yankee, A Winner

"A season can seem too long... except when you're trying to catch Baltimore... or win 20 games."

by BOB FRISK

Sports Editor

They arrived shortly before noon at White Sox Park.

They arrived without fanfare, without any youngsters shouting. "Where's Mickey? Hey, isn't that Whitey? Hi ya, Roger."

There was no Mickey Mantle, no Whitey Ford, no Roger Maris.

These were the New York Yankees of 1970, and nobody was there to greet them as they arrived at the park.

Only minutes before an usher had said, "The Yankees? I don't know where they dress. Ask that guy over there in the reception area."

The usher was standing just a few feet from the Yankees' dressing room door.

The New York Yankees dominated baseball on and off, but mostly on, for the better part of 40 years. There were other teams and other players, good ones and even great ones, but the Yankees were the centrifugal force, the standard, the gauge, by which other teams were measured and by which other teams measured themselves.

New York, or so it seemed to outsiders, had the game of baseball all to itself, had it all locked up behind the highways of the sprawling city. For the fans in the provinces, it was merely to watch and hate, or grudgingly admire.

When the Yankees arrived at a park, they were besieged by autograph seekers. Youngsters waited outside the dressing room doors and hoped to get a glimpse of a Mantle or a Ford or a Maris or a Berro. Even the ushers knew where the team dressed.

When would it ever end?

And then — thud. For the rest of the league, it had a beautiful sound. The Yankees, it seemed to slide. It was as though the old man had left home, and bullying — it may have been, it was strange without him.

While the now, lightweight Yankees were being built, New York fans slipped away in hordes to watch the Mets.

It's still that way although sports fans, fickle as they are, started to come back to Yankee Stadium when the club gave Baltimore a good run early this season and got some national attention.

"But they left as soon as we went into a losing streak," Yankee pitcher Fritz Peterson said last weekend as he sat in the dugout at White Sox Park.

"The fans will come back. We're better than the Mets right now, and I think we have a real shot at it next year. I said last winter that we'd finish second this season and then win the division in 1971. I still feel that way.

"Baltimore has some great players, but they're showing their age. We're a team of the future."

And the future of the New York Yankees rests on the broad shoulders of such talented performers as Fred (Fritz) Peterson, the pride of the Paddock area, a young man who grew up in Mount Prospect and pitched for Arlington High School.

Peterson is in his fifth year in the major leagues and he just keeps getting better. He was named to the All-Star team in July, and he's 63-61 in his Yankee career, a record that has been carved out without much offensive support.

The Yankees just don't score many runs for Peterson, and the 29-year-old southpaw lost two decisions in four days last week while his teammates failed to dent the scoreboard.

"This has been a strange year for me," says Peterson. "After last year (17-16) I just had a feeling this was going to be one of those extremes a pitcher has, either a great year or a lousy one. It hasn't been either."

"Making the All-Star team meant a lot, it was a goal I always had, but I can't really be that satisfied with the way I've been going."

"Early in the year I was getting the wins but not pitching that well. Lately, and it reminds me of last year, I felt my pitching has improved but there aren't any runs."

"I used to worry when I got beat in a close game or was shut out," Fritz continued, "but that's something else I can't let bother me any more. I know they rate me on how I pitched, not on how the team scored behind me."

When Peterson, a guy who likes fun, enjoys life, was breaking in as a Yankee rookie in 1966, he was always a worrier. He worried about being sent to the minors, about being traded, about not sticking around long enough to qualify for the pension fund, about not making the All-Star team.

"It's so important for the future of your family to make the pension plan and now I've made it. I certainly hope to be around much longer, but you never know. There was always that chance to goof up."

Maybe he still worries — just a little.

Fritz has made steady progress in his pro career. Off his excellent 1969 record, it can be estimated he moved into the $35,000 bracket for his fifth full year with the Yankees.

All along the line, Peterson had two big plusses going for him. He was blessed with a good arm and he never was bothered by control problems. He only walked 43 hitters last summer in 272 innings.

"Starting out," he explains, "I just never had the kind of fast ball to make up for a lack of control. I wasn't very big so I just worked on getting my breaking ball over the plate."

Peterson, who has never missed a start in five years because of injuries, has five pitches now, pitches he can rely on, pitches that add to his effectiveness. "I picked up the screw ball at the end of last year and learned the slider from Mel (Stottlemyre). There's the fast ball, curve, and the change-up I learned from Bouton."

Bouton! Jim Bouton. Yes, the author of the controversial "Ball Four" book that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn helped make into a best-seller.

"No, I haven't read the book," Peterson said. "I always liked Jim, we roomed together, and he's really a great guy. Sure, the players talk about the book, and I know I'm in it too, but I just haven't read it. I do know that a lot of things Jim said two years ago that got people mad at him are proving to be true today."

As Fritz Peterson looks back on his baseball days as a youngster in Mount Prospect, and as an American Legion and high school pitcher, he admits that he's still surprised by his pro career.

"You know, when I go back to Arlington High School, and look at that picture in the foyer, of the little guy with glasses, this is all kind of hard to believe."

Peterson was 5-7, 155 pounds as a senior at Arlington. Only one scout talked to him and "that was just for a couple minutes". Today, Fritz stands six feet and weighs a solid 205.

"I always wanted to play baseball. My dad (who now lives in Crystal Lake) helped me but never pushed me into the game. He let me do what I wanted. I did the pushing. At night, I'd wait for him by the corner at the train station with my glove, and we'd play ball all the time."

Fritz fondly remembers those days in boys baseball. "A win never means more than it does to a boy in Little League. It's quite a feeling at that age to walk off the mound with victory. It's not quite that feeling now, however satisfying any win has to be."

Peterson, who is married and has one child (a second is due in November), teaches at his alma mater Northern Illinois University in the winter months. He has a master's degree in physical education.

He signed a pro contract with the Yankees after they saw him pitch seven innings of shutout ball for Northern Illinois on a southern trip in 1963. They only scouted him once.

This very personable and articulate 29-year-old places a high value on a college education. "For a boy starting out today," Fritz says, "he shouldn't sign right out of high school for anything under $50,000. I mean that. I know it sounds high, but just how many make it in baseball? And that college degree is so very important. After he's got some college in, it's different, easier to finish up, but right out of high school, he shouldn't sign for anything less than $50,000."

Peterson admits that life in pro baseball has its problems ("My wife and I have moved 22 times in the past six years") and when asked what he would do to the season if he were the commissioner, he unhesitatingly said, "Start the season around May 1 and end it around Labor Day. Look at the league races this year. Fans are starting to lose interest, and football season is coming."

"But," he quickly added, "the season doesn't seem long enough when you're trying to catch a Baltimore or win 20 games."

Life on the road can be tedious so Fritz is learning how to play the accordion. "There are just so many movies you can see and television isn't much in the afternoon so this helps pass the time. I'm not ready to give a concert but it's enjoyable."

His wife makes an occasional road trip, but she stayed in New Jersey while the Yankees visited Chicago and Kansas City.

Peterson, who says quite frankly that "New York is a nice place to visit but...," enjoys his off-season work at Northern Illinois University and also being close to Chicago so he can drive to the Stadium and watch the Black Hawks.

Once a fine amateur hockey player, Peterson still follows the game closely although the Yankees, for obvious reasons, told him to keep the skates and stick in the closet.

"No, I haven't switched as a fan to the New York Rangers," he says. "Not unless Chicago trades Bobby Hull."

Fritz Peterson has realized many of his goals, but he is still shooting for that World Series appearance and that 20-game victory season.

He likes the Yankees' chances. The Yankees like his chances.

Many people are talking about the new Yankees, the speed, the great arms, the enthusiasm. Perhaps the public wants, and baseball needs, this assurance of sempiternal excellence, this year-in, year-out devil figure or father figure, or whatever the Yankees in their years of dominance may have represented to those who watch ball games.

Yankee fans are excited. While Peterson was sitting in the dugout an hour before game time at White Sox Park, a fan came out on the field. He looked in the dugout, reached for Peterson's hand, and said:

"You're Peterson, aren't you? Great job, Fritz, great job. You're doing just fine. I've been a Yankee fan for many years; going back to the Joe McCarthy days, and this Yankee team looks good, young, fast. I like what you're doing, Fritz. Keep it up!"

He's not alone. The New York Yankees also like what Fritz Peterson is doing.

Photos By Jay Needleman

"MY BROTHER IS a big leaguer," is what nine-year-old Scotty Peterson can tell his friends in Crystal Lake. Scotty and dad Fred J. Peterson visited with the All-Star pitcher over the weekend as the New York Yankees played Chicago in White Sox Park.

"THIS IS ALL kind of hard to believe at times," Yankee pitcher Fritz Peterson tells Paddock Sports Editor Bob Frisk. "I always wanted to play baseball. My dad helped me but never pushed me into the game. He let me do what I wanted. I did the pushing."

A VALUED POSSESSION, the autograph of a major league player, Fritz Peterson, who remembers how much he wanted to be a baseball player when he was a boy in Mount Prospect, signs autographs for the young fans at White Sox Park.

It's Illinois Range In Tuesday Action

The Tuesday division of Mount Prospect Twilight Golf League closed the 1970 season this week with one of the wildest finishes experienced in recent years.

Kruse's Tavern, Paddock Tournament champion, fighting for its life and cursed with the fatal Paddock jinx, finally broke its three-week losing streak with a creditable 6½-3½ victory over league-leading Keefer's Pharmacy.

This didn't settle much because the points won by both contenders totaled exactly enough to throw them into a tie with 94½ points each and conversations were heard regarding a possible 18-hole play-off on Sunday. This talk proved to be quite premature because second-place Illinois Range and Geo. L. Busse were still struggling through the growing darkness and as the score cards were being turned in it began to develop that Illinois Range could still come in as a dark horse victor.

Gene Raasch, Busse "A" player, was first with a two-point victory over Illinois Range's Andy Raab. But then Busse's lost the next two matches; one by forfeit. Everything now rode on the final match. At last, out of the dusk, forced to quit at the end of eight holes, came the final two contestants, Illinois Range's Bill Skibbe and Busse's Capt. George Laubenhimer.

After the usual wrangling over how to score an eight-hole match the secretary declared that Skibbe had won, 1½-½, giving Illinois Range the match, 7-3, and a grand total of 96 points.

That was it! Illinois Range became the Tuesday division champion by half-a-point and Kruse's and Keefer's had to settle for a tie for second place.

The members of the winning Illinois Range team were Andy Raab, Kerry LeMay, Chuck Pellino, Bill Skibbe and Jim Kuttill.

Illinois Range had led the league for the first six nights of the season being displaced on June 16 by George L. Busse & Co. who, ironically were their victims in the final match. George L. Busse held the league for only one season and were then displaced by Kruse's Tavern who held it for seven weeks during which period they won the Paddock Tournament.

In other final night matches, Carter Music Shop flattened Kirchhoff Insurance 6-4, Mount Prospect State Bank short-circuited Mount Prospect Electric Construction Co. 7-3, Licht's Paint shel-lacked Busse-Biermann Hardware 7-3, and Louie's Barber Shop trimmed Striking Lanes 8-2, popping Striking Lanes back into the cellar, permanently.

Rudy Recker of Louie's Barber Shop came out of semi-retirement to win both low gross and low net honors with a 39 gross 39 net over the second nine.

Birdies were reported by G. Kratsch No. 1, W. Lyman No. 1, V. Bowen No. 5, R. Recker No. 18, D. Snyder No. 15 and Roland Miller No. 15.

Grove Swimmers Place In AAU

Elk Grove Park District swimmers participating in the AAU Swim Meet in Mayor Daley's Chicago-Lakefront Festival held at Portage Park returned to the village with a handful of medals.

Swimming in the 10-under age group was Lisa Currier who won a medal for a 7th place in the 50M back and 50M free. Lisa also won a 4th place medal in the 50M fly.

Tim Bird brought home three medals for the 10-under boys winning a 3rd place medal in each event: 50M back, 50M fly and 50M breast. Also swimming for the 10-under boys Earl Keegan won a 6th place medal in the 50M fly.

The two swimmers entered in the 11-12 year old division, Steve Banach received a medal for his eighth place win the 50M back. Sharon Bird brought home a 4th place medal for the 50M fly.

This meet ends the National AAU competition for outdoor swimming season. The indoor swimming events for the National AAU will begin in October.

Classic Officers

John Koenig was named president of the Paddock Classic Traveling League last Saturday at the kickoff sweepster. George White will serve as vice president for 1970-71 and Robert Krusch will be secretary-treasurer.

Bowlers Needed

Bowlers are needed for the Ten-Pin Keglers Paddlers Ladies Bowling League which bowls every Thursday at 12:30 at Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights.

The league starts Sept. 10. Anyone interested should call CL 8-8094.

Cowboys On The Run

The Dallas Cowboys led the NFL in team rushing yards in 1969 with 2,276. Surprisingly, the Los Angeles Rams had the worst rushing record, gaining only 1,413. The Bears were second in the league with 2,078.

Roman Meal Ticket

The longest pass play in 1969 was thrown by Roman Gabriel of the Rams to Wendell Tucker for touchdown against San Francisco on Nov. 9. The play was the first of the game from scrimmage.

Cubs Win In Bensenville

The Bensenville Boys Athletic Association softball Minor League season for boys 8-10 years old was recently completed, with the Cubs winning the championship. The winners were managed by Bob Anderson and coached by Jim Herdegen and Don Bielick.

It was an exciting finish to the season, as the Cubs and Jets were tied for first place with 10-1 records entering the final game. The Cubs won 17-7 for the title. Playing for the first time in the league for the Cubs were Jim Bielick, Mark Podraza, Felipe Martinez, Frank Stout, Frank Ukleja, Scott Herman and Ron Dutko.

Tom Moran led the team in batting and was outstanding at first base. Jim Herdegen sparkled at second base. Jim Bielick played well at third base. Combining to pitch the team to its 11 wins were Brian Anderson, who led the team in home runs, and Mark Podraza. The two also alternated at shortstop.

Left field was covered by Kurt Koelsch. Mike Lettieri handled the catcher and outfield positions well.

Other managers in the league were Russ Ribando, Jets; Clint Leathers, Owls; Ken Kaufman, Sox; Don McKittrick, Mets; and Bob Lulik, Cards.

Sizeable Crowd Watches Tourney

Well over 300 spectators were treated to a fine evening of baseball last Friday night at Lions Park as the First Annual Park District Little League Tournament was held between the Waycunden area and Mount Prospect Little Leagues.

The first game of the evening found a 2-2 tie between the 9-10 year old groups from each association. The Waycunden Minors picked up an early two run lead in the second inning on a homerun by Matt Vandenberg — scoring Jeff Marunaki. Batteries for Waycunden were Steve Chronick and Larry Dahl and were backed up by double play from Dahl for Chronick to Don Seefeldt.

Mount Prospect minor were held to three hits until scoring two runs in the fifth inning by Jon Apuzzo and John Lozarski. A defensive stand out for Mt Prospect was Mike Jenning playing 2nd base who executed a double play with first baseman Dan Ayres.

In the 11-12 year old game, Mt. Prospect picked up an early three-run lead and held on for a 5-2 win. The first three runs were scored from a homerun by George Micevich with Gary Grossi and Tim Davies on base. Waycunden picked up their runs from John Skruban, Bill Kondradt and Ray Michaelson.

Mount Prospect put the game away with two runs in the sixth inning by Jay Loos and Jim Petran. Pitchers for Waycunden were Tom Lunak and Craig Nelson with Mount Prospect using four pitchers Mark Russo, Bob Strasser, Petran and Gary Grossi.

The Pony League game with 13-14 year olds playing found Mount Prospect again on top with a 5-3 score. Mount Prospect picked up their runs on scores from Jim Horan (two), Jim Mille (two) and Dave Quillen. Mount Prospect's pitching accounted for eight strikeouts. Waycunden area pitchers recorded a total of nine strikeouts but five defensive errors made the difference.

Waycunden picked up runs from Bob Hahn, Dave Matze and Doug Werteprey. Waycunden mounted a threat in the bottom of the seventh with tying run on first base then Mount Prospect pitcher settled down to strike out the last batter.

The Mount Prospect Park District sponsored the tournament to offer an evening of baseball between the two little league associations both within park district boundaries. Plans are being laid to offer this tournament every year.

The park district extends congratulations to the Waycunden Area and Mount Prospect Little League managers, coaches and players for the fine style of ball played and the outstanding games presented to the public.

Who's Gains Playoff Spot

Finishing touches were applied to the Monday Night Softball League in Mount Prospect as the Who's came up with a 9-2 win over the Wad Squad in their playoff game to place the Who's in fourth place and a berth in the post-season tournament.

The Who's came up with six runs in the fifth inning on triples by Johnson and Felbo and a homer by Balinsky.

The Tuesday Night League found Shakey's Pizza continuing their winning streak with a 5-3 win over Annen & Busse. Shakey's Pizza continuing their winning streak with a 5-3 win over Annen & Busse. Shakey's Pizza picked up four needed runs in the fifth inning to put the game away. Runs scored on homers by Varville and O'Connor. The win now puts Shakey's Pizza record at 13-0 for the season with one league game to go.

Other games found Vail Lounge holding Tomaso's Pharmacy scoreless in the last two innings to hold out for a 7-5 win. Gibson picked up a homer for Vail Lounge with Wendt getting Tomaso's only homer.

Goodyear picked up two runs in the last inning to record their 10-9 win over Jake's Pizza. Toessl was the winning pitcher being helped out by a homer from Becker. Ye Old Town and V&G Printers game was rained out.

Everything turned out in favor of Waycunden Wednesday as they knocked off the top team the Raiders 12-9 and thus assured themselves of a place in the tournament. Getting big hits for Waycunden was Kiber and Dowejo both with homers. Liker picked up 2 homers one in the 3rd and one in the 5th with Dowejo getting his in the 2nd inning.

The Spoilers took over sole possession of 1st place with a 16-10 win over the Mount Prospect Auto Wash. Dan Penkola picked up a homer for the Spoilers and also went 3 for 4. Stahake and Harris both homered for Mount Prospect Auto Wash.

The Ten Spots took it on the nose with a 24-6 by the Lundstrom's Nursery. Lundstroms managed to collect runs from every player with Winkelman scoring 4 times on 4 hits and Lynar crossing the plate 4 times. The Ten Spots picked up homers from Humday and Mintrup but couldn't handle the explosive power of Lundstroms.

Some Other Place Pub came up with a late inning splurge as they handed Wayne's Pizza a 4-1 setback. Wayne's Pizza scored one run in the 1st but were held scoreless for the rest of the game. Some Other Place Pub scored on three hits in the 5th inning, one triple by

124 SPORT COUPE

The Fiat 124 Sport Coupe. There are people who expect just one thing from an imported car. Transportation. Italian car-makers feel that an automobile should offer much more. Their concept of transportation is embodied in machines like Ferrari, Maserati, Lancia, and Fiat. Standard equipment includes items like 4-speed (5-optional) synchromesh gearboxes, twin overhead cams, radial ply tires, and electronic tachometers. To a company like Fiat, how you get there should be just as exciting as where you're going.

Men's Classic To Open At Elk Grove

The 32-week regular season of the Paddock Classic Traveling League gets underway Saturday evening at 6:30 at Elk Grove Bowl.

During the course of the long season, which lasts until April, Uncle Andy's Cow Palace will be defending its title which was won in an excitement-filled rolloff last spring against Snack Time Restaurant. That championship contest was about as close as possible, going down to the last frame.

The league is one of the finest amateur bowling loops in the Chicago area, with most averages lying between 180 and 200.

Opening-night matches will be Buick-In-Evanston vs. Elk Grove Bowl, Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant at the Flying Carpet Motor Inn vs. Hoffman Lanes, Uncle Andy's Cow Palace vs. Gaare Oil and International Iron Works vs. Morton Pontiac.

The men warmed up for Saturday's kickoff with a sweeper last Saturday evening. Scores were impressive for the first outing of the season, with three teams totalling better than 2900.

Results in the opening sweeper, of course, will not count in league standings. The purpose is for new teammates to get acquainted and for everyone to work out the kinks and get back in the groove after summer vacations.

Morton Pontiac defeated Hoffman Lanes 6-1, Uncle Andy's topped International Iron Works 5-2, Buick-In-Evanston downed Elk Grove 5-2 and Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant edged Gaare Oil 4-3.

The highest-scoring match overall was Morton's 6-1 win over Hoffman. Morton had the highest team series of the night, a very impressive 2966, to Hoffman's fine 2855 total. The match had four 600 series as the bowlers were already at mid-season form. For Hoffman, Wally Lefthouse logged a 449 and Randy Aubert 633. For Morton, Bill Smith had 632 and Mike Wagner 607.

Uncle Andy's looked ready to pick up where they left off last year with a fine 2914 total in their win over International Iron Works. Joe Simonis scored 616 for the winners and Bob Peterson had 593. The Iron team's Lobby Lobinsky was high for the match with 638 and Bob Rogers recorded a 595.

Buick-In-Evanston had the second-highest team total for the night, 2932, in whipping Elk Grove. For the winners, Rich Sygel had 623, Fred Hansen 600 and Mike Truitt 599. For Elk Grove, Ken Heise checked in with 601, Mike Gogliatti with 596 and Nottenstrom with 590.

In the closest match, with only three pins difference in the final team series, Aladdin's Lamp edged Gaare Oil. High-end series of the match was Bill Harris' 595 for Aladdin's.

Men's 16-Inch Softball Standings

Delta, Eddie's Lounge, Vail Lounge and Tower Packaging are leading their leagues in the Arlington Heights Park District Men's Baseball standings as of Aug. 21.

Monday night league standings are Delta, 18-2; Eclipse Fence, 10-2; Michaels Golden Eagle, 9-3; Barnaby's, 8-4;

Problem Play Is Highly Acclaimed

by WILLIAM VERIGAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — "You always love the baby most that doesn't turn out quite right," Robert Anderson said, settling deeper into the cushions of the overstuffed sofa in his Sutton Place apartment.

most proudly recalling the difficult years of his problem-child play, "I Never Sang for my Father."

There were years when he wondered if it would ever be produced, and then after it opened on Broadway it got nearly unanimous raves from the critics.

"We sat in front of the television set in Sardi's," Anderson said "and it looked like we had the biggest hit of the season. If I had written those reviews myself, I'd probably have been more modest. But then the New York Times came out with Clive Barnes' review, and he didn't like it at all."

And in the theater, the New York Times review usually means success or failure.

"I know Mr. Barnes doesn't relish his power," Anderson said, "but it's one of the facts we must live with in the theater. We struggled to keep the play alive for 125 performances and then had to close."

But this year has seen a revival of "I Never Sang for my Father" with a highly acclaimed performance in London and the filming of the movie version with Melvyn Douglas, Gene Hackman and Estelle Parsons. The film was scheduled to be released this summer, but a Columbia executive explained, "It has so much Academy Award potential we decided to wait until closer to the balloting."

The story of "I Never Sang for my Father" is about a grown son torn between a desire to pursue his own ambitions and a feeling of responsibility toward an insensitive father.

"It's a very personal play," Anderson said, "and certainly the father in the play is not unlike my own father in many ways. My father was a dead end kid, an orphan at the age of nine who supported his sister and brother by learning typing when the typewriter was still a new invention. He became a self-made man and always wanted his son to be a professor."

"He loved 'Tea and Sympathy' when he saw it, and told me it was all very interesting and very exciting but wondered where it was going to lead me. I could never make him believe that writing was my occupation."

When Anderson saw a production of "I Never Sang" in Paris after the New York opening, he recalled that he was appalled.

"I sat there wondering why they were doing everything wrong," he said. "Didn't they know that actress should have on a blue dress? Why didn't that actor enter from the right side? I realized then how personal the play was."

"I was watching the play on three levels. First I was remembering my father and relating the play to him. Then I was recalling how I'd visualized the play when I was writing it, and finally I was relating it to the New York production. I had to watch it quite a few times before I could accept it, and then I enjoyed it."

England Is Seen As 'Apathetic'

by JOHN J. MEEHAN

LONDON (UPI)—Mick Jagger, the gyrating lead singer of the Rolling Stones, wishes England were as swinging as it is reputed to be. Like the United States, for instance.

"England's totally apathetic," he said in an interview. "That's why everything goes off peacefully. Nothing happens, man. I don't want any bloodbaths here, but America's a very vibrant society. You get all kinds of extremes. That's why people hate America, or love it, or why things come out of it which are good and bad. That's not true here."

"YOU HAVE SUCH extremes in America that you're going to get clashes between them. . . . America is more extreme and it's more vociferous and it's more violent and it's more physical and it's more explosive. It's all those things. It's fantastically more varied. Here, you don't get peace. You get apathy. It drives me crazy."

Jagger would like to stir England up, but doesn't know how.

"I have a certain love for it because I was born here," he said, "and I want to make it better if I can. But God knows how. I've not met many people who want to stir it up. We could do with some stirring up. It's been too long now asleep."

Jagger delivered himself of these thoughts in his office atop three flights of splintered wooden stairs at 46A Maddox Street in central London. It was his first extended discussion with a reporter since he and the Stones returned at the end of 1969 from a U.S. tour that included a riot when the group gave a free concert at Altamont, Calif. Hell's Angels went on a rampage at the concert with lead-tipped pool cues.

The Altamont affair has been described as a "reverse" of the love and peace generated at the massive Woodstock, N.Y., rock festival, but Jagger doesn't buy that.

"That's just a bit of clever intellectualizing," he said. "I don't mind talking about Altamont at all, but what I do dislike is talking about Altamont and saying, 'Yeah, Altamont was this,' and sum up Altamont in three words. 'I can't, you know. I'm too emotionally involved in it and also intellectually involved at this stage. I don't know what it's got to do with Woodstock. I don't think it's got much to do with it.'"

JAGER CLAIMS rock artists and recording companies make too much money today.

"I think the artists make too much money. I think that the record company makes too much money. I don't like the huge corporations that record companies have become, and their obvious political affiliations."

"I think that what hangs a lot of American kids up is the fact that they go in and buy a record, you know, which is part of their way of thinking, expresses an opinion as well as music to them, is part of their life style. The company which sells a million of these records makes X million dollars and donates a large amount to a rightwing organization, or spends two million dollars developing some kind of new missile, electronic missile device. Well, I think quite rightly, the kids want to separate themselves from that kind of business."

What would he suggest? Primary Consideration

"RIGHT NOW there's no way," Jagger said. "Unfortunately. And I don't think it's up to the musicians to think of the way. I think they should cooperate with people that do. After all, the first primary consideration is making music and they should stick to it. Otherwise they're going to dissipate themselves too much. I think it's up to other people who've got the organizing ability to be able to create a different outlet so that these people are cut out."

Mick Jagger has been called many things by many people. How, the reporter wanted to know, would Mick Jagger describe Mick Jagger? The question surprised him only momentarily, then he smiled broadly and said:

"I think he's a bit of a drag most of the time. I don't really feel he has much to say, not enough of the right things, you know. He should really get on with it and not talk about it too much."

We let him get on with it.

Moving Expenses Can Be Deducted

The Federal Tax Reform Act of 1969 offers some good news to the person who changes his address this year because he has been transferred to a new location by his employer or has taken a new job elsewhere.

For the first time, the federal income taxpayer will be allowed to claim most, if not all, of his moving expenses, or move-related expenses, as deductions when figuring his income tax for 1970, according to the Illinois State Bar Association.

The move must result from a change in the location of the taxpayer's principal place of work to a point at least 50 miles farther away from his home than his old job location. And the taxpayer must move his home in full faith that he will be employed at the new location, or its vicinity, for at least 39 weeks out of the first 12 months following the move.

If those conditions exist, the new tax law allows the taxpayer to claim deductions for moving expenses in the following five categories:

Actual cost of moving household goods and personal effects.

Traveling expenses of the taxpayer and his family from their old residence to the new one, including meals, lodging and, if travel is by automobile, a 5-cent-per-mile transportation allowance plus tolls and parking fees.

Pre-move house hunting trips.

Temporary living expenses at the new job location (up to 30 days).

Expenses of selling, purchase or lease of a residence.

There is no limit to deductions which may be claimed for legitimate expenses under the first two categories: the actual household goods moving costs and costs of transporting the family to the new location. However, deductions for pre-move house hunting trips and temporary living expenses at the new location are limited to a combined total of $1,000.

The limit on deductions associated with the sale of one home and purchase or lease of another is $2,500 less the amount claimed for house hunting and temporary living expenses.

According to ISBA, no deductions were allowed under the old law for pre-move house hunting expenses, temporary living expenses at the new location or costs of selling one house and acquiring another one.

The more liberal income tax deductions for moving expenses became effective with federal tax returns for 1970. Under the new law, if a new employee or transferred employee is reimbursed by the employer for all or any of his moving expenses, he must report the amount of such reimbursement in his tax return and then take the allowable deductions.

Section 217 of the Tax Reform Act also provides, for the first time, for moving expense deductions by self-employed individuals as well as by employees. Self-employed persons may qualify for the same deductions provided they perform personal services — that is, put forth a personal effort — on a full-time basis, either as a sole proprietor or partner in a business.

To qualify for the deductions, the self-employed person must reasonably believe, at the time of the move, that his business will require him to be at the new location for at least 78 weeks during the first two years following the move of which 39 weeks must be within the first 12 months.

INVITATION

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner

You are cordially invited to visit our coffee bar at our offices for free coffee and sweet rolls any time between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

Here you will see with your own eyes the workings of an experienced heating and air conditioning shop with all the various trades operating under one roof, with all the necessary tools and equipment to do your work in the most professional manner to protect your investment for years to come.

Today the home owner is a sophisticated and discerning buyer, and he always takes at least two or more estimates. THAT IS NOT ENOUGH. The buyer should know his contractor and inspect his place of business to be able to decide if this contractor is capable of doing or fulfilling his contract in the proper manner.

THEREFORE, Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner, to be a good judge you must get all of the facts and determine the background and the capabilities of the contractor who is estimating your work, then when satisfied, place your order. Please call for free estimate.

Very truly yours,

Orval Trail New Head Of Dist. 11

Medinah Dist. 11 School Board formally announced the appointment of Orval Lee Trail as new superintendent for the district Thursday at a special luncheon for new teachers.

Trail was hired by the board Monday night, in time for the beginning of school events. He replaces Richard B. Davis who resigned as superintendent last month.

Formerly supt. of Unit Dist. 205 in Galesburg, Trail said he considered being superintendent of Medinah Dist. 11 "a challenge because it is a growing district."

The district he headed for six years in Galesburg, in west central Illinois, was considerably larger than Dist. 11. Trail supervised a staff of 450 teachers and a student body of 8,600 at Dist. 205.

HE SAID HE "welcomed the opportunity for closer personal relationships with his staff at Medinah," adding that the Western suburbs "are a dynamic and exciting area in the field of education."

Although he has been involved in building programs, Trail said he has never been in a district which was as fast growing as Medinah.

He said he would approach "every avenue of resource" to help solve the problems the district will be facing.

"I am impressed with the board of education, and understand the parents of the community are concerned about their schools and willing to become involved, and I've been told the staff is dedicated," Trail said.

Orval Lee Trail

TRAILS, WHO BEGAN his career in education as an elementary school teacher in Iowa, said "elementary education — its total overall program is one of the most important aspects in a child's life. It is a time when attitudes and habits are formed and ingrained into children. The drop-out attitude is formed in this stage of a child's life."

He lists his efforts at individualized teaching programs, and guidance for elementary students among his most important achievements at Galesburg, and believes children must not only be trained in the basic skills but also in forming positive attitudes and study habits.

Among his goals are to provide long-range planning for the district and promote open lines of two-way communication between the board and the staff as well as the school and the community.

CURRENTLY RESIDING in Galesburg, Trail said he will be looking for a home in the area.

Trail, 48, is married and has four children. He has been a superintendent of schools for 22 years and before that a high school principal for two years.

He has earned education degrees from Waldorf College, Forest City, and the University of Dubuque, both in Iowa.

In 1946 Trail earned his Bachelors Degree from the University of Dubuque. He received his Masters Degree from the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, in 1950 and his Doctorate Degree from Colorado State College, Greeley, in 1968.

He is a member of several national and state professional educational associations and has held office in several local professional groups in Galesburg.

Sink Or Swim For Lawyers

It will be sink or swim for two Roselle attorneys Saturday as they sit in a special dunk tank at the carnival sponsored by COPE (Concerned Parents of Diabetic Children).

Jack Wagborne and Ed Mraz have agreed to sit in the dunk tank on the carnival grounds at Scout Park in Roselle, at 2:30 p.m.

The carnival, which began Wednesday continues through Sunday. McDermott Amusements have been contracted to provide rides and games. It will begin tonight at 6 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Mary Sodermark, Roselle, president of COPE said industry, business and individuals have contributed merchandise and money for the carnival.

The most recent contributions were received from The Big Wheel, a new store in Roselle which donated a bicycle and Shirl's Drive-In, which donated various food seasonings.

The Equal Rights Fight --Part 2

PREPARING FOR SOME unique and interesting experiences in her first year of teaching, Karen Mensching listens attentively at the teacher institute sponsored by Itasca's St. Luke Lutheran Church.

Citizens Group Is Active

by LOIS KOCH

Who says senior citizens are out of it?

The 55-member Itasca Senior Citizens Organization, now under the direction of the park district, has proved that persons do not have to stop enjoying life once they reach the age of 65.

The group has participated in many activities showing they too can have as much fun and do as much as those of the younger set.

Trips have been made to such places as Shady Lane Theater, for lunch and a play, Honey Bear Farm, for a tour of the numerous novelty stores, and Potawatomi Park, for an all-day picnic. Guest speakers have appeared at many of their meetings lecturing on different topics, including safe driving tips and the operation of social security and medicare programs.

YOUTH ORGANIZATIONS and church groups have sponsored banquets and skits, and members of the organization themselves have shown films and slides of their individual vacations and hobbies — all to provide an interesting pastime for these older persons.

At Christmas, the group celebrates the birth of the organization, which was Dec. 12, 1963. George Douglas, one of the original members, commented that it is very rare for anyone to miss the occasion.

Activities are also coordinated with other senior citizen groups in the area, broadening their scope of entertainment and involvement. For example, two members are presently on a European tour with those from the Des Plaines senior citizens group. An Hawaiian excursion is planned for October.

Those attending the various trips and tours pay their own way, with three bus trips being provided by the park district. Collections also are taken at the meetings to pay for extra items such as refreshments and other materials.

BEING A PART of this group means quite a bit to its members. The many hours they have spent and friendships they have made have become an important part of their lives.

"Life at home can get pretty monotonous and boring. Being a part of the group fills in a lot of this time," Reese Lewis, one of the members, said.

They thoroughly enjoy their meetings and get-togethers, as can be seen by looking at attendance records. "We look forward to our gatherings, because we always have a good time," Frank Douglas said.

"We have such a good time that rain, sleet or snow can't stop us. Even if the weather is bad, we make it somehow," his wife added.

IF SOMEONE CANNOT drive or has no transportation, other members who do see to it that arrangements are made. "We do a good job of helping each other," she commented.

The organization is somewhat smaller than most of the members would like. According to Mrs. Douglas, "Many elderly persons don't want to join, because then they would be admitting they were old."

She also added that there could be more men in the group, but that it is rather difficult to get them to join.

Even though they would like more participants, the existing group does very well on its own. Two members have already been named as "Senior Citizen of the Year" for the Chicagoland area. Louis Stolley was among 52 selected in 1965, and Titus Medendorf received the honor in 1966.

BUSINESS MEETINGS are held every second Wednesday at the First Presbyterian Church on Elm Street. Each month a newsletter is circulated with information about birthdays during the month, past and coming events and other items of interest. Scrapbooks are also kept containing such things as snapshots and cards on highlights of the club's history.

The group was sponsored by the Itasca Women's Club for five years before the park district took it over about a year ago. Mrs. Helen Smith, a member of the women's club, acts as chairman of the group, working with the director, June Landmeier, who is hired by the park district.

For its 55 participants, the organization provides a source of enjoyment, giving them a sense of belonging and enjoyment in a world that often pushes them aside. It has added extra meaning to their lives . . . a feeling most of them would not give up for anything.

New Staff Welcomed

Medinah Dist. 11 superintendent Orval Lee Trail wasn't the only unfamiliar face Thursday at a special luncheon for new teachers at Nordic Hills Country Club.

Trail's appearance at the luncheon was his first official function as superintendent of Dist. 11.

He and the board members welcomed 12 new teachers to the district. Teaching a new section of grade 8 at North School will be Michael Lyon.

New teachers at the South School will be Judith Biekert, grade six, Virginia Kindelin, grade four, Betsy Lucas, grade four, Ann Fleiss, grade two and Marcia Peterson, kindergarten. Joan Friesal has been transferred from the North School and will teach grade five at the South School.

Special teachers for the district are Alice Case, art, Barbara Cohen, physical education, Margo Johnston, special education, Jane Patrick, remedial reading and Phillip Weinberg, instrumental music.

German Classes Signup Starts

Registration for evening German language classes for children ages 4 to 16 will be held through Sept. 11 at the Indian Trail Junior High School, Kennedy Drive and Army Trail Road in Addison.

Classes will begin at 6 p.m. on Sept. 11, at the school.

This program also is open to all children living in communities surrounding Addison, with a total enrollment of 200 being accepted.

Each year eight classes, with a maximum of 25 students per class, are conducted. So far, more than 1,000 in the Addison area have attended the classes.

For further information, call Eleanor Rust, 773-0880.

Church Secertary Is Key To Information

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

If Medinah had a village hall, Marion Bray would probably be the best qualified person for village clerk. Mrs. Bray, an Itasca resident, is the secretary at the Medinah Baptist Church. Her job covers many areas and requires many talents among them answering phone calls and supplying puzzled persons with information about Medinah.

"Medinah doesn't have a village hall and the church seems to receive all kinds of calls that would normally be directed to such a place," Mrs. Bray explains.

"I've had calls from people wanting to know just where Medinah is because they can't find it on the map. Others ask about names and addresses of residents. I help out when I can and because I know many of the people in the area I can give the answers," she said.

PEOPLE INQUIRING about the area are considered a few of the lighter calls by Mrs. Bray. She also receives calls from people "with deep problems and in need of guidance."

Mrs. Bray looks at her entire job at the church as a "special ministry."

Usually one of the church's three pastors provides counsel and advice to people seeking it. However, Mrs. Bray has taken over when she has received calls from persons needing immediate attention.

Being a church secretary, Mrs. Bray is sometimes called upon to perform unusual acts of charity, such as the time an elderly church member dialed Mrs. Bray and asked her if she would bring a cup of laundry detergent to her home the next day.

When she began her job in 1964, Mrs. Bray's duties were strictly secretarial. She "did what I was told." The church and its membership has grown so that many duties which were formerly done by Pastor Donald Hamman are now her responsibility.

With stencils and a specially illuminated art platform called a scope, Mrs. Bray magically transforms scribbled scraps of notes into attractive church bulletins and promotional pamphlets. She uses her acquired editing abilities each year when she coordinates pertinent information for the church's annual business report.

AS SUPERVISOR of the church's master calendar, it also is Mrs. Bray's job to prevent any of the numerous groups from colliding head on in the church gym.

All this is done in addition to her "normal general secretarial duties at the church," Mrs. Bray said.

Mrs. Bray was hired because of her attention to and fondness for detail. When she does a task she leaves nothing undone. She has help, however, from a little book that is referred to as "Marion's Manual."

The small black book contains valuable information about church procedures and activities, listing steps followed in various ceremonies and on different occasions.

Mrs. Bray has been composing the book ever since she started working at the church. Its value was duly appreciated by her boss, Rev. Hamman, who has asked her to make three additional copies for himself and his two assistants.

Most Roselle residents will soon face an increase in water and sewer rates. However, a new rate schedule now being prepared by the village attorney abolishes minimum water and sewer charges and could decrease rates for light users.

"Some people could pay a bill as low as $1.60," Roselle Trustee Ramon Berg said Monday night as the village board considered the schedule.

Under the present schedule, residents are billed a minimum charge of $3 for water and $5 for sewer during a three month billing period regardless of the amount used.

The new schedule would eliminate these charges. Residents will still pay a certain amount for every 1,000 gallons of water used. The amount per 1,000 gallons, which is determined by the total amount used, has been increased.

People using between 1,000 and 10,000 gallons of water during a billing period will be charged 60 cents per 1,000 gallons. They are now paying 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

The charge per 1,000 gallons for people using between 11,000 and 20,000 gallons would be 50 cents and for people using between 20,000 and 40,000 gallons 40 cents.

People using over 40,000 gallons of water would be charged 35 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Sewer rates, also based on the amount of water used, have been increased along a similar sliding scale.

Residents using between 1,000 and 5,000 gallons are currently charged for 5,000 gallons at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Under the proposed schedule residents would be charged $1 per 1,000 gallons. Residents using between 6,000 and 10,000 gallons of water for sewer service will be charged 50 cents per 1,000 gallons. Those using between 11,000 and 20,000 gallons of water will be charged 25 cents per 1,000 gallons and those using over 20,000 gallons will be charged 15 cents per 1,000 gallons.

"THE NEW RATES will help many retired citizens and widows who use little amounts of water," Mrs. Helen Benhart, a clerk at the village hall, explained.

Rate increases were needed to put the water and sewer operating on a cash basis, according to trustees who noted the last sewer rate increase was in 1962 and the last water rate increase was in 1959.

MARION BRAY never knows what the next phone call will bring. The secretary at the Medinah Baptist Church could easily qualify for village clerk, if Medinah had a village hall.

Sewer Line Controversy Irks Residents

Some 25 residents of Suncrest Highlands in Bloomingdale spurred a heated debate over sewer disconnections Wednesday night during the village board meeting.

The residents expressed opposition to having to disconnect their sewer lines in accordance with provisions in a suit filed against the village last fall by state Atty. Gen. William Scott.

John Noyerhofer, 144 Warren Ave. asked if the state is actually demanding the disconnection, or if it is simply the choice of the board. According to Noyerhofer, homeowners cannot afford the expense of having to disconnect and install sump pumps.

"Have you people investigated any alternatives to disconnection to rectify the problem, so that the burden would not lie with the individual homeowner," he asked.

BEFORE VILLAGE officials were able to reply, they were reminded by several other residents that all their comments were being taped.

Jack Waghorne, village attorney, answered saying state law prohibits the elimination of storm water into the sanitary sewer, and that the village has been instructed to resolve the problem.

Presently, storm water is flowing into the sanitary sewers, causing an overload to the treatment plant. Because of this, polluted water is bypassing into the streams in the area.

"The suit is pending in court until this fall, at which time action must have been taken on the problem," he said. Apparently if the action has not been taken by Oct. 1, the village would be sued.

NOYERHOFER ALSO asked if connection to the Hoffman Rosner 600,000-gallon capacity sewage treatment plant, to be completed this November, will alleviate pollution of the sanitary sewers.

"The new treatment plant will produce effluent satisfactory to the state's requirement," Waghorne answered. However, he added, this would not take care of the extra drainage water.

"We just don't see why the individual should have to pay. We suggest you don't make demands on the individual Suncrest homeowner," Noyerhofer said. The audience applauded following this statement.

"I agree it is an unreasonable burden, but we are being directed by the state," Waghorne replied. "One possible solution is a general tax of all the residents in Bloomingdale. We could pass a general obligation bond which would be added to the tax bill."

Noyerhofer also added that most other villages throughout the county and state are in a similar situation and are not doing anything about it.

"THIS IS TRUE," Waghorne answered, "but a suit has been filed against Bloomingdale, and we can't defend our position by saying everyone else is doing it."

"Scott has taken a vigorous stand on pollution, and such excuses won't be accepted."

Another resident, Pat Esposito, 134 Warren Ave., said she had contacted Scott's office, and referred to the suit as a "joke." She implied that the suit was not being taken seriously.

Waghorne said that if she would testify to this, he would take action to have the suit dismissed.

'Scavenger' Ordinance To Be Drawn Up

The Wood Dale Village Council recently instructed Village Attorney Sam LaSusa to draw up a contractors scavenger ordinance requiring a $250 fee for scavengers to operate in the village.

John R. Adamson, village manager, recommended the $250 license fee for contract scavengers who would concentrate on hauling away construction materials in the village.

"As of now we have no control what that scavenger will charge a contractor in the village," said Dr. Ralph Madonna, village councilman.

Jerry Folker, village superintendent of sanitation, agreed with the recommended price and the ordinance.

"I think it is a very fair price," Folker said. "We've had people (in the village) who have paid out of their own pocket to have construction material hauled away."

The village sanitation department will not haul away sizeable construction material.

She also added that a representative in the office offered two alternative solutions to alleviating the problem, the construction of a holding tank or a water storage lagoon.

A request was made by Noyerhofer to hold a special meeting between the residents and the board to discuss the issue further.

"WE WOULD LIKE to meet with you, because the people here aren't going to go along with the disconnection. It is the majority's feeling that we would go to court, and we would like to save the village from embarrassment," he said. "I think this is a reasonable request. If we call a meeting I don't want to get into a fist fight, but would like to present the basic facts and discuss them," Village President Robert Meyers said.

He added that solving the pollution problem is going to cost money; the primary concern in the next decade will be controlling the environment.

You Can't Do Anything About Air Pollution.....Or Can You?

The problem: air pollution. But what do we do until we get it solved? Suffer?

Not at home if you have a Lennox Total Comfort System. A Total Comfort System is a ducted system that treats the air you live in. We take some of that "wonderful" outdoor air, clean it, filter it to eliminate dust, dirt and pollen and mix it with the circulating air in your home to give you a fresh supply four times an hour. And the entire system runs quietly... whisper-quiet... so that you are never aware of its functioning except through the comfort you feel.

Heating and cooling are provided at a central location and distributed gently throughout every room in the home. Temperatures remain constant no matter what the weather outside.

One central system supplies both heating and cooling; and it maintains strict control over the amount of moisture in the treated air, because proper humidity has a great deal to do with comfort indoors.

He was chosen to receive the award because of his "ceaseless and outstanding work with the youth of the community and to the association."

OFFICER GEORGE Best was presented with the Illinois Police Federation's Certificate of Commendation, for service beyond the call of duty.

The award was presented Tuesday night at the federations monthly meeting.

Best also received an appreciation award from the Bloomingdale Village Board at their meeting Wednesday night. It was offered for the part he played in solving the burglaries at the Bloomingdale Township Hall and Warrington's Hardware Store in Bloomingdale, earlier this month.

Last February he received his first appreciation award, making him the only member of the force to have earned two such awards.

Summer's Time For Vandalism

by JIM FULLER

Rocks, pop bottles and hard-boiled shoes are the weapons used by vandals to scar the village with smashed windshields, kicked-in doors and broken picture windows.

A rash of destructive mischief seems to break out in Addison just as school lets out for the summer and just before school begins in the fall.

According to the Addison Police Department's summary report of offenses, there were 39 acts of vandalism that occurred in June, but only 26 such incidents in July. But the month of August may again approach the peak figure.

The most recent outbreak was a series of 24 separate incidents which erupted during the weekend of Aug. 9. The destructive outburst included everything from car windshields being smashed with bricks to front lawns being torn up and eggs thrown at homes.

"Two weeks ago we had a rock thrown through our glass address sign, which costs $30," said Jerry Oberton, of 45 S. Wisconsin Ave. "The police told me I was the eighteenth victim to be vandalized that day."

LAST SUNDAY Oberton again became a victim, having the rear fender of his car smashed in with a large rock.

"The fella across the street has lived here a year and a half and was robbed twice," Oberton said. "And several doors down a neighbor had several beer cans thrown on his front lawn."

Due to the nature of the incidents, Oberton feels that young people are probably responsible, and sees the mischievous behavior as "sort of a last fling before summer is over."

"Many kids go through the summer and feel they haven't accomplished anything constructive," he said, "and so they act out their frustrations by committing destructive acts."

Oberton also feels that the reason vandalism has become such a problem is because cases that do come up are not being nailed shut in court.

"These kids go to court, and the judge slaps the back of their hand," he complained. "The police told me about an 18-year-old who had been to court 18 times, but had not spent one day in jail."

Oberton felt it would also help if parents would clamp down and if village curfews were enforced.

ONE LOCAL FAMILY, who asked not to be identified for fear of future vandalism, has had their car trunk kicked in, their garage door smeared with paint, and profanities scribbled on their sidewalk.

"Maybe it's just kids' pranks," the housewife said. "But I'm appalled that this can go on in a new, growing neighborhood such as ours."

According to Addison's police chief, Victor Maul, adequate lighting and citizen participation are the greatest deterrents to the mayhem caused by vandals.

"How many apartments dwellings have adequate lighting in their parking lots?" Maul asked. "We get calls from people who want to park in the street because there are no lights in the parking lot."

ACTUALLY, ADDISON has no ordinance that requires a developer to install lights in the rear lots of his apartment building.

Another problem is the lack of citizen participation. "Too many times citizens view acts of vandalism, but they don't want to get involved by reporting it," Maul explained.

Maul said it was difficult for the police to crack down on vandals because they usually have to have a place staked out before the act occurs in order to apprehend anybody. Also, the fact that kids today are so mobile.

"In 10 minutes they disappear and lose all identity," Maul said. "In 10 minutes the kids are over in Glen Ellyn."

Maul feels that discipline in the home must be reestablished. "The problem lies right under the dinner table," he said. "It lies with the fathers."

MAUL ALSO complained about the lack of parental supervision. "There are no parents in the home," he said. "The percentage of mothers working in Addison is very high (about 70 per cent), and the kids are free to roam the streets."

Police Chief Maul, together with the DuPage County state's attorney, participates in the "You and the Law" program, which was started about six years ago.

The program consists of speaking to kids at the junior high and high school level to inform them of what transpires at the juvenile court and in the jails, and making them cognizant of how a police record can hurt their futures.

Village Manager William Drury believes that people must try to understand the myriad of outlets their children need.

"The kids ought to have a chance to use their own imaginations," Drury said. "If a kid wants to play ball today he has to belong to a league, he has to schedule his membership three months in advance, and he has to have someone sponsor his uniform."

Drury also feels that we have to change our pattern of living so that both mother and father are not working.

"Parents should be more concerned with providing a home of affection rather than a home of materialism," he said. "People are too concerned with material things — whether they have two cars in the family and a color TV."

Drury said that there were some occasions when the mother had to work, such as when the father was ill. "Otherwise we should scale down our standard of living," he said.

Fricke Is Investment Officer At Title, Trust

Paul H. Fricke, 620 Villa Ave., Addison, has been appointed investment officer of Chicago Title and Trust Co., Chicago.

Fricke joined the company in August, 1969 as a security analyst. He received a B.S. degree from M.I.T. in 1961 and currently is enrolled at the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business, where he is engaged in a course of study leading to the M.B.A. degree.

Fire Drill Is Held

One hundred and twenty-five men attended a meeting of the West Suburban Firemen's Association hosted by the Addison Fire Department Aug. 20.

The association represents 51 fire departments. During the meeting a drill was conducted by Richard Schumacher, assistant chief of the Addison Fire Department.

Village Offices Closed Saturdays

The village of Addison offices will be closed tomorrow and Saturday, Sept. 5. Normal village office hours are from 8:30 a.m. to noon on Saturdays, and from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. during the week.

THE ADDISON FIRE Department is taking the wrench by the handle in assuming its new duty of maintaining all fire hydrants in the village. Here off-duty fireman

Richard Schumacher, assistant chief of the Addison Fire Department, checks the pressure of a fire hydrant in the industrial area.

Off-Duty Firemen To Maintain Hydrants

Paint it yellow, with a touch of red or green — at least this is the way it will be done by the Addison Fire Department now that they have assumed the duty of maintaining all village fire hydrants.

In accordance with a resolution approved by the village board last week, off-duty firemen will be employed to check the operation of each fire hydrant in the village. This includes cutting weeds and removing snow from around the hydrants, and painting, greasing, numbering and pressure testing all hydrants.

These duties were formerly performed by the village. However, any necessary repairs will continue to be handled by the public works department of the village.

Some of the hydrants already have been painted by the fire department

Eventually, all the hydrants will be painted yellow with red, green, or yellow paint used as a code to specify the size of the underground water main.

Hydrants with a red top are attached to a water main which is six inches or less in size. Hydrants with a green top are attached to an underground water main which is ten inches or larger in size. A solid yellow hydrant is attached to an eight inch water main.

Bond Repayment Is Revised

When you get down to the end of the $3 million bond issue needed for Randhurst you're talking about zero cot to the taxpayer.

Addison's Randhurst Public Improvement Program Committee Wednesday revised their $3 million bond repayment schedule so that Randhurst will cost the taxpayer nothing after 10 years of repayment.

The village will hold a referendum on Oct. 17 to seek approval of the sale of $3 million in bonds for improvements to village roads and storm drainage systems in lieu of the coming of Randhurst.

The total cost of the bond issue, including principle and interest, should amount to $4,385,000.

PREVIOUSLY THE village had planned to use 50 per cent of their sales tax revenue coming out of Randhurst to pay off $4 million of the total debt after 10 years, leaving the Addison taxpayer with a net cost of $885,500.

But the Randhurst committee revised the repayment schedule Wednesday, and the entire amount of $4,385,000 will be repaid through sales tax revenue.

"I am primarily concerned with selling this referendum to the people," said committee member Edward Cargill in recommending the revision. "Therefore I want to be able to say that there will be no overall tax to the taxpayer."

In another development, it was learned Wednesday that the Randhurst Corp. has shied away from 1974 as the year Addison can expect a return in sales tax revenues.

The first year the village can now expect a return from Randhurst has been set at 1975. This means that for the first five years the taxpayer will accept the burden of repaying the $3 million bond issue. Beginning in the sixth year sales tax revenue should be available.

14 Teachers Join Dist. 13

Fourteen new teachers will be joining the staff of the Bloomingdale School Dist. 13, Supt. Ralph Loeper has announced.

They are Jeannette Silva and Kathleen Freeburn, who will both be teaching kindergarten, Ann Rizzor, first grade, Frank Rutkowski, sixth grade, and Karen Hansen, seventh grade.

New instructors in specialized areas include Ellen Vogel and Terry Amlong, both in physical education, Roger Hummel, music, Ruth Johnson, learning disabilities, Susan Speas, speech, Marjorie Bodem, instructional materials, Marjorie Bristow, art, and Stephen Bloom, psychologist.

With these additions, the total teaching staff in the school system numbers 39.

financial consultant firm Howard W. Voss Association, Inc., has prepared a sample brochure which explains the referendum to the public.

The four types of improvements which are needed in Addison, according to the brochure, are the following: The widening of streets, including the addition of turning lanes and traffic control signals; the deepening and expansion of an existing natural storm water retention basin into a 30-acre lake south of the center to control flooding; the construction of a well, storage tanks and a booster station which are needed for the general area and will be constructed on land donated by Randhurst; and the construction of a sanitary sewer line needed to serve the general area, including the new center.

In considering other benefits, the brochure also states that based on the total 1969 tax rate of $5.665 for an Addison resident, the proposed Randhurst center, with a taxable value of $15 million, will pay $849,750 in property taxes. Added to this is the estimated $700,000 or more of sales tax revenue which Addison will receive each year.

THE COMMITTEE plans to have 11,000 copies of the informational brochure printed up and handed out at local organizational and public meetings.

At the present time the committee consists of six members, with village trustees Paul Paulikas acting as chairman. Other board members on the committee are Trustees Arthur Hurley Jr., Charles Washer, and Edward Cargill. Also on the committee is Cargill's wife, Sue, who will be in charge of graphics, and Arthur Naumann, a member of the Addison zoning commission.

The Randhurst committee will meet again on Wednesday, Sept. 2.

THE ADDISON PARK District's arts and crafts program drew 264 boys and girls ages 6 - 12 this summer.

Addison To Host Fall PTA Confab

"Target: DuPage Youth" will be the theme of this year's PTA Dist. 32 Fall Conference to be hosted by the Addison Council PTA Oct. 8.

The conference will be held at Addison Trail High School. Planning the conference are Mrs. Gordon McCarrell, exhibit chairman; Mrs. Herbert Fett, program booklet chairman; Mrs. Ralph Blust publicity chairman; and Mrs. John Wozniak, Addison Council PTA president and chairman of the conference.

He added that solving the pollution problem is going to cost money; the primary concern in the next decade will be controlling the environment.

You Can't Do Anything About Air Pollution....Or Can You?

The problem: air pollution. But what do we do until we get it solved? Suffer?

Not at home if you have a Lennox Total Comfort System. A Total Comfort System is a ducted system that treats the air you live in. We take some of that "wonderful" outdoor air, clean it, filter it to eliminate dust, dirt and pollen and mix it with the circulating air in your home to give you a fresh supply four times an hour. And the entire system runs quietly...so that you are never aware of its functioning except through the comfort you feel.

Heating and cooling are provided at a central location and distributed gently throughout every room in the home. Temperatures remain constant no matter what the weather outside.

One central system supplies both heating and cooling; and it maintains strict control over the amount of moisture in the treated air, because proper humidity has a great deal to do with comfort indoors.

OLD MELLON HOUSE at 128 S. Walnut in Wood Dale is still the topic of resident complaints. Hilbert Gehrke, village police commissioner, has tried to have the house condemned since 1965 but has not received the necessary support from the village council. Neighbors complain that it is an eyesore.

United District Being Considered

Plans for immediately moving toward a unit district by combining Bensenville and Wood Dale School districts were under consideration Tuesday night at a joint meeting of the Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 and Fenton High School Dist. 100 school boards.

Warren B. Carsens, Wood Dale Elementary School Dist. 7 superintendent, and several Dist. 7 board members attended Wednesday's meeting to propose the three districts move closer to unification by hiring Carsens to fill the superintendent's vacancy in Dist. 2 and 100.

The joint board meeting was scheduled for board members to hear presentations from three agencies regarding proposals for hiring a new superintendent.

If an agency were hired by the boards, it would be charged with finding a qualified person to fill the superintendent's position, which was vacated when Martin Zuckerman resigned last month.

ACCORDING TO Morton Wright, Dist. 100 board president and member of the Dist. 7 board, Carsens would serve all three boards in an effort to move closer to district unification.

"Everything must be done to make moves toward this unification as suggested in the Briner Report and the Fry Report (two feasibility studies of unit district development in Bensenville and Wood Dale)," Wright said.

Wright stressed the two boards had not decided on the unification proposal, but that hiring Carsens for Dist. 100 and 2 "is being considered."

"We must tie the districts together to provide better articulation," Wright said, adding "This would be a big hurdle toward unification."

THE BRINER AND Fry reports suggested the three school districts are not presently ready for district unification, but should be moving toward unification.

Fry listed several "impediments to change" which apparently exist in the two communities.

"While district reorganization is feasible, it does not appear judicious at this time," the Fry Report concluded. The report added, however, the managements of Dist. 2, 7, and 100 "should be prepared to move swiftly to re-evaluate district organization, and if feasible, implement reorganization" if several changes occur including strengthening the districts' bonding power.

"THERE HAS BEEN a change in the picture since the Fry Report," Carsens told the Register Thursday. "The report questioned the bonding power. However, the industrial potential is far greater in this area than it was a year ago. There are almost 1,000 acres of potential industrial land in Dist. 7 area.

"All three districts have experienced a slowdown in the growth rate which helps the bond capacity problem."

Carsens is scheduled to meet separately in executive session with the three boards during the next two weeks to discuss the feasibility of moving toward unification.

In the meantime, the Dist. 2 and 100 boards are also discussing hiring an agency to search for a new superintendent.

The Dist. 100 board is scheduled to meet with Carsens Thursday night.

House Haunts Wood Dale Residents

by KEN HARDWICKE

Hilbert Gehrke has a headache. He's had it for seven years which is bad luck for anybody.

Gehrke, Wood Dale, Police Commissioner, has been trying to get his village to condemn and demolish a dilapidated house belonging to Gladys Mellon at 128 S. Walnut St. He started his protesting in 1965 when neighbors began complaining that the old building was an eyesore and harbored rats. He hasn't stopped criticizing yet.

In 1967 the police commissioner sought a court order to have the Mellon house demolished but the owners promised to make necessary improvements and the council agreed not to take any action.

Corrections were made and a month later the village attorney moved to dismiss the "Mellon dangerous building case" since the house was under repair.

ALTHOUGH THE house was under repair, very little renovation was done. The weeds still stand as high as the windows and rodents have found a nice sanctuary for the winter months. In general, the house has continued to deteriorate despite the constant complaints of surrounding neighbors who seek village action on the property.

Gehrke, sympathetic with the people's plight, has harassed the council demanding that the building be torn down. Earlier this month he reiterated his argument and called for council action to have the building classified under the village "dangerous building" ordinance. His words, again, lacked the council support to take any positive action.

In 1965 the Mellon house was one vote away from being demolished. The village council in a 3-2 vote failed to order condemnation of the home. The deciding vote was cast by Mayor Herbert Gilbert. Reportedly, the mayor was a close friend of the Gladys Mellon who owned the property.

Board Schedules Executive Session

The Wood Dale Dist. 7 Board of Education will hold an executive session Monday night at 8 p.m. at Highland School to reportedly discuss the unification of school districts.

Executive sessions are not open to the press or public.

SINCE THAT TIME Gehrke's police department has been besieged with irate residents in the area who would like the village to rectify the eyesore. For Gehrke, who has continually pleaded with village officials for condemnation, it's been like a headache without aspirin.

"It's constantly been a sore spot with the neighbors," ex-Mayor John Gilbert recalled. "That should have been condemned years ago."

Gilbert echoes Gehrke's sentiments but removal or repair of the building has been as hard to come by as a warless world.

Gehrke, who is silent on most everything has now reached the shouting stage over the Mellon property. "May I remind the council that I have tried to get this building condemned but was outvoted repeatedly."

RESIDENT UPROAR and Gehrke's tenacity may be bringing about action on the house . . . although it is slow coming. The house will be investigated to see if it qualifies for village condemnation under the dangerous building ordinance. Gehrke's police department will be doing the scrutinizing and hopefully, the council will be voting on its recommendations.

Reportedly, the property owner wants the house and land to remain in poor condition to keep the assessed valuation to a minimum and avoid paying increased taxes.

Whatever happens, the house is haunting Gehrke's political conscience and he won't sleep easy till it is torn down.

Beeline Closes Canadian Branch

Martin L. Reff, chairman of the board of Beeline Fashions, Inc. of Bensenville, announced that the company will cease its Canadian branch operations by the end of the company's third quarter.

Reff cited sustained losses as the major reason for discontinuing the branch.

Long term projections of branch earnings could not justify continued operations, he said.

Beeline Fashions, Inc. established its Canadian branch in 1966, and in each of the ensuing years it contributed less than 2 per cent of the company's consolidated sales.

In 1969, the Canadian branch expenses reduced consolidated earnings by approximately $.03 a share.

It is anticipated that expenses arising out of the liquidation of the branch will not materially affect the company's 1970 earnings. However, due to the fact that the third quarter is the lowest earning period, the effect of the closing will be more noticeable than if it had occurred in any other quarter, said Reff.

Glaucoma Unit Hours Are Set

The mobile glaucoma screening unit from the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness will be in operation, without charge, on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 from 6 to 9 p.m., at the Bensenville Fire Station, Main Street and York Road.

The project is being sponsored by the Bensenville Lions Club, which hopes to see a large turnout.

Glaucoma is a leading cause of blindness in Illinois and is most often found in persons 35 and over. If undetected, it can eventually lead to blindness. The disease may exhibit no symptoms in its early stages.

It is estimated that there are 90,000 cases of unsuspected glaucoma in the state.

LEAPING LIZARDS! Bensenville schools will be in session next week. Dist. 2 schools will begin classes

Monday and Fenton High School will begin Tuesday.

Rubbish Clean-up

Richard Fencil, Wood Dale developer, has promised to clean up a huge pile of rubbish at Prospect and Mary Jane Lane following complaints from nearby residents.

Fencil indicated that he would dig a big hole and bury a large portion of the wood composing the pile. The remainder of the trees would be cut up into logs and distributed freely to residents.

The rubbish pile consists mostly of lawn waste, dead trees and shrubs.

Don Mazur, president of the Wood Dale Park District, and the Brookwood Estates Homeowners Association objected to the pile of debris. They criticized it as an eyesore, a danger to children and harboring rodents.

Reportedly, Fencil was reluctant to burn the pile of wood debris because of neighbors complaining about pollution. Jack Haynes, Wood Dale Fire Chief, concurred with Fencil's refusal to burn the pile indicating that firemen were under criticism for open burning of any type.

Haynes added that fire departments can no longer burn debris at will because of the pollution crisis. He said that the detail of open burning is a big problem for developers who have to dispose of construction materials.

Dist. 100 Is Criticized

The Fenton High School Dist. 100 Board of Education Tuesday night came under fire when John Green, a past Dist. 100 board member, criticized the board for "not presenting an image conducive to representing the taxpayers."

"I'm most concerned with deficit spending," Green said. "I have queried people from the community about another referendum and I have found you have a rough road to hoe."

"A routine referendum is not going to dent the surface. The failures are becoming more distinct each time. You have to give the public a package," he said.

Green suggested the board sell 43 acres of district owned property located on Wood Dale Road. The property was originally purchased to provide a site for a second high school. The ex-board member thought the money from this property could go into the educational fund to pay off the deficit.

"BEGGERS CAN'T be choosers," Green said, adding "You fellows are rapidly approaching beggars."

Board Pres. Morton Wright told Green the money received for the property would have to go to the building fund. It is the education fund that is in deficit and money cannot be borrowed from one fund to another without being paid back.

Green contended the money could be changed from one fund to another, "It has been done before," he said.

Board members contend the transfer of money permanently from the building fund to the education fund is illegal.

"THE BOARD HAS to trust Felix Sloan (board treasurer) and Herbert Wicke (assistant superintendent of business affairs) to keep us aware of any possibilities," Wright said. "We have discussed this property several times, but since it involves the acquisition of property the discussions have been held in executive sessions."

The board announced Tuesday night that two salary packages have been presented to Dist. 100 faculty. The faculty is expected to vote on the salary proposals when they meet Monday.

The board is also negotiating with administrators and a settlement is expected within the next week.

Wicke told the board it may be a cold fall for Fenton students. The gas service installation has "not moved along as rapidly as we would like" and it may be the installation will not be completed for the opening of school, Wicke said.

"THIS WILL MEAN there will not be hot water, available for physical education classes, athletics and the cafeteria," Wicke told the board.

Students have been requested to bring sack lunches for the first few days of school. The canteen, which provides milk and ice cream, will be in operation.

The installation of gas service and new water softening equipment is being provided under the Life Safety Code.

THE BOARD ALSO passed a five cent increase in the cost of hot lunches.

The office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction reportedly approved a change from 45 cents to 50 cents per lunch for high schools this year, Wicke said.

"In view of the seven per cent increase in cafeteria employees' salaries and the anticipated five per cent increase in food costs, it appears that the price for the hot lunch should be changed," Wicke said. "The increase is a realistic way of keeping the board from subsidizing the program."

Sewer Line Controversy Irks Residents

Some 25 residents of Suncrest Highlands in Bloomingdale spurred a heated debate over sewer disconnections Wednesday night during the village board meeting.

The residents expressed opposition to having to disconnect their sewer lines in accordance with provisions in a suit filed against the village last fall by state Atty. Gen. William Scott.

John Noyerhofer, 144 Warren Ave. asked if the state is actually demanding the disconnection, or if it is simply the choice of the board. According to Noyerhofer, homeowners cannot afford the expense of having to disconnect and install sump pumps.

"Have you people investigated any alternatives to disconnection to rectify the problem, so that the burden would not lie with the individual homeowner," he asked.

BEFORE VILLAGE officials were able to reply, they were reminded by several other residents that all their comments were being taped.

Jack Waghorne, village attorney, answered saying state law prohibits the elimination of storm water into the sanitary sewer, and that the village has been instructed to resolve the problem.

Presently, storm water is flowing into the sanitary sewers, causing an overload to the treatment plant. Because of this, polluted water is bypassing into the streams in the area.

"The suit is pending in court until this fall, at which time action must have been taken on the problem," he said. Apparently if the action has not been taken by Oct. 1, the village would be sued.

NOYERHOFER ALSO asked if connection to the Hoffman Rosner 800,000-gallon capacity sewage treatment plant, to be completed this November, will alleviate pollution of the sanitary sewers.

"The new treatment plant will produce effluent satisfactory to the state's requirement," Waghorne answered. However, he added, this would not take care of the extra drainage water.

"We just don't see why the individual should have to pay. We suggest you don't make demands on the individual Suncrest homeowner," Noyerhofer said. The audience applauded following this statement.

"I agree it is an unreasonable burden, but we are being directed by the state," Waghorne replied. "One possible solution is a general tax of all the residents in Bloomingdale. We could pass a general obligation bond which would be added to the tax bill."

Noyerhofer also added that most other villages throughout the county and state are in a similar situation and are not doing anything about it.

"THIS IS TRUE," Waghorne answered, "but a suit has been filed against Bloomingdale, and we can't defend our position by saying everyone else is doing it."

"Scott has taken a vigorous stand on pollution, and such excuses won't be accepted."

Another resident, Pat Esposito, 134 Warren Ave., said she had contacted Scott's office, and referred to the suit as a "joke." She implied that the suit was not being taken seriously.

Waghorne said that if she would testify to this, he would take action to have the suit dismissed.

'Scavenger' Ordinance To Be Drawn Up

The Wood Dale Village Council recently instructed Village Attorney Sam LaSusa to draw up a contractors scavenger ordinance requiring a $250 fee for scavengers to operate in the village.

John R. Adamson, village manager, recommended the $250 license fee for contract scavengers who would concentrate on hauling away construction materials in the village.

"As of now we have no control what that scavenger will charge a contractor in the village," said Dr. Ralph Madonna, village councilman.

Jerry Folker, village superintendent of sanitation, agreed with the recommended price and the ordinance.

"I think it is a very fair price," Folker said. "We've had people (in the village) who have paid out of their own pocket to have construction material hauled away."

The village sanitation department will not haul away sizeable construction material.

Chief, Officers Cited

Outstanding achievements by two members of the Bloomingdale Police Department have recently earned them several awards.

It has been announced that Police Chief Harold Rivkin will receive the 1970 Service Award from the Illinois Police Federation, at the organization's annual dinner-dance to be held on Friday, Sept. 25, at the O'Hare Inn.

He was chosen to receive the award because of his "ceaseless and outstanding work with the youth of the community and to the association."

OFFICER GEORGE Best was presented with the Illinois Police Federation's Certificate of Commendation, for service beyond the call of duty.

The award was presented Tuesday night at the federations monthly meeting.

Best also received an appreciation award from the Bloomingdale Village Board at their meeting Wednesday night. It was offered for the part he played in solving the burglaries at the Bloomingdale Township Hall and Warrington's Hardware Store in Bloomingdale, earlier this month.

Last February he received his first appreciation award, making him the only member of the force to have earned two such awards.

The Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Friday, Aug. 28, the 240th day of 1970 with 125 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

On this day in history: In 1833 the British Parliament barred slavery throughout the Empire.

In 1922 a New York realty company paid $100 to sponsor the first radio commercial.

In 1963 more than 200,000 demonstrators staged an orderly civil rights march in Washington, D.C.

In 1968 the Democratic Party nominated Hubert Humphrey to run for President as anti-war demonstrators protested in Chicago streets.

A thought for the day: Lytton Strachey said, "Perhaps of all the creations of man, language is the most astonishing."

She also added that a representative in the office offered two alternative solutions to alleviating the problem, the construction of a holding tank or a water storage lagoon.

A request was made by Noyerhofer to hold a special meeting between the residents and the board to discuss the issue further.

"WE WOULD LIKE to meet with you, because the people here aren't going to go along with the disconnection. It is the majority's feeling that we would go to court, and we would like to save the village from embarrassment," he said. "I think this is a reasonable request. If we call a meeting I don't want to get into a fist fight, but would like to present the basic facts and discuss them," Village President Robert Meyers said.

He added that solving the pollution problem is going to cost money; the primary concern in the next decade will be controlling the environment.

The project is being sponsored by the Bensenville Lions Club, which hopes to see a large turnout.

Glaucoma is a leading cause of blindness in Illinois and is most often found in persons 35 and over. If undetected, it can eventually lead to blindness. The disease may exhibit no symptoms in its early stages.

It is estimated that there are 90,000 cases of unsuspected glaucoma in the state.

LEAPING LIZARDS! Bensenville schools will be in session next week. Dist. 2 schools will begin classes

Monday and Fenton High School will begin Tuesday.

Rubbish Clean-up

Richard Fencel, Wood Dale developer, has promised to clean up a huge pile of rubbish at Prospect and Mary Jane Lane following complaints from nearby residents.

Fencel indicated that he would dig a big hole and bury a large portion of the wood composing the pile. The remainder of the trees would be cut up into logs and distributed freely to residents.

The rubbish pile consists mostly of lawn waste, dead trees and shrubs.

Don Mazur, president of the Wood Dale Park District, and the Brookwood Estates Homeowners Association objected to the pile of debris. They criticized it as an eyesore, a danger to children and harboring rodents.

Reportedly, Fencel was reluctant to burn the pile of wood debris because of neighbors complaining about pollution. Jack Haynes, Wood Dale Fire Chief, concurred with Fencel's refusal to burn the pile indicating that firemen were under criticism for open burning of any type.

Haynes added that fire departments can no longer burn debris at will because of the pollution crisis. He said that the detail of open burning is a big problem for developers who have to dispose of construction materials.

Dist. 100 Is Criticized

The Fenton High School Dist. 100 Board of Education Tuesday night came under fire when John Green, a past Dist. 100 board member, criticized the board for "not presenting an image conducive to representing the taxpayers."

"I'm most concerned with deficit spending," Green said. "I have queried people from the community about another referendum and I have found you have a rough road to hoe."

"A routine referendum is not going to dent the surface. The failures are becoming more distinct each time. You have to give the public a package," he said.

Green suggested the board sell 43 acres of district owned property located on Wood Dale Road. The property was originally purchased to provide a site for a second high school. The ex-board member thought the money from this property could go into the educational fund to pay off the deficit.

"BEGGERS CAN'T be choosers," Green said, adding "You fellows are rapidly approaching beggars."

Board Pres. Morton Wright told Green the money received for the property would have to go to the building fund. It is the education fund that is in deficit and money cannot be borrowed from one fund to another without being paid back.

Green contended the money could be changed from one fund to another, "It has been done before," he said.

Board members contend the transfer of money permanently from the building fund to the education fund is illegal.

"THE BOARD HAS to trust Felix Sloan (board treasurer) and Herbert Wicke (assistant superintendent of business affairs) to keep us aware of any possibilities," Wright said. "We have discussed this property several times, but since it involves the acquisition of property the discussions have been held in executive sessions."

The board announced Tuesday night that two salary packages have been presented to Dist. 100 faculty. The faculty is expected to vote on the salary proposals when they meet Monday.

The board is also negotiating with administrators and a settlement is expected within the next week.

Wicke told the board it may be a cold fall for Fenton students. The gas service installation has "not moved along as rapidly as we would like" and it may be the installation will not be completed for the opening of school, Wicke said.

"THIS WILL MEAN there will not be hot water available for physical education classes, athletics and the cafeteria," Wicke told the board.

Students have been requested to bring sack lunches for the first few days of school. The canteen, which provides milk and ice cream, will be in operation.

The installation of gas service and new water softening equipment is being provided under the Life Safety Code.

THE BOARD ALSO passed a five cent increase in the cost of hot lunches.

The office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction reportedly approved a change from 45 cents to 50 cents per lunch for high schools this year, Wicke said.

"In view of the seven per cent increase in cafeteria employees' salaries and the anticipated five per cent increase in food costs, it appears that the price for the hot lunch should be changed," Wicke said. "The increase is a realistic way of keeping the board from subsidizing the program."

Sewer Line Controversy Irks Residents

Some 25 residents of Suncrest Highlands in Bloomingdale spurred a heated debate over sewer disconnections Wednesday night during the village board meeting.

The residents expressed opposition to having to disconnect their sewer lines in accordance with provisions in a suit filed against the village last fall by state Atty. Gen. William Scott.

John Noyerhofer, 144 Warren Ave. asked if the state is actually demanding the disconnection, or if it is simply the choice of the board. According to Noyerhofer, homeowners cannot afford the expense of having to disconnect and install sump pumps.

"Have you people investigated any alternatives to disconnection to rectify the problem, so that the burden would not lie with the individual homeowner," he asked.

BEFORE VILLAGE officials were able to reply, they were reminded by several other residents that all their comments were being taped.

Jack Waghorne, village attorney, answered saying state law prohibits the elimination of storm water into the sanitary sewer, and that the village has been instructed to resolve the problem.

Presently, storm water is flowing into the sanitary sewers, causing an overload to the treatment plant. Because of this, polluted water is bypassing into the streams in the area.

"The suit is pending in court until this fall, at which time action must have been taken on the problem," he said. Apparently if the action has not been taken by Oct. 1, the village would be sued.

NOYERHOFER ALSO asked if connection to the Hoffman Roemer 800,000-gallon capacity sewage treatment plant, to be completed this November, will alleviate pollution of the sanitary sewers.

"The new treatment plant will produce affluent satisfactory to the state's requirement," Waghorne answered. However, he added, this would not take care of the extra drainage water.

"We just don't see why the individual should have to pay. We suggest you don't make demands on the individual Suncrest homeowner," Noyerhofer said. The audience applauded following this statement.

"I agree it is an unreasonable burden, but we are being directed by the state," Waghorne replied. "One possible solution is a general tax of all the residents in Bloomingdale. We could pass a general obligation bond which would be added to the tax bill."

Noyerhofer also added that most other villages throughout the county and state are in a similar situation and are not doing anything about it.

"THIS IS TRUE," Waghorne answered, "but a suit has been filed against Bloomingdale, and we can't defend our position by saying everyone else is doing it."

"Scott has taken a vigorous stand on pollution, and such excuses won't be accepted."

Another resident, Pat Esposito, 134 Warren Ave., said she had contacted Scott's office, and referred to the suit as a "joke." She implied that the suit was not being taken seriously.

Waghorne said that if she would testify to this, he would take action to have the suit dismissed.

'Scavenger' Ordinance To Be Drawn Up

The Wood Dale Village Council recently instructed Village Attorney Sam LaSusa to draw up a contractors scavenger ordinance requiring a $250 fee for scavengers to operate in the village.

John R. Adamson, village manager, recommended the $250 license fee for contract scavengers who would concentrate on hauling away construction materials in the village.

"As of now we have no control what that scavenger will charge a contractor in the village," said Dr. Ralph Madonna, village councilman.

Jerry Folker, village superintendent of sanitation, agreed with the recommended price and the ordinance.

"I think it is a very fair price," Folker said. "We've had people (in the village) who have paid out of their own pocket to have construction material hauled away."

The village sanitation department will not haul away sizeable construction material.

Chief, Officers Cited

Outstanding achievements by two members of the Bloomingdale Police Department have recently earned them several awards.

It has been announced that Police Chief Harold Rivkin will receive the 1970 Service Award from the Illinois Police Federation, at the organization's annual dinner-dance to be held on Friday, Sept. 25, at the O'Hare Inn.

He was chosen to receive the award because of his "ceaseless and outstanding work with the youth of the community and to the association."

OFFICER GEORGE Best was presented with the Illinois Police Federation's Certificate of Commendation, for service beyond the call of duty.

The award was presented Tuesday night at the federations monthly meeting.

Best also received an appreciation award from the Bloomingdale Village Board at their meeting Wednesday night. It was offered for the part he played in solving the burglaries at the Bloomingdale Township Hall and Warnimont's Hardware Store in Bloomingdale, earlier this month.

Last February he received his first appreciation award, making him the only member of the force to have earned two such awards.

The Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Friday, Aug. 28, the 240th day of 1970 with 125 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1833 the British Parliament barred slavery throughout the Empire.

In 1922 a New York realty company paid $100 to sponsor the first radio commercial.

In 1963 more than 200,000 demonstrators staged an orderly civil rights march in Washington, D.C.

In 1968 the Democratic Party nominated Hubert Humphrey to run for President as anti-war demonstrators protested in Chicago streets.

A thought for the day: Lytton Strachey said, "Perhaps of all the creations of man, language is the most astonishing."

She also added that a representative in the office offered two alternative solutions to alleviating the problem, the construction of a holding tank or a water storage lagoon.

A request was made by Noyerhofer to hold a special meeting between the residents and the board to discuss the issue further.

"WE WOULD LIKE to meet with you, because the people here aren't going to go along with the disconnection. It is the majority's feeling that we would go to court, and we would like to save the village from embarrassment," he said.

"I think this is a reasonable request. If we call a meeting I don't want to get into a fist fight, but would like to present the basic facts and discuss them," Village President Robert Meyers said.

He added that solving the pollution problem is going to cost money; the primary concern in the next decade will be controlling the environment.

You Can't Do Anything About Air Pollution....Or Can You?

The problem: air pollution. But what do we do until we get it solved? Suffer?

Not at home if you have a Lennox Total Comfort System. A Total Comfort System is a ducted system that treats the air you live in. We take some of that "wonderful" outdoor air, clean it, filter it to eliminate dust, dirt and pollen and mix it with the circulating air in your home to give you a fresh supply four times an hour. And the entire system runs quietly... whisper-quiet... so that you are never aware of its functioning except through the comfort you feel.

Heating and cooling are provided at a central location and distributed gently throughout every room in the home. Temperatures remain constant no matter what the weather outside.

One central system supplies both heating and cooling; and it maintains strict control over the amount of moisture in the treated air, because proper humidity has a great deal to do with comfort indoors.

Call us today (and declare your own private war on air pollution).

Teachers Still Unsure About Strike

by JUDY MEHL

With the first day of classes in School Dist. 59 11 days away, teachers in the district remain uncommitted on the issue of a strike.

The deadline for that decision seems to be Sep. 1.

On that day approximately 370 teachers are expected to vote on the ratification of their salary and comprehensive payment program contract. Members of the Teachers' Council negotiation team have recommended that the teachers reject the contract, claiming that details have not been completed to their satisfaction on the comprehensive payment program items.

If teachers' contracts are not ratified by the opening day of school the road is still legally open to them to return to the classrooms.

ACCORDING TO Ted Sanders, Illinois Education Association field representative, "Teachers can usually make arrangements to teach on last year's salary schedule, moving up one step, and when contracts are resolved, pay would be retroactive to the beginning of the school year."

He said here was nothing to stop the teachers from returning to the classrooms if he administration and teachers were willing.

In the opinion of board member Judith Zanca, this is probably what the board would encourage.

She added that many of the teachers have signed contracts already, with the provision that when a new contract is ratified it will go into effect for them also. She said many of these teachers were men who needed draft deferments.

Dave Robert, chairman of the Teachers' Council salary negotiation team, is one of these, according to Mrs. Zanca.

MRS. ZANCA SAID parents have called her and other board members asking if school will be open.

"We've been answering on the idea that the buildings will be open and fully staffed," she said.

The teachers, picketing Wednesday in front of the administration building protesting the board of education's refusal to negotiate class size, made no threats of striking.

Ruth Weisbaum, a teacher at Brentwood School, Des Plaines, said, "I hope we don't have to strike, that's all I hope. Nobody benefits and the kids suffer."

She added, "This is my eighth year in Dist. 59 and every year it gets worse."

ALTHOUGH SHE AND some 60 to 100 other teachers picketed to bring the problem of class size to the attention of parents and the board of education, there has been no comment or reaction from the board on the issue.

"The majority of the board is out of town," Mrs. Zanca said. "There is no official reaction. All I have to say is that it is unfortunate."

Reaction from the Teachers' Council to the topic of striking has been reserved.

"We have examined all various aspects of the situation for the teachers both legally and in regard to our responsibilities," Robert said, explaining that this included discussion of striking.

"The teachers at the meeting Sept. 1 will decide what steps will be taken," he said.

Dave Larsen, teacher at Dempster Junior High, gave the opinion of several teachers picketing Wednesday, however, when he said, "I would seek professional sanction. I would not strike."

Woman, 2 Children Facing Eviction

Mrs. Janet Hall, 41, and her two children are in need of help and time is running out.

The family is to be evicted Monday from their house at 701 E. Higgins Rd. in Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Hall has not paid her rent for at least a year, she says, and has been out of a job for about a month.

"I gotta go somewhere," she said, standing outside on the porch in front of her dilapidated house near Wildwood Road. "I've got to find a job."

Mrs. Hall lives in a four-room cement block house surrounded by tall weeds and grass that envelop the five-acre lot her rented home is located on.

She contends the property has been neglected by her landlord, yet she admits to not having paid the $100 monthly rent.

MRS. HALL has lived there for seven years. She said her husband left her five years ago.

Two of her sons by a previous marriage are in the service. She looks after the other two youngsters, Judy, 9, and Bob, 10.

She said she receives welfare from both the county and township but that it's not enough to live on.

Mrs. Hall admits that part of her problem is that she cannot find a job after having been laid off from her last one.

She contends her house is in the condition it is because her landlord has not made repairs.

Joseph Koziol of Chicago, the landlord, says Mrs. Hall has not bothered to maintain the property.

HE SAID HE told her to move last June, months after she had stopped paying rent. He said the house is not worth fixing and that he wants to have it leveled.

"It was a real nice place when they moved in," Koziol said, adding that he cannot pay for improvements if she does not pay her rent.

"I can't spend that kind of money," he said, when asked about the broken water well. At one time he did make improvements to the house, but that was when he received rent.

Finally, he said, he went to court to get a court order to have Mrs. Hall vacate the building.

"I'm in a bind," he said.

MRS. HALL has since gone to the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows for help. But, finding a place for a woman with two children and no job is a task the center is having difficulty with.

"I don't even have a tent," Mrs. Hall said. My kids have no shoes. I don't know how I'll send them to school," she said.

School Bells Ring For Area Children

That low rumble you will hear early Monday morning will not be an earthquake rocking the Northwest suburbs, nor will it be Chicago's John Hancock Center teetering on its foundation.

Rather, it will be the sounds of 16,345 students pouring back into the six Dist. 214 high schools, which serve two townships and eight towns in the Northwest suburbs.

Those students are the sons and daughters of residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows. A seventh school is scheduled for completion next fall.

THERE WILL BE more than 1,300 new students in the district this year, and all of the high schools have projected increased enrollment.

Enrollment at Arlington is projected up from 2,331 to 2,406; Forest View from 2,511 to 2,650; Hersey from 2,572 to 2,650; Elk Grove from 2,604 to 2,800; Prospect from 2,469 to 2,515; and Wheeling from 2,442 to 2,625.

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, reported that official enrollment figures are taken on the sixth day of classes, which is the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Today will be the final preparation day for students and teachers in the district. Teachers are holding their annual institute day until 3:30 p.m. today. Supt. Edward Gilbert will be a featured speaker, and County Supt. of Schools Robert Hanrahan will speak briefly.

THE DISTRICT'S Education Association will vote today on the 1970-71 salary package. No public opposition to the package has appeared.

Students will have their last days of freedom over the weekend, and then it's back to school for another nine months.

Enrollment in Cook County public schools is expected to reach an all-time high of 484,470 students, according to figures from Hanrahan's office, representing an increase of 24,192 over the 1969-70 school year.

"We expect an enrollment of 342,282 in Cook County elementary schools and 142,286 in our high schools," said Hanrahan.

HOUSE AT 701 E. Higgins Rd. has broken down in June. Bottled water has been without water since the well has been obtained from a friend.

Arrest Mexicans For Illegal Entry

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $500 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

Dist. 214 Teachers To Vote On Pay

The 800-plus school teachers in High School Dist. 214 will vote today to accept or reject a salary pact worked out by a team of teachers and board members for the 1970-71 year.

The package, which assures a beginning teacher with no experience and a B.A. a salary of $8,000, is one of the highest salary packages in the area.

Voting on the package will take place this afternoon during the district's institute day. Classes in Dist. 214 are scheduled to begin on Monday.

John Harth, president of the association, and members of the Dist. 214 administration are pleased with the success of negotiations, which were concluded in June. Approval of the salary package is expected by those close to the association.

THE SCALE, only part of the complete package, provides salaries from $8,000 to $17,225 for a teacher with a master's degree plus 39 hours of graduate work on step 16 of the scale. That's close to the levels of the lowest paid district administrators.

A teacher with a master's degree starting in the district — and more and more Dist. 214 teachers have master's degrees — will earn $8,800 under the new scale.

The package also includes, as it has in the past, increments for extra-curricular and instructional related assignments. Teachers this year will be able to earn between $175 and $1200 for extra-curricular work, depending on the load and previous experience.

A variety of increments are available for extra-administrative and instructional related assignments. For example, an audio-visual building director can earn $700 extra per year and special salaries are available for persons working in special capacities during the summer.

Area Doctors, Laymen Study Drug Abuse

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

THOMAS SAID community organizations could and should help in the overall effort to handle drug problems by disseminating and sharing more accurate information.

And Dr. Morris, who heads the communications group, said the question of how to get believable information out to the public was a major problem media are now faced with.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benzaquin Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

You've Got Lawn Work? Try A Greenskeeper's Job

by DAVE PALERMO

When you see how efficiently he takes care of an 18-hole golf course, you begin to wonder what Ken Goodman could do with that ragged front lawn of yours.

Goodman, the greenskeeper for the Mount Prospect Country Club course, has spent the last 17 years tending golf courses and if he has his way he'll spend at least the next 17 doing the same thing. "I like the profession. I can't see doing anything else," said Goodman, a resident of Wheeling. "My father worked on a golf course and I used to caddy. Almost every youngster caddied back then because they didn't have many carts like they do now."

"That's usually the way you get into this line of work. You caddy for a few years. They usually won't let you work on a course until you're 16 or 17 years old."

Goodman arrived at the Mount Prospect Country Club two years ago after tending courses at Indian Hill, River Woods (now Ravinia Green), Diamond Lake and Twin Orchards (now Long Grove).

A graduate of Arlington High School, Goodman's experience is necessary in a field which has become a science as well as a profession in the past 10 years.

Fairways at the country club must be carefully fertilized and trimmed to a length of about 1 1/2 inches. Aprons surrounding the greens must be cut to a length no higher than 1/2 inch and the greens must be kept at 3/16 of an inch.

"The daily work consists of cutting the greens, changing the tee markers and putting in the flags. Then we go into the specialized aspects such as rotoring and rebuilding greens."

"Probably the biggest thing on the course is the greens. We use a hybrid grass on our greens now called Poamu. It's actually a wild blue grass."

"The grass on the greens tend to develop fungus if not kept properly. A fungicide such as Phenyl Mercury has to be used but with all the talk about the dangers of insecticides we might have to use something else in the near future. DDT is banned in Illinois."

GOODMAN'S JOB is a year-long one. In the winter he spends his time "going through all the machinery" needed to keep a course in good shape.

A member of the Midwest Golf Course Superintendents Association as well as its national counterpart, he spends three days at Purdue University every spring for a national convention in which newly-developed means of caring for a golf course are discussed.

Vandalism has often been a thorn in the side of greenskeepers, but Goodman tends to think that the problem has subsided in the past few months.

"At first there was quite a problem when I first came here, but it isn't as bad now," he said. "Now the thing is to take the flags."

As far as the behavior of golfers at the course, Goodman feels the great majority of them are well behaved and show respect for the course.

"THEY'RE PRETTY WELL behaved, but they don't rake the sand traps enough," he said.

Greenskeeping has become profitable as it has become a science. Goodman estimates that in the midwest a greenskeeper can make from $9,500 to $22,000 a year.

But Goodman isn't in it entirely for the money. He's been doing it too long.

FAA Awaits Investigation

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Pal-Waukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Pal-Waukee and John McFadden of 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred.

"For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

"The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

MAKE YOUR REAL ESTATE BROKER
EARN HIS MONEY

It's easy to do; you'll be pleased with the results; and he'll be thankful to have you as a client.

To get the best results from a real estate professional, give him (or her) a chance to work for you exclusively until you have made a satisfactory transaction or decided to get another Real Estate Broker.

Buyers occasionally negotiate with more than one Realtor at the same time in the mistaken belief they will see a better variety of properties or stand a chance of making a more advantageous transaction.

A Real Estate Broker cannot do his best work under these conditions, knowing his efforts may be useless if his client should conclude a transaction with another broker in the meantime.

Only a small percentage of properties for sale are advertised at any one time. A Real Estate Broker therefore needs sufficient time to study his listing files or Multiple Listing records while he seeks out the best answer to his buyer's needs.

Pick a competent Real Estate Broker and give him your confidence. You'll both benefit.

Former Cuban Lawyer To Teach At St. Viator

A former Cuban lawyer and a long-time industrial chemist are among those who will be teaching at St. Viator High School for the first time this fall.

Four of the 15 newcomers to the St. Viator faculty lack teaching experience, according to the Rev. James Michaelitz, principal of the 1,000-pupil Catholic boys high school in Arlington Heights.

Two of the four first-year teachers are St. Viator graduates, the first alumni to return to teach at the school.

Jorge Suarez of Chicago, who came to the United States after Castro's takeover in Cuba, will teach Spanish.

SUAREZ HAS EARNED a master's degree from Roosevelt University since leaving Cuba. He taught at St. Joseph High School in Westchester before coming to St. Viator this fall.

The former industrial chemist is Norbert L. Zarunba, Wauconda, who holds a bachelor's degree from Roosevelt University and taught in the Chicago public schools.

Viator alumni who will be teaching English this fall are James Geocaris, a Mount Prospect native, and John Erfort of Arlington Heights.

Geocaris attended the University of Iowa and received his bachelor's degree from Southern Illinois University. Erfort received a B.A. from Western Illinois University.

FIVE MEMBERS of the Clerics of St. Viator, the community that has operated the high school since its opening in 1960, are also new to the faculty this year.

They are Rev. Donald Fitzsimmons, head of the school's religion department; Rev. J. E. Durkee, mathematics teacher; Rev. Thomas Wise, religion teacher; Brother Robert Gregor, mathematics teacher; Brother Robert Ruhl, English teacher; Brother Michael Keliher, a science teacher.

Mrs. Bernice McCarthy of Mount Prospect, an English instructor holds the distinction of being the school's only woman teacher. She has nine years' experience, the latest at St. Raymond's parochial school, Mount Prospect.

OTHER NEW lay teachers are: Steve Borowski, a former Chicagoan, who held national swimming records while a student at Indiana University. He will teach physical education and coach swimming. He has both a bachelor's and a master's from Indiana.

Thomas Martin, a graduate of Loyola, who taught mathematics at St. Patrick High School, Chicago, before coming to St. Viator this fall.

William F. Pirman taught four years at Coeducational St. Joseph High School, Chicago, before being hired to teach social science at St. Viator. He has a bachelor's degree from Loyola and is doing graduate work at DePaul University.

Robert J. Regan, a graduate of Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., will teach biology.

VIENNA (UPI)—Recognize this language? La internacia lingvo esperanto estu la dua lingvo de ĉiuj homoj por doni samajn kulturajn sankciojn al ĉiuj popoloj. It's Esperanto and it means: "Esperanto should be the second language everywhere in the world to give equal chances to everybody."

The fact is that it is not, despite the hope of Esperanto's Polish founder, Ludoviko Zamenhof, that his artificial, simplified language developed in 1887 would become the world language.

Esperanto advocates say English is the number one enemy.

But English, despite its growing acceptance as the second language in most nations, cannot replace Esperanto as a world language, they maintain.

"It's tremendous nonsense to spend $20 million a year for translations at the United Nations in New York," said Ivo LaPenna, president of the 55th Esperanto World Congress, which met recently in Vienna.

"Esperanto would be the logical solution."

LaPenna said politicians all over the world oppose Esperanto only to preserve the privileges of their own language.

He recalled that French was the only language at the 1815 Congress of Vienna, French and English were spoken at the 1919 Versailles peace talks, five languages were officially admitted at the first United Nations session in San Francisco in 1945 and UNESCO today has eight official languages.

"National language pride prevents a logical solution," LaPenna complained.

Despite this, he is optimistic. "Sooner or later, Esperanto will succeed," he said. "The need for an easy, universal world language has never been greater."

LaPenna, who speaks seven languages, admitted English is easy to learn but said:

"Esperanto is much easier. In one year, an average person can speak it fluently."

Only 600 schools throughout the world, some in the United States and Russia, teach Esperanto. "Naturally, this is not sufficient," LaPenna said.

Estimates on the number of Esperanto speakers range from one to eight million. Even LaPenna and his followers admit the number is "probably closer to one than to eight million."

Esperanto enthusiasts complain about "an obvious reluctance to teach and learn Esperanto in the western world," but appear impressed by positive signs from the East.

Communist China, for instance, heads the worldwide list of Esperanto publishers. Daily Esperanto broadcasts are carried by Radio Peking. Even the works of Mao Tse-tung are available in Esperanto on records. East European radio stations in Warsaw, Budapest and Sofia also carry Esperanto broadcasts.

But it looks as if it will be a while before "gis revido" replaces "goodbye" in popularity.

North American women's pairs finished fourth and ninth also in Stockholm.

In fourth place were bridge teacher Sally Johnson of Westport, Conn., and Bea (Mrs. Howard) Schenken of New York. Sally and Bea have ranked among our top women players for many years, although neither can match Mary Jane Farrell's record.

Sally and Bea both like to bid, so that they reached four spades with today's collection of 25 high-card points and no singletons anywhere. Sally might well have dropped the bidding at two spades and Bea could have signed off at three instead of going on but there Sally was in this doubtful game.

She covered the 10 of hearts lead with dummy's king because she wanted East to play the ace of hearts if he held it. East obliged and returned the suit, whereupon Sally was ready to operate.

There were several ways to go after 10 tricks. One would be to try to clear the diamond suit. That would fail because West would overruff the third diamond lead and East would still make two trump tricks. Sally gave just a little thought to that play and proceeded to adopt the line that was most likely to bring the contract home.

She led a low spade. West's 10 held the trick and he led his 10 of diamonds. Sally won in dummy and led a spade to her ace. When both opponents followed, it was all over but the mopping up.

Sally cashed her high cards and started to crossruff diamonds and clubs. It didn't matter who held the last trump or when he got to take it. That would be the only trick for the defense.

'Buck Fever'

By MILT D. HILL, JR.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Buck fever" is a classic dilemma for hunters.

"Even if you master all the elements of the mechanics of your weapons, you're still got yourself to fight," hunter Jim Dougherty says.

But the 32-year-old Dougherty isn't an average hunter. He's got an added problem, as one of the growing group of sportsmen who stalk game not with a gun but with a bow and arrow.

"When you start hunting with a bow and arrow," Dougherty told UPI in an interview, "the fact that you use a deer—and you may see it relatively close—doesn't mean you're going to get that deer. There are just so many problems."

DOUGHERTY, ONE OF the top bow hunters in the United States, believes that "one of the biggest things you've got to learn to overcome is yourself. It's really tough."

Once a deer is spotted, the bow hunter must get in close, he explained.

"All of a sudden you realize that now you're within 40 yards of this animal, and then 30 and then 25. Most guys would blow their minds right there. They get all keyed up."

"You've got to remember everything you've learned and you've got to fight this classic buck fever thing."

"You've got to get close and you've got to do these other things right. But then, when you finally do get close, it's just as easy to miss a deer as it is to hit it. I mean, it's really easy to miss one with a bow and arrow."

"You can just do so many things wrong," he added with a laugh. "You've got to get a lot of breaks."

Dougherty, a father of five boys, became interested in archery when he was about 12.

"Every kid shoots a bow and arrow

Sacred Heart Workshop Ends

Yesterday ended a three-day communications workshop for Sacred Heart of Mary High School teachers, who meet their new students for the first time today.

The entire 36 members of the all-girl Catholic High met for the past three days in workshop sessions conducted by Thomas Jauch, head of the Northwest Human Resources Development Center and a part-time teacher at Sacred Heart.

The workshop was partially in conjunction with goals of the school's new principal, Leonard Baenen, who said he wanted to see communication lines on all levels at his school opened to their fullest.

The sessions also were designed to prime lay and clergy teachers for the first day of classes, which is today.

This morning freshmen and sophomores will attend a half-day orientation session. Friday morning, juniors and seniors will attend a similar program. And at 8:25 a.m. Monday all 625 Sacred Heart students will attend the first full day of classes, which runs until 2:40 p.m.

- THIS IS A SHORT STORY BEGINNING WITH A WANT AD AND ENDING WITH RESULTS -

Police To Man Pool

Problems with troublemakers in Elk Grove Village park and swimming pools have been diminished with the hiring of two part-time park policemen this summer.

The park board hired the men to handle incidents of vandalism and reported harassment of persons using the parks in the past.

The board felt there was a need for its own security force even though the village police department patrols the community.

"It's really not fair to expect the local police to handle all the minor problems of the parks," said Jack Claes, park director. "We wanted extra service — more concentrated."

THE HANDLING of money at the concession stands and pools was an added factor in the decision to hire the officers, he said, adding that technically the park district is responsible for the supervision of its property.

Tony Varchetto and his partner, James DeLall, vacationing this week, patrol the district's 12 parks and two pools from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. each weeknight, Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

They carry no firearms but do have nightsticks. Usually one man works at a time, cruising in the three-wheel motorcycle loaned to the park district by village police. On nights of teen dances, both men are on the job.

The two have both had past police experience, Varchetto with the Cook County Forest Rangers, and DeLall with the village as a part-time patrolman.

Claes termed the employment of part-time officers for the parks successful.

"We've had a comparatively quiet summer in the parks," he said, attributing the peace to both the park patrol and the teen center.

"THE FACT THAT you're there, or might be there at any moment cuts down a lot of problems you might have," Varchetto said. He feels the park police program has been highly beneficial and cites cooperation from the Elk Grove Village Police Dept. as extremely important in its success.

If there is trouble, the park police notify the village police, and sign a complaint against the offenders.

"We've only had two or three major incidents all summer," Varchetto said. "There are a few 'bad' kids like everywhere, but most kids in Elk Grove are pretty 'square'."

He recalled one incident in which a teen drove his car onto a baseball diamond until the village police were called.

Adult and youth response to the park police has been "very receptive," according to Varchetto, who is the father of six children, ages 6 to 14.

"PERHAPS WE'RE a little closer to the situation than the regular police force," he said, accounting for their apparent ability to conquer the usual police-youth gap.

We're at teen center dances, and get to know the regulars, and they know us, he said.

Claes suggested that youth may be more receptive to the park police because unlike village police, the park police "will not be connected with them in any other problems they may have."

Though Varchetto admits he was at first anxious about the summer job, he claims the youth are exceptionally good natured.

The patrolmen stop at each park and pool, talking to the kids and their parents, who he says are often surprised to see them.

Varchetto, who during the day is a customer service supervisor for a management consultant firm, believes, "Sometimes they need someone to talk to who is totally unrelated, but who will listen and try to understand."

ALTHOUGH RENUMERATION for the park policemen's job is nominal, about $2.50 an hour Varchetto said "It mawes you feel you're helping out."

He understands well why kids will complain "there's nothing to do in Elk Grove."

"Three months is a long time," he concludes, "even good things become boring."

POLICEMAN TONY Varchetto stops for friendly chat with some young boys at an Elk Grove Village pool. Two part-time employees patrol the district's parks and pools.

NORTH POINT STATE BANK of Arlington Heights (IN ORGANIZATION)

The new North Point State Bank moved one step closer to reality last week with the approval of the bank by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The bank, which had previously been approved for a permit to organize by the Illinois Commissioner of Banks and Trust Companies, now has clearance to complete its organization.

The bank is expected to open approximately October 1st, in temporary quarters in the North Point Shopping Center.

Shortly after the official opening of the temporary quarters of the North Point State Bank, ground will be broken for the bank's permanent headquarters to be located at the north end of the shopping center.

Approximately 10,000 shares are still available for purchase, and the sponsors of the bank have stated their intention to give local area residents first opportunity to share in the bank's ownership.

Persons desiring more information about the bank may call 825-5520, or fill in the coupon.

Beef Up Japan's Forces

by ROBERT CRABBE
TOKYO (UPI)—Twenty-five years after the Japanese failed to conquer Asia, plans are underway to beef up this prosperous nation's armed forces, now smaller than any major country in the world. The Japanese defense force — and the armed services are constitutionally dedicated only to defense—has an authorized strength of 258,074 men, only 10 per cent the size of Communist China's "Peoples Liberation Army." The Peking Chinese have hydrogen bombs, while Japan has none, and this year Japan signed the treaty against nuclear proliferation. In Asia alone, India, Taiwan, North and South Korea and North and South Vietnam all have larger armed forces than the Japanese.

But when Japan announced she would spend about $16.7 billion on a five-year plan to upgrade her armed forces from 1971-76, many people in Asia, and some in the United States, were worried.

Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y., returned from an Asian fact-finding trip to say: "The study mission left Japan with genuine concern about the militarism we witnessed. We believe the move toward intensified rearmament goes far beyond Japan's real needs."

He said all this "points to Japan's possible plans for a military role in Asia, with a probable desire of reemergence in the area."

Others believe Japan is merely being sensible by insuring that she can defend herself against the larger armies of her neighbors.

After the Japanese defeat in World War II, the United States decided to allow Japan to prosper economically but to keep her militarily impotent. The fighting machine that overran China and Southeast Asia was dismantled. The American-inspired constitution which Japan adopted in 1947 renounced her right to make war.

The ink was hardly dry on the new constitution before the Communists took over China. Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur "reinterpreted" the constitution he had given the Japanese, and said they had the right to defend Japan against outside attack.

A 50,000 man army was established. Ever since, Washington has been badgering the Japanese to expand it, and assume a larger role in protecting themselves.

The man in charge of the buildup of the Japanese defense forces in the 1970s is Yasuhiro Nakasone, 51, an ambitious conservative politician who makes no secret of wanting to be prime minister some day. He insists Japan will stick to local defense forces with conventional arms, and leave the responsibility of nuclear defense to the United States.

Albania Cocoon Breaking?

by RICHARD M. SUDHALTER

BELGRADE (UPI)—The cocoon of isolation surrounding Albania, the least-understood nation in Europe, at last appears to be breaking. The abiding political question now for the East and West is why.

Tirana, the capital of the lone European ally of Communist China, has put out a series of diplomatic feelers in recent months clearly aimed at thawing relations on a wide variety of fronts.

It has exchanged ambassadors with Scandinavian countries and made open overtures to "revisionist" Yugoslavia next door. It has negotiated cultural and technical exchanges with Egypt and Turkey and increased trade with Romania.

Most surprising of all was Albania's signing in June of a trade agreement with Greece, with which it is still technically at war. A Greek foreign ministry spokesman went as far this month as to could lead to "the start of eventual diplomatic relations."

Relations or no, the trade pact is an unprecedented Albanian gesture toward Greece, a key Atlantic alliance member whose leaders are regularly decried throughout the Communist world as "a fascist military clique." It also is a landmark on what appears to be Albania's path to a new concept of its role in the international political picture.

Albania, a mountainous land of only two million inhabitants, is about the size of Vermont and Rhode Island combined. It borders the Adriatic across from the heel of the Italian Boot, between Yugoslavia and Greece.

Its borders remain closed to all but a steady trickle of foreign visitors who are closely supervised during their stays. Albania participates in no regular diplomatic or political activity in Europe.

Once a Warsaw Pact member, it began a drift out of the Soviet orbit in the 1950s which culminated in a break with the alliance in 1968.

Since then Tirana has strengthened its political and military ties with China, though periodic reports of Chinese missiles and other weapons systems in Albania have never been verified.

East European diplomats in Belgrade said recent Albanian moves appear to indicate realization in Tirana that close ties with Peking—even ideological ones—do not imply identical political needs or even attitudes.

"It would be wrong to assume that Albania and China have completely similar views concerning world problems," the Zagreb newspaper Vjesnik commented April 25. "On the contrary, there have existed important differences (between them) and individual points of view on certain international issues. Internal developments in Albania, moreover, are certainly no imitation of Chinese socialism."

Accordingly, Albania has developed a highly individual approach to its relations with neighboring Greece and Yugoslavia, as well as with Bulgaria and Romania.

Communist Party leader Enver Hoxha followed up a series of friendly newspaper articles by praising "good neighborly relations" with Yugoslavia in a May 30 speech in Bajram Curri, near the Yugoslav border.

His remarks followed only a week after a decision by the Yugoslav party Presidium to step up development of Kosovo, the largely Albanian-populated South Yugoslav province bordering Albania.

Hoxha took note—another unprecedented move—of the fact that Albanians in Kosovo are being granted more and more rights by the Belgrade government.

Diplomats warned, however, that the influence of Chinese policy on Albanian thinking, while far from absolute, cannot be underplayed. They recalled Peking took the lead in thawing out its international diplomatic relations, sending back to their posts many ambassadors pulled home during China's "cultural revolution" in the 1960s.

Yugoslavia's first ambassador to Peking in 12 years arrived in the Chinese capital in May. Peking's envoy is expected in Belgrade within the next few weeks.

Albanian-Yugoslav relations remain at a level.

The reason or reasons for the Chinese and Albanian thaws remain subjects for discussion, at least for the moment. But most diplomats here advise close study of the Sino-Soviet dispute for possible clues. "Both the Chinese and the Albanians fear the Soviet Union," one senior western diplomat said recently. "For them, good relations these days could mean more sympathy for their side of things—and possibly more support."

The Kremlin periodically reaffirms its declared readiness to restore good relations with its ex-Warsaw Pact ally on the South Adriatic despite what it terms "intrigues by hostile forces" — presumably the Chinese.

But for Moscow radio, the Graeco-Albanian trade pact in June "meets the wishes of official circles in the U.S.A. for paving the path for American penetration into Albania through their links with the Greek fascist junta."

From all indications, Albania's diplomatic "new look" has already begun to yield results. Yugoslav President Tito, apparently taking Hoxha's cue, told a recent rally in Zabljak, South Yugoslavia: "We have no other interests than good relations as far as Albania is concerned. It has always been our wish to make our relations as good as possible. True, our systems are different—but this should not be a reason for poor relations on the frontiers."

Youth Work Together In Unique Mass

by WANDALYN RICE

The young priest sat quietly under the bare light bulb — listening.

"Let's pray that what we have discovered will become a way of life," the young girl said softly.

Her prayer was the call to worship. The church was a small garage decorated with signs and posters.

"Christ had a dream of love, live it," one read.

"It is better to have loved and lost than to have hated and won," read another.

The congregation sat on lawn chairs or on blankets on the concrete floor.

The priest wore a brown-striped knit shirt and slacks. Only minutes before he had been laughing and talking with the now-silent congregation.

NEXT TO THE PRIEST was a bare picnic table with only a chalice. The picnic table would soon be transformed into an altar where he would say the ancient Christian Eucharist rite.

But first, there was a discussion of readings that had been selected by members of the congregation and the priest.

The discussion was subdued, almost sad. Finally one girl spoke up. "Just sitting here with nobody saying anything is the most beautiful because what we feel just can't be said in words."

This mass was the last official celebration to be held by the Rev. Joe Sander for a mass group formed of area young people two years ago.

The group, composed of high school and college students, gathered at the home of one of the members for the celebration. Father Sander was being transferred to Peoria.

During the prayer of the faithful, one girl said, "I think we should be thankful that Joe has been with us for so long and pray for him and the kids who need him in Peoria."

THE STORY OF THE mass group, however, involves more than the story of the last mass Father Sander said Sunday.

It began two years ago when a young couple, Mike and Rosemary Green, moved into Arlington Heights.

"We had been involved in the Newman Club (a Catholic youth organization) at college," Green explained, "and when we went back to the regular church it was not what we wanted."

The Greens became involved with the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine (the Catholic Sunday School) and through that set up a mass group with young people from several parishes.

Youths from Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines were soon involved in the group and Father Sander, director of guidance at St. Viator's High School, became the group's regular priest.

During the next two years the group developed close relationships. Instead of a sermon, their services had dialogues between those attending and the priests.

"It isn't something you can just go to, you kind of have to come a part of it," Green said.

THE DIALOGUES covered many topics — death, sex, drugs, parents and the meaning of the mass.

"In many ways these are ordinary kids with kids' problems," Green said, "but in a sense they are very different. I don't know how many kids are concerned about the mass they go to and who are upset when it doesn't go right."

Members of the group met every Wednesday night at the Greens' apartment to plan the topic for the dialogue and the readings for the next mass.

"It doesn't upset me when people say perience," Green said.

The whole process was a learning experience where there are young people in your group who don't believe in God. The mass group is a way to come and hear other people's ideas about God."

Now the group is in transition. Not only is Father Sander leaving, but the Greens are leaving too.

"We have told them we are officially quitting on Sept. 1, but unofficially we will probably never quit," Green said.

Last week the group held a meeting to discuss the future. They decided to continue.

"The kids are beginning to realize how much they have," Green said.

THIS FALL THE masses will be held for one month at each of three to five parishes, with different priests officiating each week. The group is also arranging for some adult couples to fill the Greens' role.

St. James and Our Lady of the Way-side churches in Arlington Heights and St. Collette's School in Rolling Meadows have already agreed to let the mass groups use their facilities, and priests have agreed to say mass.

The group is also talking to two other parishes about meeting places.

The one-month-at-each-place arrangement will make transportation problems easier for the group. "Now people have to call every week to find out where we are," Green said.

Father Ray Devereux of St. James, who began a mass group for younger students last year, said he will help with the larger group.

The youthful mass groups are useful, he said, because "the kids are at the age where they are starting to search out the meaning of religion in their lives. When topics in the mass are related to their own lives and needs it will help."

In addition, he said, the participants are likely to bring about greater changes as they return to the regular church.

"THE FREEDOM IN in the mass today is great and unless there is someone to say what to do with it, it can be lost," he said. "At first the mass groups are very important to the kids, but as they find their identity they find they have to express it by going out into the larger church."

The youthful mass group will use a creed written by the group.

"Previous creeds were written by priests and cardinals to define what it meant to be a Catholic," Green said. "The kids wanted this creed to define as simply as possible what they believed."

The creed reads:

"I believe in me. I believe in you. I believe the world is mine and yours. I believe that together we can create a world of love."

"I believe in God, therefore I love, I trust, I seek justice, I search for brotherhood and peace."

"I believe in Jesus the Christ. I believe he was a man like us, a man of peace who suffered death and I believe he is with us."

"I believe all this and more."

Board Of Health Cautions Doctors

Doctors and dentists in Elk Grove Village may be instructed to find a better means of disposing of needles and syringes.

Board of Health members recently indicated they may take this action after they learned that youngsters may have been probing inside refuse containers searching for the discarded items.

The potential problem was brought to the attention of the board Wednesday by Robert Victorine, shopping center consultant in charge of the medical building in the Grove Mall.

THE DEVELOPER of the building had been sent a notice by the village Fire Prevention Bureau for violation of fire and health codes in the building.

Much of the uncleanness of the building is due to vandalism by youngsters, who also may be opening the garbage bags by the disposal container looking for needles and syringes, Victorine said.

He added that a step-up in police patrol around the Grove Mall has cut down on fast bike riding in the area, but other solutions must be found to stop the vandalism.

Plans are being made to have Mrs. Barbara Watson, health inspector, tour medical offices in the village and inquire about disposal. Doctors may be requested not to put needles and syringes in the garbage which is thrown in the disposal container daily.

Dr. Ferdinand Leyva, chairman of the health board and St. Alexius Hospital administrator, suggested that the doctors investigate the purchase of a machine which would crush the needles and syringes before they are disposed.

Street Concert ...For Education

NEW YORK (UPI)—The gentle rain had stopped. Eighteen-year-old Lou Rosenberg reappeared on the corner of 42nd Street and Lexington Avenue in Manhattan to blow another mellow melody of Beatles, folk and show tunes in his trombone.

"On the sidewalk next to his foot lay an open horn case with a sign that read: 'Help! I Need Funds For My First Semester At College. Let An Artist Learn His Profession.'"

His music flowed tunelessly through the humid air, but few of the afternoon rush hour pedestrians gave him a second glance. Even fewer gave him money. By 6 p.m. he had blown his last note of the day. He sat down on the warm concrete beside his coin-sprinkled trombone case.

"I don't brag that I do it," He spoke openly and rapidly about his sidewalk serenading that began four weeks earlier. "I never thought I would do anything like this. I was jamming with some guys in Central Park on Sundays—not for money—just for the fun of it. We started passing the hat around and then I decided to try it on my own."

Lou's first day out was an unsuccessful one in Manhattan's garment district. "But I only had six or seven songs then," he admitted. Since moving uptown he has added 10 songs to his repertoire and averages about $12 for five hours of play. Most contributors give him about 15 cents.

"I was playing 'A Day in the Life of A Fool,'" he said, grinning, "and a man came up to me and said he'd been humming that song all day long. He gave me a dollar."

The tall, thin Brooklynite assured that the money he collected from pedestrians really was needed for his upcoming semester at Staten Island's Wagner College.

Lou is one of about eight student musicians who are testing the generosity of passing New Yorkers this summer. He has become acquainted with most of them. Richard, for example, is a violin player who does quite well because, according to Lou, he gives a tear-jerking speech before each performance.

Two musicians named Steve, one a drummer (on a tin pail) and the other a flute player, are regulars at Times Square after 8 p.m. They are sometimes accompanied by an uninvited derelict who puts his own donation hat on the sidewalk and gyrates drunkenly to their music. One girl sits on a Times Square fire hydrant playing the guitar and singing. The sign in her guitar case reads simply, "Help Me Breathe Fresh Air This Summer."

Most don't solicit the pedestrians by passing a hat. They simply play and hope to be heard above the roar of the traffic. Lou said that the street concerts are illegal but they are only occasionally asked to move. "The New York City police are unbelievably nice," he said.

This Tale Quite Sweet

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Just in case you've ever wondered how maple syrup was discovered, the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets tells an old tale about an Indian squaw and her husband.

The squaw, so the story goes, left her cooking pot under a tree where her brave was napping so that when he awoke he would take the hint and go to the spring and fetch water.

But the brave, angered because getting water was a chore for women, drove his tomahawk into the tree in a fit of temper and walked away. The tree happened to be a maple, so sap ran into the pot.

The next morning the squaw found the pot, thought it was filled with water, and boiled it over her fire. As evaporation took place, she found she had made a sweet syrup.

Anyway, that's how the story goes.

The Way We See It

Ogilvie In National Spotlight

Two resolutions approved by the recent National Governors Conference had the effect of placing Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie in the national limelight.

The resolutions, introduced by Ogilvie, strike at the heart of major political and social problems: urban transportation and the declining role of the states.

Ogilvie introduced, and got passed, a resolution calling for establishment of a federal trust to funnel funds to states with mass transit financial problems. Such funding is essential, and Ogilvie's resolution could be helpful in breaking down the federal emphasis on spending for highways.

A second resolution called for a U.S. Constitutional Convention to provide for federal tax sharing. It was a blunt power play, aimed at forcing Congress to approve a tax sharing program rather than face a Constitutional Convention. And it had that effect, forcing a House committee chairman to release tax sharing legislation. Should Congress defeat the measure, however, the threat of a Convention still hangs as an implied threat.

While we have endorsed federal tax sharing, we are inclined to agree with Illinois Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, who said, "We have to stop the thinking that if we can't get a pet legislative program through Congress that we amend the federal constitution."

The strength of our Constitution is that it is not a piece of legislation. If Congress doesn't pass needed laws, it should be replaced, not circumvented.

The Political Beat

Nixon Needs A 'Rabbit'

by CHARLES E. HUFNAGEL

Whether the word has gone out or not indications are that the financial and business community of the nation are aware that the Nixon Administration expects more than a complacent sitting on hands during the coming hectic 1970 election campaign. The GOP has to get control of at least one of the houses of Congress to bring the President any comfort for the Battle of 1972. By a bit of spectacular fortune, Republican strategists believe control of the Senate can be accomplished. It will take a landslide to swing the House, something that defies all optimism at this time. Can Mr. Nixon pull a rabbit out of a hat, any kind of hat?

THIS MAKES THE Illinois Senate contest now warming up between Adlai III and Senator Ralph T. Smith a key decision in the Nixon plans. The GOP has selected "law and order" as the key issue in the campaign which means clamping down on the college kids and riots and upholding the arm of the police to protect citizens wherever they may be and whoever they may be. It's a Republican challenge to patriotism.

The Democrats will stick to the "bread and butter" issue which has been their staple since FDR took command in 1932. They are encouraged because they say take home home pay not only affects the unprivileged and the low-income people but in this era of advanced technology a recession-inflation puts high income people with college degrees in the ranks of the unemployed.

With the fading out of space and military procurements in various industries, news reports tell of some top income people biting the dust. Will they and should they take it without protest? The Democrats argue that the Nixonites are looking at unemployment and take home pay through the eyes of the 1930's. There is in progress a technological slowdown in a technological society. The college trained are hit as much as the uneducated. Adlai backers are saying it calls for a new deal.

The Democrats will also charge that the Nixon Administration is mixing the old and new economics, a party managed economy with the ancient laissez faire. Such policy with recession-inflation, the Democrats predict, will lead to disaster.

But the big disenchantment is with the Nixon foreign policy which despite Lyndon Johnson's bold adventure in Vietnam in the name of American defense has some Democrats at Washington worried. They see in West Germany's deal with Russia a lost confidence in the American military to make its presence acknowledged around the world. The Soviet boldness everywhere they claim testifies to what is happening.

SO IT COULD very well happen from the events between now and Nov. 3 on the international scene that the GOP "law and order" and the Democrats "bread and butter" will be required to step aside as "the issue." A parent Administration optimism is no safe guideline in a world where distrust prevails on all sides with trade wars growing in intensity and national currencies wobbling. It's the perfect setting for the man on horseback.

There are some who will shrink from so gloomy an outlook. They should be reminded of Spengler's declaration that "optimism is cowardice." It can become a fear to face the realities, to examine them intelligently and measure their impact. The domestic and international situation must be handled realistically by both candidates in the election campaign otherwise Illinois citizens could be voting for self-deception.

Eye on Arlington

Ruling Could Close Track

by ROGER CAPELLINI

There just may not be any racing at Arlington Park next year.

Although the Illinois Racing Board has abandoned their investigation of the track, they now seem to be zeroing in on the ownership from a different angle.

This time the all-powerful board is taking aim through a proposed new rule that would require the licensing of all officers, directors and substantial owners of race tracks before the granting of racing dates for next year. A superficial examination of the proposal would indicate that the licensing proposal is fair and desirable, but a more thorough look uncovers some serious defects.

OF COURSE THE proposal is not limited to Arlington Park, and its sister track Washington Park — but these two tracks would be deeply affected if the rule is adopted because of the structure of their ownership.

Section "a" of the proposal defines a person with a "substantial interest" as "any person, trust or foundation owning 5 per cent or more of the equity of an applicant for racing dates." The proposal also includes holders of 5 per cent or more of the equity of a corporation, and its officers and directors, which owns 25 per cent or more of the equity of an applicant.

In the case of Arlington and Washington Parks, this rule means at least 53 separate applications for licensing. All because of their publicly owned nature. The tracks are owned and operated by Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE), which is wholly owned by Transation Development Corp. which in turn is partially controlled by Gulf and Western Industries.

By sheer coincidence, it is to be supposed, of the seven other race tracks in the state, six are privately owned. Of course they would still have to be licensed, but the number of applications would increase little, if any, from last year. Hawthorne, Sportsman's, Balmoral, Maywood and Cahokia Downs are all privately owned. Aurora Downs is owned by Knox College. Fairmount Park, near Collinsville, owned by the Ogden Corp., is the only other track that is publicly owned.

PRESUMABLY, IF ANY of those persons with a "substantial interest" did not meet with the approval of the racing board, the applicant would be denied racing dates. The only problem is that when corporations such as Transation and Gulf and Western Industries is publicly owned, there can be no control over who purchases stock on the open market.

If a known gangster, for example, purchased a 5 per cent interest in Gulf and Western Industries, it would be possible and probable that Arlington Park would be denied racing dates. Of course there would be little the corporation could do about it. They could try to buy out the "hood," but then he could just take the profit and buy more stock. Their other alternative would be to close the track and build homes, or apartments or a shopping center. When confronted with this hypothetical situation, Edward Justice Long, racing board commissioner, said, "That's the risk a company takes when it goes public."

Other aspects of the proposed rule are equally repulsive. All track owners will probably oppose the board having carte blanche authority to spend the applicant's money to investigate the ownership of the tracks. Of course the expenditures would run considerably higher the more people that would have to be investigated. Another strike against publicly owned corporations.

Still a third section seems to be aimed at the ownership of Arlington and Washington Parks. This section would deny racing dates to anyone who has any interest in gaming, legal or not, in another state or country. The complex ownership of Arlington Park has legal, financial interests in Roosevelt Raceway in New York and in gambling casinos in the Bahamas.

THESE INTERESTS ARE, of course, legal and closely supervised by authorities in those areas. Accepting this provision of the proposal would be like denying a liquor license to an applicant who owns a nightclub in the next county.

The racing board has the duty, the responsibility, and indeed the obligation to the people of this state to keep the racing business "clean." It must be assumed the racing board is completely well meaning in its efforts to do so. But if the board accepts the proposed rule as it now exists, it may be eliminating racing instead of supervising it.

Quota On Human Error?

In reply to the letter of Aug. 20, to the person who requested his name be withheld.

Just as you vigorously objected to the article on ticket quotas, may I object to the reasoning behind your letter. Definitely, as you stated, there usually are contributing factors to all accidents: designs of roads, road surfaces, poor lighting, etc. And who among us can state that anyone designing a roadway, or any roadway, ever claimed it to be hazard-free. However, the major contributing factor to all accidents is human error, that error being committed by a person behind the wheel of a car, who believes as you lead me to believe of you, that he is one of those privileged few who laws do not apply to.

IF YOU THINK 90 miles an hour is a safe speed, perhaps 90 miles an hour should be a legal speed. But if said motorist, going 90 miles an hour, kills your child, or causes an accident which disables you or one of your loved ones, does that make it illegal as well as unsafe in your mind?

I also resent the term "brainwashed" as used in your letter. I am very proud to be the wife of one policeman and daughter of another, and no time has my husband spoken of being pressured, forced or coerced into writing a ticket

'Little Pay

for something he himself did not judge to be illegal or unsafe. He writes as he sees them, as I'm sure 90 per cent of the officers do.

You speak of intelligent people not supporting the police. Who do you intelligent people call when you need help of someone has deprived or tried to deprive you of your rights or belongings? I have had dealings with various police departments and have always been treated courteously and as an intelligent human being, and have reciprocated as such.

When people realize policemen are human beings, screened very carefully before they are hired, and get damn little salary for the physical and verbal abuse they put up with from the intelligent people such as yourself, they might appreciate the job these men do, and yes, even the tickets they give us intelligent human beings to try and prevent us from killing each other for lack of common sense.

Carnival Takes Volunteers

In response to Mr. Robert Bergman's negative comments regarding the Palatine Legion-Lions Carnival, I am curious to know if he is a member of either organization. In all probability he is not, or he would not have offered these comments.

As for the number of attractions offered... this is a very limited area due to the lack of volunteer workers of both organizations. Do you realize that each booth, game, and ticket cage is manned by a member of the Legion or Lions who have given up many of their leisure hours to help out? Attractions are also limited because of certain law statutes.

Refreshments are available only through volunteer Legion Auxiliary members. Their work begins two months before carnival time ordering food, pop, etc. Many hours are given in the preparation and serving the food. You could almost say that this part of the carnival is a public service as the Auxiliary realizes a very small profit; sometimes none. General attendance has much to do with the competition of other civic events on the same dates, vacations, and last but not least, the weather and the elements.

I AGREE WITH Mr. Bergman's disturbance at having to pay 50 cents for a can of beer. I understand one has to pay the same or more for a beer at ball games, sport events, special events, race track, etc., and those are all profit making enterprises. But he must admit, the beer was cold, and it was in an easy to handle can and not a flimsy paper cup.

He states, "perhaps if next year we were less worried about making money and more concerned about providing some genuine attractions, we might be surprised at the results." WE, the Legion and Lions have to overcome many obstacles each year, and yet always do the best we can. Indeed WE are rightfully concerned about making money as both organizations are non-profit and the proceeds of this event are used for charities, too numerous to list, Veterans, Service Men, and for the welfare and service of the community, state, and nation.

Next time Mr. Bergman, know the facts before you compare.

Rotary: Thank You; Sorry...

May we take this opportunity to thank all of the people (both young and not-so-young) who attended the circus sponsored by the Palatine Rotary this past Monday afternoon and evening. Both shows were completely filled to overflow capacity. Through gifts of local businesses we were able to invite several hundred underprivileged children, including children from Camp Reinberg, Clearbrook, Countryside, Norwesco's Headstart, Maryville City of Youth and Wheeling Service Corps, to the circus.

Our financial success from this venture is not so important to Rotary as our goodwill and respect in this community.

WE, THEREFORE, sincerely apologize for: 75-cent reserved seat section which should have been pre-advertised, the commercialism of selling many items during the show, and the insufficient seating space.

Some of these inconveniences were policy of the circus management over which we had no control and received no profit, our only profit being derived from the sale of tickets.

With these facts in mind we again say that we are sorry that all were not pleased or satisfied, but we are truly grateful to this community for their fine support. Thank you.

John T. Wilson
President,
Palatine Rotary Club

You're Welcome!

The Immanuel Lutheran School Parent Teacher League would like to express a sincere thank you to Paddock Publications and especially to Miss Judy Brandes for the excellent news coverage we were given during the 1969-70 school year.

We feel the success of our annual beef dinner, book fair, talent show, etc. was greatly due to the publicity given them by Paddock Publications.

Mrs. Robert Lueder
Publicity Chairman
Immanuel Lutheran School, Parent Teacher League
Palatine

No, Mr. Roy, please speak only for yourself. I am one Rolling Meadows resident who thoroughly enjoyed the series and only wish it could have been brought to its conclusion as scheduled.

Answers On Viator Land

I am writing to respond to three separate letters from citizens which have appeared in the Herald concerning the Viatorian land proposal.

1. To Mrs. Dorothy Behis: You wrote "People are concerned that their real estate tax rate will rise to accommodate a large influx of non-tax paying citizens."

First, I would like to point out that the St. Viator land has never been on the tax rolls as it is church owned and therefore tax-exempt.

Secondly, the people buying low and moderate income housing will be taxed on the same tax rate as anyone else. X dollars for X dollars evaluated property. The federal financing such as FHA which the developer will apply for helps the buyer in two ways: A) a lower interest rate and B) a lower down payment. Homes in the surrounding area will not devalue because the proposed housing will be of the same quality, or of higher quality, as the existing area. The federal government has very stringent qualifications for builders who apply. Low income housing does not mean low cost housing or poor construction.

2. To Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown who stated "we have lived in Arlington Heights for 15 years and no one gave us anything."

No one gives anything away today, least of all houses. 15 years ago houses were much cheaper, but even then FHA and VA helped with the financing. This is all that low and moderate income housing means: the buyers are helped with financing only.

3. MRS. R. ZIMMANCK wrote a letter which had many good questions. I would like to answer as many as I can.

Question: How many units and bedrooms in the units will be on the 15 acres?

Answer: This is up to the developer. The Viatorians are meeting to study proposals. I know they do not want barracks type housing and want as much open land, including playgrounds, as possible. Roughly, the maximum number of units may be 150-180, but it could be 70-100 for single family homes instead of townhouses.

Question: What will be the income requirements?

Answer: This depends on the federal financing plan that the builder applies for, but generally it is this: up to $6,000 for low income and up to $12,000 for moderate income, depending on the number of children.

Q: Can the village handle the increased population in schools, parks and streets?

A: This question is irrelevant because some type of housing will be put up if this proposal does not go through, and the same problems will occur.

Remember that open land and playgrounds will be included in the plans. As for the poor having larger families, I doubt it. Consider that in a two block area on my street there are 123 children. This is in 300 000-40,000 houses.

Q: Will there be adequate medical and dental care?

A: This is a nationwide problem as there is a shortage of doctors.

Q: Will there be enough electric power and water?

A: As well as being an environmental issue this is also a problem for the Arlington Heights building department. They will not issue permits unless there are adequate public facilities. Hookups in the existing systems of sewage, gas, water, phones and electricity will be paid for by the builder, as usual.

Q: WILL THERE BE adequate garbage collection, mail delivery, fire and police protection?

A: Again this would be a problem with any new homes. But, many of the above people work here but cannot afford to live here. Perhaps low income housing will bring more of these workers to this area. According to a recent (June 1970) survey made by Sales Management Magazine, 69 per cent of Arlington Heights residents have incomes under $5,000. (According to national averages half would be retired.) This 6.9 per cent represents 1,070 families — more than five times the number of families this housing could be stretched to accommodate. 18.6 per cent of Arlington residents have incomes of $5,000-10,000, so there is an even greater need for moderate income housing.

Q: Is perimeter land available?

A: If it was available it would raise the same questions as above. There may be land, but it is not available at this time. And now there is a nation wide housing shortage. According to government statistics 50 per cent of the population cannot afford to buy homes.

Q: Will rezoning of the land set a precedent?

A: Probably not, as each piece of land is zoned on its own merits, according to the plans of the developer.

I hope that I have proved helpful. The League of Women Voters is planning a fact sheet on this and they will be able to answer everything more specifically. This fact sheet will probably be printed in this paper.

Women's Liberation Movement

Degree—Need Or Snobbery?

I am writing this letter in reference to the one written by a Mr. Bob Wirka on Aug. 5.

Let me first say that Mr. Wirka doesn't know what he is talking about. My husband is a Chicago policeman with a "college education" which seems to mean so much to Mr. Wirka. Don't you think that's just a bit of intellectual snobbery, sir? I've met some college grads who couldn't hold a job as an office boy. A college education does not make the man.

You people out here in the suburbs and in the cities, too, who sit smugly in judgment of the police; especially those who work in large cities where the crime rate is so high, you make me sick. You have no idea other than what you read in newspapers or magazine articles of what really goes on. You have to see and work with this day after day and then I wonder how many of you brave hypocrites would want the thankless job of a police officer.

IT'S EASY FOR PEOPLE to criticize when they themselves are not involved, when every move the policeman makes is commented on by a newspaper or television reporter. I wonder how business people, professional people and the like would rank with the news media constantly watching their every move.

I'm sick of hearing my husband referred to as a "pig" or a "fascist."

I'm sick of people who were not at the scene of riots commenting on what should or should not have been done.

If it weren't for the policemen, I wonder how many of you could sleep at night without fear. In times of emergency illnesses or accidents on the highway how many of you relied on the police for help.

As far as Mr. Wirka's comments concerning two or three incidents, where the police officer may have been in the wrong, I can cite many, many incidents where I've seen the police officer helping people. trying to protect people who didn't deserve protection. Any profession, whether it be teaching, law, medicine, etc., has its quacks. I'm sure many of us have seen teachers who shouldn't teach, lawyers who shouldn't practice law, doctors who shouldn't practice medicine, but these people are in the minority.

I'm sorry of "the establishment" is one of your hang-ups, Mr. Wirka, but we've all got to "do our own thing."

PERHAPS IF PEOPLE like you would contribute more to our society instead of tearing it apart you wouldn't have to worry so much about law enforcement. If you would mind your own business and let the policeman do his. Believe it or not, he knows a lot more about his work than you do Mr. Wirka.

Vesely Column Angered

I, too, was quite incensed over Jim Vesely's article on the editorial page in a recent issue of the Herald. Reporters like him and articles like this serve no purpose other than to inflame an already aroused public.

It seems that every article appearing in the Herald is slanted in favor of ad-hoc, the Human Relations Committee, et al. How about some favorable coverage for we that oppose this "so-called" low-cost housing development?

THE PEOPLE in favor of this project are the ones that will not be directly affected by it. It seems all the letters you receive "for" this project are from people as far away as Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Des Plaines and areas in Arlington Heights far enough removed not to be immediately affected by it. I say "immediately" because if this property is allowed to deteriorate everyone in this town will eventually feel the brunt. And you, Mr. Vesely, shouldn't have one word to say, pro or con, except "thank God it's not Schaumburg."

On the front page of yesterday's issue of the Herald there was an article entitled "Walsh Not On Panel." When you

Liked Academy

Having attended the Sidewalk Academy sponsored by the Committee for Community Education for three weeks, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the sponsors of these lectures for making this series available in our area.

Even though I do not agree with all the speakers, it is very interesting and mentally stimulating to be exposed to the varied views of the speakers.

With the exception of a few women at the last lecture, I am constantly amazed at the caliber of the audience. What it lacks in quantity it makes up for in quality. During the question and answer periods following the speakers' talks, the questions asked are usually very articulate and thought provoking.

Thanks again to all who made the academy possible. To those of you who have been unable to attend, I can assure you that you would have found the time well spent, whether you agreed or disagreed with the speakers.

Mrs. Joan Poulos

get into the article you find not only Mayor Walsh won't attend but neither would your own editor (Mr. Charles Hayes) and Representative Schlickman and probably not Representative Regner but according to Thursday's Herald this was all "cut and dried." This is reporting?

Talk about "stacking" the panel — everyone listed to appear next Wednesday, July 15, was in favor of this "so-called" low-cost housing — how about a "pro" and "con" panel???? (The people that refused to appear had to do so politically — Where is the courage of their convictions?????)

Then, too, we have to put up with the extremists, or "do-gooders," (as they are commonly called) in this town that really do not care about the rest of us but they do make sure this development will not be built near them. What makes them so self-righteous that they should decide what is good for the rest of us?

The biggest disservice done to this community was the Day Publications selling out to Paddock Publications. This town is large enough for two newspapers whether they agree or not on public issues. It took the "Day" to turn Paddock Publications into a "5 day a week" newspaper — Paddock seemed to feel they were doing us a favor by putting out a paper full of "ads" every Thursday until the "Day" came on the scene.

THE "POWER OF THE press" is "mighty" but you still have the "silent majority" to put up with — personally, I'm tired of being part of this group!!! As long as you have a "captive audience" how about a little objective reporting????!!!!

Getting back to the issue at hand — that of the Viatorian property — I noticed that there was a majority report issued but no minority report — I feel that we are entitled to this information

Problem: Rush Hours, Saturdays

The traffic plan in downtown Arlington Heights was designed by engineers and traffic planners. Sure, they know what's good for the downtown area, but they don't know what the residents want. There should be some sort of public hearings on the matter.

because we are the people that will be directly affected. Also, I don't believe there was any mention of the price to be paid for this property involved — why hasn't this been made public? We should be "happy" over this project when everything that has been done so far seems to be so underhanded and one-sided especially as far as press coverage is concerned?

Because we try to preserve and protect what we have worked hard and long to obtain we are labeled "racists." This is quite unfortunate but it is a fact that we will have to live with.

I'll tell you what, Mr. Vesely, you get the "do-gooders" to move the site of low-cost housing to, say, Schaumburg, Elk Grove or even Des Plaines and I'll get out and fight for it. It's easy to fight for a cause when you know that you, your family and your property will not be affected by it.

Mrs. Edward Liebenow
Arlington Heights

Novick Did Well

The Hoffman-Schaumburg Committee on Human Relations wishes to thank your reporter, Steve Novick, for his informative coverage of our "Cycos of Savings" project.

We have had very good response from the people and the container at Guido Foods parking lot is being filled with old newspapers once every 10 days. We hope the people will continue to bring their old newspapers, and that even more people in the area will do so. Maybe then we could fill it once a week, or even more often.

Hoffman-Schaumburg Committee
Mrs. Stanley Gray

Besides, Arlington Heights has no traffic problem except during rush hours and Saturday mornings. Why not have policemen direct traffic at those times. Isn't that their job?

Regent Park No Guide

This is in reply to Mrs. O'Connor's letter which appeared in the Herald on July 6. The lady seemed to be talking in circles and about a great many things not pertinent to the problem at hand. The lady stated she resides in Regent Park and proceeded to build a comparison of what has happened in that area over a period of years and suggested the same could happen if the Viatorian property is developed as proposed by some interested parties. I think the lady was a little shy of the bull's eye in drawing her comparison because she did not stick to the industry at work if you purchased 1. Regent Park, as she stated, was private. Here are a few:

property there, you made the initial down payment, arranged for the balance in the form of a mortgage, and got in the same boat with the rest of us and began to pull on the oars. The Viatorian proposal of a government project or underwriting with the resultant aid and assistance, subsidies, politicians, do-gooders and bleeding hearts. I have found that people who ride for half fare or no fare at all have no pride of ownership.

2. When the developers of Regent Park were given the go-ahead, what was the land situation, at least in part? Let's look at the four sides. Well, there are several thousand peaceful sleeping souls in permanent residence on the north who neither care whether Regent Park becomes a slum or a millionaire's retreat. Why? It's a cemetery. During the day, five days a week, there are approximately 3,000 people on the south that don't care very much, one way or the other, what goes on in Regent Park. Why? It is the property of High School Dist. 214 (Prospect High School). That takes care of two sides — now to the east and west. You may check me if you wish but the builders of Regent Park (private industry) built 17 one family residences on the west side of the condominiums and 17 one family residences on the east side. This, Mrs. O'Connor, is known as a buffer.

THESE HOMES are expensive and beautiful, as are your condominiums, but they were put there for a reason, and I am sure, the developer piled up a few "brownie points" with the east and west neighbors as a result of this buffer.

The Viatorian property is completely surrounded by an area zoned for single family residences. No natural barrier is called for such as apartments between business or industry because single family residences are already on four sides of the Viatorian property — a barrier in no valid argument. I make the point because the above is usually the reason given for a zoning change.

The Viatorians simply want to change the rules of the game for their benefit, and, at the expense of a great many property owners I always felt the zoning on my property was something comparable to the insurance on my money in the bank. I hope so because I have more invested in my home than in the bank.

3. As to whether the Viatorian offer of 15 acres is a token offer, I could care less. Sure, they have to protect their position but how about the adjacent property owners? Aren't we to be considered? The offer by the Viatorians to make the land available for multiple housing with a proposed change in the present zoning is no bighearted offer on the part of the Viatorians. It is a coldly calculated plan for more dollars if the sucker property owners will just stand still.

I quickly calculated that if another street was cut west of Drury, and the same width of Drury, and going north from Euclid 19 lots each 66 feet wide were laid out on each side of the new street, zoned for single family residences, the lots if sold for $15,000 each would return $270,000, minus development costs. And this on 9.1 acres. But no, the Viatorians don't want to play within the present rules. They want to change the rules of the game in the name of "sweet charity" on their part and at someone else's expense.

Sweet charity my eye — we are talking about money!! Fifteen acres rezoned for multiple housing ups the ante two or three times so now we are talking about $2,000,000!! Where do the adjacent property owners go to get their $15,000 to compensate for loss in their property value? To the Zoning Board or the Viatorian Fathers?

4. PLEASE, MRS. O'CONNOR, do not bring up racial mix. If it is too late to now get it at Regent Park that is your tough luck, you will have to move elsewhere. However, racial mix has nothing to do with the point in question as far as I am concerned. People with black, yellow or brown skin can buy next to me or move in behind me if the house is a single family residence and they pay the same freight I am. I am of Scot-Irish-English-Welsh-German-1 per cent Indian mix so it can also be added I do not want any of my blood brothers offered a half price ride at my expense after some rules are broken.

I do not wish to dwell on other factors too much, but more school rooms and teachers would be called for if multiple housing went up on the Viatorian property. The same is true if single family homes were built but not to the same extent. But the buyers of single family homes know what they are in for when they put their money on he line.

Calls Election 'Unfair'

In reference to the recent article concerning the H.E.T.A., we would like to give the public a look at the true side of the club.

To begin, to understand the unfairness of the club, one must look at the conditions under which the elections of officers were held. With five elder members present, four of them were elected to offices, two of whom have yet to be present at the courts or at club functions. The reason that younger players were not present at the meeting was because the meeting was held, (with full knowledge) on the night of the spring sports banquet, thus ruling out the possibility of interested Conant players attending the meeting.

A second example of the unfair situation that exists is the persistence of Hoffman Estates Tennis Assn. to make

Mutual Respect

Critic's Corner: Pat Adam and her analysis of the appearance of newswoman Gloria Steinem on the Dick Cavett Show the other night. Obviously, few if any national discussion leaders wish to empathize or draw out people like Miss Steinem on the real issues of the situation. They'd apparently rather ridicule or humiliate. Yet, we do have a vast groundswell demanding at long last equal rights—first class citizenship for women.

But certainly to me and my circle of acquaintances that have discussed this, a classless society has nothing whatever to do with obtaining these goals. We have to admit; some people are prettier, some people are smarter, some people are loaded with talent far in excess of what anyone of us may be. Conversely, some people are worse off than any one of us.

SO LET'S STICK to basics: women are first, human beings like men and are entitled to equal rights in citizenship and under the law as befits any citizen of this country. We should be granted the right by the laws of the land and by society to develop our lives to the highest we can. We have a contribution to make on all levels. Let the legislators unloose their binds; let the Supreme Court give us equal justice; let the men realize that we reject the concept of sex-objectism but welcome relationships that endure because of a mutual respect in the prism of life... one for the other and vice versa; let society understand that we will be delighted to have the young because we want to rather than because law says we must. Let's quit this nonsense: boys don't cry; girls must marry and bear children.

Sue Andersen

high schools play with the men when there is sufficient quantity to make a separate age group. The ULSTA classifies 16-18 and 14-16 as boys and junior divisions.

TOURNAMENT HANDLING and officiating is done most improperly by biased club officials. Even a person of no knowledge of tournament play knows that the No. 2 and 3 ranked teams do not meet in the first of 4 rounds of a single elimination tournament.

One biased club official often puts the personal advancement of himself and his children above that of other club members. His attitude towards inferior club members often causes hurt feelings on the other person's part.

In lieu of the above facts and because of constant degradation of certain club members, we hope United States Lawn Tennis Association and other interested people will not make the mistake of joining the H.E.T.A. and becoming disappointed.

'Friendly Neighbors'

A lovely piece of land in Arlington Heights has been proposed as a location for low income housing.

This has brought many long faces, disagreements, fear, exaggeration, anxiety. Voices are raised, petitions signed.

Amidst the turmoil, let us reflect on another time in history. Turmoil, poverty and no room in the inn.

TODAY IN our fair city we have the room. Today in our fair city we are being given the opportunity to share with others some of our good things. These others are our brothers who deserve to live in a freer more open environment.

Our brothers who can give us joy in knowing them and sharing with them.

We can solve the problems together. This can be and will be an experience in democracy, an example of life as it should be lived, for the future.

Join hands, reach out, let's make this a proud moment for the "Friendly Neighbors of Arlington Heights."

Mrs. Marian Moser

Only letters of 500 words or less will be published, however, and no anonymous letters will be considered for publication. Letters must be signed with name and address. Direct your mail to The Fence Post, Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights, IL 60005.

Ordinance No. 70-27

AN ORDINANCE PERTAINING TO SOLICITORS, PEDDLERS, VENDORS AND CANVASSERS BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF BUFFALO GROVE, COOK AND LAKE COUNTIES, ILLINOIS:
Ordinance No. 6-64-1 of the Village of Buffalo Grove, is hereby amended to read as follows:
SECTION 1: DEFINITIONS: That for the purpose of this Article, the following words shall be construed to have the meaning herein ascribed thereto, to-wit:

"Soliciting" shall mean and include any one or more of the following activities:
Seeking to obtain orders for the purchase of goods, wares, merchandise, foodstuffs, services, of any kind, character or description whatever, for any kind of consideration whatever; or
Seeking to obtain prospective customers for application or purchase of insurance of any type, kind or character; or Seeking to obtain subscriptions to books, magazines, periodicals, newspapers and other kind of publication; or Seeking to obtain gifts or contributions of money, clothing or any other valuable thing for the support or benefit of any charitable or non-profit association, organization, corporation or project.
"Peddling" shall mean and include any one or more of the following activities:
Seeking to obtain orders for the purchase of goods, wares, merchandise, foodstuffs, services, of any kind, character or description whatever, for any kind of consideration whatever; or Seeking to obtain prospective customers for application or purchase of insurance of any type, kind or character; or Seeking to obtain subscriptions to books, magazines, periodicals, newspapers and other kind of publication; or Seeking to obtain gifts or contributions of money, clothing or any other valuable thing for the support or benefit of any charitable or non-profit association, organization, corporation or project.
"Vending" shall mean and include any one or more of the following activities:
Seeking to obtain orders for the purchase of goods, wares, merchandise, foodstuffs, services, of any kind, character or description whatever, for any kind of consideration whatever; or

(d) Physical description of the applicant;
(e) Name and address of the person, firm or corporation or association with whom the applicant is employed by or represents; and the length of time of such employment or representation;
(f) Name and address of employer during the past three years if other than the present employer;
(g) Description sufficient for identification of the subject matter of the soliciting which the applicant will engage in;
(h) Period of time the Certificate is applied for;
(i) The date, or approximate date, of the latest previous application for Certificate under this Ordinance, if any;
(j) Has a Certificate of Registration issued to the applicant under this Ordinance ever been revoked;
(k) Has the applicant ever been convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance, or the Ordinance of any other Illinois Municipality regulating solicitors, peddlers or itinerant vendors;
(l) Has the applicant ever been convicted of the commission of a felony under the laws of the State of Illinois or any other State or Federal law of the United States;
(m) Also such additional information as the Chief of Police may deem necessary to process the application;
(n) In the case of a peddler or itinerant vendor, the commodities or articles the applicant proposes to sell or deal in; the address at which he conducts business or whether he proposes to peddle or sell from a vehicle for a part or part of his time; and a current registration under the Retailer's Occupation Tax Act; and a State license, if any, and shall be accompanied by the applicant upon the application or in connection therewith shall be under oath.

The Chief of Police shall cause to be kept in his office an accurate record of every application made and acted upon together with all other information and data pertaining thereto and said Certificate as herein provided. Applications for Certificates, shall be numbered in consecutive order as filed, and every Certificate issued, and any renewal thereof, shall be identified with the duplicate number of the application upon which it was issued.
No Certificate of Registration shall be issued to any person who has been convicted of the commission of a felony under the laws of the State of Illinois or any other State or Federal law of the United States, within five years of the date of the application; nor to any person who has been convicted of a violation of the provisions of this Ordinance, nor to any person whose Certificate of Registration issued heretofore has previously been revoked as herein provided.

SECTION 4: ISSUANCE AND REVOCATION OF CERTIFICATE: The Chief of Police, after consideration of the application and all information obtained relative thereto, shall deny the application if the applicant does not possess the qualifications for such Certificate as herein required, and that the issuance of a Certificate of Registration to the applicant would not be in accord with the intent and purpose of this Ordinance. Endorsement shall be made by the Chief of Police upon the application, of the denial of the application. When the applicant is found to be fully qualified, the Certificate of Registration shall be issued forthwith.
Any Certificate of Registration issued hereunder shall be revoked by the Chief of Police if the holder of the Certificate is convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance, or has made a false statement in the application, or otherwise becomes disqualified for the issuance of a Certificate of Registration under the terms of this Ordinance. Immediately upon such revocation written notice thereof shall be given by the Chief of Police to the holder of the Certificate in person or by certified U.S. mail addressed to his or her residence address set forth in the application.
Immediately upon the giving of such notice the Certificate of Registration shall become null and void.

The Certificate of Registration shall state the expiration date thereof.
SECTION 5: VILLAGE POLICE: It is hereby declared to be the policy of the governing body of this Municipality that the occupant or occupants of the residences in this Municipality shall make the determination of whether solicitors, peddlers or itinerant vendors shall be, or shall not be, invited to their respective residences.
SECTION 6: NOTICE: Every person desiring to secure the protection intended to be provided by this Ordinance, shall comply with the following directions, to-wit:
Notice of the determination by the occupant of giving invitation or the refusal of invitation to any residence shall be given in the manner following:
A weatherproof card, approximately three inches by four inches in size, shall be exhibited upon or near the main entrance door to the residence, indicating the determination by the occupant, containing the applicable words, as follows:
"ONLY SOLICITORS, PEDDLERS OR ITINERANT VENDORS REGISTERED IN BUFFALO GROVE INVITED."
"NO SOLICITORS, PEDDLERS OR ITINERANT VENDORS INVITED."

The letters shall be at least one-third inch in height. For the purpose of uniformity the cards may be provided by the Chief of Police to persons requesting, at the cost thereof.
Such card so exhibited shall constitute sufficient notice to any person of the determination by the occupant of the residence of the information contained thereon.
The card may be varied to permit invitation to or refusal of invitation to any one, two or all of the herein defined categories.
SECTION 7: DUTY OF SOLICITORS, PEDDLERS, ITINERANT VENDORS: It shall be the duty of every solicitor, peddler and itinerant vendor upon entering upon premises in the Municipality upon which a residence is herein defined in the location to first examine the Notice provided for in Section 6 of this Ordinance, if any is attached, and forthwith comply with said notice by immediately and peacefully departing from the premises, if the card states no invitation is given.
Any person who has gained entrance to any residence, whether invited or not, shall immediately and peacefully depart from the premises when requested to do so by the occupant.

SECTION 8: UNINVITED SOLICITING, PEDDLING OR VENDING: PROHIBITED: It is hereby declared to be unlawful and shall constitute a nuisance for any person to go upon any premises and ring the door bell upon or near any door, or create any sound in any other manner calculated to attract the attention of the occupant of such residence, for the purpose of securing an audience with the occupant thereof and engage in soliciting, peddling or vending, as herein defined, in defiance of the notice exhibited at the residence in accordance with the provisions of Section 6 of this Ordinance.
SECTION 9: TIME LIMITATIONS: It is hereby declared to be unlawful and shall constitute a nuisance for any person whether registered under this Ordinance or not, to go upon any premises and ring the door bell upon or near any door of a residence located thereon, or tap or knock upon any door, or create any sound in any other manner calculated to attract the attention of the occupant of such residence, for the purpose of securing an audience with the occupant thereof and engage in soliciting, peddling or vending, as herein defined, prior to 9:00 o'clock A.M. or after 9:00 P.M. of any week day, or at any time on a Sunday or on a State or National Holiday.
SECTION 10: REGISTRATION FEE: The following registration fee shall be charged:
(a) Peddler - $25.00
(b) Itinerant Vendor - $25.00
(c) Solicitor - no fee
The Certificate of Registration shall be valid only for the calendar year in which issued regardless of the date of issue.
SECTION 11: EXEMPTION: The corporate authorities may, by a two-thirds vote, waive the registration provisions heretofore for any charitable, religious or non-profit organization, or for any other organization, for the purpose of securing an audience with the occupant thereof and engage in soliciting, peddling or vending, as herein defined, prior to 9:00 o'clock A.M. or after 9:00 P.M. of any week day, or at any time on a Sunday or on a State or National Holiday.
SECTION 12: REPEALED: The provisions of Ordinance 0-44-1 not repeated herein are hereby repealed.
SECTION 13: SEVERANCE CLAUSE: If any section, paragraph, clause or provision of this Ordinance shall be held invalid, the invalidity thereof shall not affect any of the other provisions of this Ordinance.
SECTION 14: PENALTY: Any person violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to a fine of not more than $500.00 for each offense.
SECTION 15: EFFECTIVE DATE: This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect, from and after its passage and publication, in accordance with the terms of Section 1-2-4 of the Illinois Municipal Code.

 shrub or any part thereof, or shall disturb or injure any tree, shrub or plant upon a public highway or municipal property; nor shall any municipal be used for the control of insects or any disease or to be planted, or shall any person be permitted any chemical to seep, drain or be emptied on any tree, shrub or plant now planted or to be planted in a public highway or on municipality property, without first obtaining a permit from the Director of Public Works.

SECTION 5 — HITCHHIKING TREES, ETC.:

No person shall hitchhike any tree that is now or may hereafter be growing in any public highway or on any municipal property, nor fasten to for the purpose of anchorage, any wire, rope, chain or cable, nor shall any person nail, tie or in any other manner fasten any card, sign, poster, board or any other article in or tunnel or trench within a radius of ten (10) feet from any tree, shrub or plant that is now or may hereafter be growing in any public highway or on any municipal property without first obtaining a permit from the Director of Public Works.

SECTION 7 — DUTY OF PROP- ERTY OWNERS TO TRIM, ETC.:

The owner of every street, alley, lot and/or parcel of land in the Village, upon which any trees are growing shall trim, or cause to be trimmed, the branches thereof, so that the same shall not obstruct the view of the street, or any street, light in any street, alley or highway in the Village to the adjacent street or sidewalk and owners shall trim all branches of any tree now or may hereafter be growing in a clear-way which overhang any sidewalk, street, alley or public highway, so that there shall be a clear height of 20 feet above the surface of the street, alley or highway, unobstructed by branches and a clear height of eight feet over any side-

Did 'Bang' Form Universe?

JOSEPH MYLER

UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Navy scientists today reported evidence supporting a theory that the universe in which we live was created by a "big bang" 10 or 12 billion years ago.

The evidence was derived from an X-ray survey of Centaurus A, a gigantic galaxy of stars and superheated gases which flies in space about 782.5 million billion miles from our home galaxy, the Milky Way.

Astronomers are torn between two theories of creation. One says that in the beginning all the matter and energy in the universe was, for a second in time, confined in a single "primordial atom" at a temperature greater than 10,000 million degrees.

It blew up, creating the expanding universe in which matter has since condensed into the forms now manifest in planets, stars, and the grand assemblages called galaxies.

The other theory says creation is continuous, without beginning or end. This is the steady-state universe in which matter is somehow being created at just the right rate — one atom per century in a volume the size of the Empire State Building — to keep the whole shebang expanding at the observed speeds.

The new evidence supporting the big bang concept was reported in this week's Science magazine by Dr. Herbert Friedman, superintendent and chief scientist of the Naval Research Laboratory's E. O. Hulbert Center for Space Research, and E. T. Byram and Dr. T. A. Chubb of the lab's rocket astronomy group.

About five years ago, other scientists with extremely sensitive "listening" devices had discovered a strange background radiation which appears to fill all space in all directions. Checking fact against theory, they attributed it to "the afterglow" of the original fireball of creation.

Discovery of this diffuse "afterglow" radiation strongly supported the big bang theory against the steady-state concept. But a while back some rocket and balloon experiments appeared to indicate background infrared radiation much greater than that predicted by the big bang theory. This was upsetting for those who hoped they had settled the creation issue.

As Britain's Prof. J. B. S. Haldane once remarked: "The universe is not only stranger than we imagine, it is stranger than we can imagine."

The New Image—Tennis

by VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Now that the common people are installing swimming pools as casually as they purchase inside plumbing, the pretty people are building tennis courts as special image symbols.

The cost of a good court, plus lighting for nighttime play can easily double the price of a swimming pool.

More to the point, there are as many or more tennis players among television and motion picture stars as there are golfers.

For whatever reason golfers are more publicized: Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Andy Williams, Frank Sinatra and others sponsor their own tournaments. Comedians joke about golf on the air. But tennis seldom gets its share of attention.

Among the stars with their own tennis courts are Dinah Shore, Dan Rowan, Robert Stack, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Ginger Rogers, Pamela Mason, Sinatra, Elizabeth Montgomery and Charlton Heston.

The competitive fires that propel a performer to stardom also surface in the tennis games of most stars.

JANET LEIGH is one of the best feminine tennis players in Southern California. John Wayne's wife, Pilar, and Juli Redding are outstanding players.

Clint Eastwood is a powerful tennis player who now sponsors a charity tournament in northern California in which a score of celebrities take part.

Tennis is especially attractive to those stars who need only walk out their back doors to find the court ready and waiting. There is an added advantage: Husbands and wives can play a set or two of tennis without devoting an entire day to the game, as is the case too frequently with golf.

Weekend tennis parties have become popular. Several couples congregate at a court, play mixed doubles, take a dip in the swimming pool, then enjoy dinner.

Sights, Sounds Of The Flea Market

by HELEN GIBSON

MADRID (UPI) —The vendor's agonized cry punctuated the tangle of sound floating in the street.

"It is driving me mad, mad to be selling all this so cheaply," he groaned, with palms turned to the skies.

The well-dressed Spanish woman in the yellow silk sweater was undeterred. She punched a finger at a microscopic flaw in the purple toy train and demanded he drop his price another duro (7 cents).

Madrid's flea market, the Rastro, was cranking up for a new day. From wrought-iron balconies, women screamed conferences with friends three floors below. Caged song birds, wedged between potted pink geraniums, competed frantically with blaring flamenco records.

On the street below, bargains were announced on every side by stalkkeepers who vied with their wares for interest.

An engrossed circle paid homage to the vendor who complained of going mad. His best customer, the woman in the yellow sweater, had been there for half an hour and had already accumulated a pile of hideous plastic toys. She now had to have the purple train.

"If my price means you will not have enough to feed your family, then I will give it to you for a duro less!" the man cried. "But look at your rich clothes. The price stands. It is women like you that haven't let me get the taste of a shrimp since I came to Madrid 20 years ago!"

A few stalls down a woman with blonde hair wearing a trouser suit fingered a rusty but antique lock. The stalkkeeper with a gypsy face rushed to her side. "Very cheap," he said. "Only 3,000 pesetas ($43)."

"Are you joking?" she retorted in machine-gun Spanish.

The man's grin faded. "Excuse me. A mistake. It is 300 pesetas ($4.30). I thought you were an American."

Such exchanges keep the Rastro in a slow ferment throughout the long summer days. And, although it might offer plastic toys, cheap lace and boots for soldiers, its real fame lies in its antiques—the genuine and the junk.

On a select little courtyard opening off the mainstream bustle, hushed shops display 17th Century oak chests and "braceros" that gleam with centuries of wax.

The bracero or brazier is a solid wooden table with a central copper bowl for hot coals. It is popular among Americans as a coffee table with the bowl converted into a plant holder. Two Americans recently beamed happily as they handed over 8,000 pesetas ($115) and came away with an octagonal bracer of pale oak. In the United States they could have paid up to $500 dollars for the same item.

Permits In Almeria

by ALDO TRIPPINI
AGUADULCE, Spain UPI — It happened in this lovely seaside village in Southern Spain just like in the poem by Pedro Garcia Lorca, "a las cinco de la tarde" at five p.m.

I was ready to sail with my 10-foot fiberglass boat to do some skin diving along the cliffs between Aguadulce and Almeria when a "guardia civil" national policeman wearing his elegant green summer uniform, walked over to me and saluted smartly.

"If you are going to skin-dive with that speargun," he pointed out politely, "you should have a permit from the Spanish navy." I admitted that, being a foreigner, I never knew I needed a permit from the Spanish navy.

THE GUARDIA civil was extremely sorry, but he said that, at least for that day, I could not skin-dive with my gun.
The following day, the Spanish navy headquarters in Almeria would be delighted to issue me a permit valid for five years at the "extremely cheap" fee of $2.14, he said.

"Well, in this case I will leave the gun ashore and fish from my boat," I said.
That will be fine, but in this case you will need a second permit. It will cost just as much," the guard replied regretfully.

"Well, I'll go to Almeria tomorrow and get those permits," I said. "Meanwhile, I will leave the boat ashore and fish from the beach."

The guardia civil's face was a study in frustration.

"I am sorry, sir," he said.

"But if you fish from the beach you will need a third permit."

I THOUGHT IT over for a few seconds, then I told him that I would leave the fish in peace for that day.

"I'll take my underwater camera and take some color pictures of a cave 20 feet deep down there," I said.

"Taking underwater pictures is forbidden unless you have a special permit from the navy," the guard said. "I do regret spoiling your afternoon, but you better have those permits first. Otherwise you're in trouble."

The following morning I went to Al-meria and 24 hours later I had the three fishing permits, including the skin-diving one.

From the permits I learned that I cannot sell or barter any fish I catch. I also cannot draw maps of the sea bottom, and I must give the Spanish navy anything I find in the sea.

The guardia civil is all smiles now. He regularly wishes me good luck everytime he sees me sailing "a las cinco de la."

Campaign Comments

by ED MURNANE

Michael J. Bakalis, Democratic candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, called yesterday for a statewide conference to take "positive action to prevent senseless disorders on college campuses this fall." Bakalis, who is challenging Republican Ray Page, said he has visited with many college administrators, teachers and students during his campaign and that "they tell me there is still great tension on our campuses."

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who is seeking another term in the Illinois Senate, has been credited with progress on improvements of drainage ditches in the Prospect Heights area. The Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District sent a thank you note to Graham.

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, campaign chairman for the Cook County, GOP, and Edmund Kucharski, county chairman and candidate for state treasurer, said they will campaign for appointment of judges, rather than election, when the proposed new Illinois Constitution is submitted to the voters later this year. Since Con-Con delegates plan to submit the appointment vs. election question on a separate ballot, it means that the entire Constitution must first be approved.

That may mean the Cook County GOP is the first organization in the state to indicate they will work to support the new Constitution.

Richard Elrod, Democratic candidate for county sheriff, will attend the Schaumburg Township Democratic dinner dance Oct. 10 at Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomingdale.

New co-chairmen for the Wheeling Township Young Democrats are Joseph Poduska, an attorney, and Jerry Doyle, a Wheeling High School teacher. The appointments were announced this week by

James L. McCabe, Wheeling Democratic committeeman.

Sen. Charles Percy, who will breakfast with area press representatives in Wheeling on Sept. 14, has been named 1970 "Man of the Year" by the State of Israel Bond Organization. Percy, a 13th
District product, will receive his award
Dec. 9.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, plans to spend a full day in Palatine Township on Sept. 28, beginning with a precinct captains' breakfast at 8:30 a.m. and concluding with the Palatine GOP's annual dinner dance at the Arlington
Park Towers Hotel. It was Palatine Township which gave Crane his first big boost last year in the Republican congressional primary.

The author of this column will speak to the Maine Township Teenage Democrats on Sept. 14.

'Ball Four' Talks About Fritz Peterson

IT WAS A NATURAL question.

"Have you read THE book?"

When you're talking with a member of the New York Yankees, and you ask about THE book, no other explanation is needed.

Nobody answers by saying, "What book?"

The book is Jim Bouton's controversial "Ball Four". Contrived in the now-classic form of a year's diary, this book tells it like it's never been told before about professional baseball.

When portions of it appeared in a magazine last spring, many of the mandarins of baseball — owners, managers, and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn himself — were outraged by the exposure of such darker aspects of the game as the sex lives of the players, their drinking, the earthiness of clubhouse language, the widespread use of pep pills and the racial intolerance in some quarters.

When I asked Yankee pitcher Fritz Peterson if he had read the book, he just smiled and said, "No, I honestly haven't and I doubt if I will."

It was a natural question to ask Peterson. The 29-year-old area product and Jim Bouton were roommates with the Yankees and are close friends.

"I like Jim, we've always been good friends, and I know so many of the people who are involved in the book. Maybe not too many players on the team liked Jim, but he was really a great guy. He'd pull a joke on you and you could pull one on him and he'd just laugh about it and go along with it."

I can guarantee that Fritz would like the book, at least the parts about Fritz Peterson. Bouton obviously considers Peterson one of his best friends and the book shows that.

I read "Ball Four" over the weekend, thoroughly enjoyed it, and have picked out some of the parts about Peterson to share here.

"I KNOW WHEN I'm in Anaheim next," Bouton writes early in his book, "I'll do what Fritz Peterson and I used to think was a lot of fun. We'd rent a little car and speed along the freeways playing Spanish music as loud as the radio would go and we'd go down to the beach or into the mountains. In San Francisco, Fritz and I made an inspection trip to Haight-Ashbury where the Hippies offered to turn us on with LSD. We were too chicken to try."

"The Yankees have lost thirteen out of fourteen now and I feel so bad about it I walk around laughing (this was after Bouton had been traded). Actually I just say that. In fact, I'm beginning to feel sorry for some of the guys. The guy I care most about is Fritz Peterson, and he's doing well. He won the only game they won in the last ten days."

BOUTON, WHO reminisces throughout the book about his Yankee days, also talked about a change in roommates:

"Today Fritz was removed as my roommate. The Colonel (pitching coach Jim Turner) kept telling Fritz not to worry, that pretty soon he wouldn't have to room with 'that Communist' anymore. And Fritz would say, 'no, no, that's all right. I want to room with him. We get along great.'"

"And The Colonel would say, 'Fine, fine. We'll get it straightened out.'"

"So one day Houk called me into his office and said, 'Jim, we're switching around roommates this year. I think it will be good for everybody to have pitchers with pitchers, catchers with catchers.'"

"That's fine," I said. "I'm already rooming with a pitcher."

"Well, we want young pitchers to room with young pitchers," Houk said, "and since you've been with the club so long, we feel you deserve a single room. It's a status thing. Whitey and Mickey have single rooms, and we thought you should to."

"I said that was fine with me," Bouton writes, "and if he wanted Fritz to room with a young pitcher I'd take a single room."

"Then Houk called Fritz in and said, 'Bouton deserves a single room and you wouldn't want to stand in his way, would you?' Fritz said he wouldn't so they put him in with Dooley Womack, young pitcher. He was three months younger than I."

"They thought I was a bad influence on Fritz. The Yankees had some funny ideas about bad influence. What I did bad was talk to newspapermen and talk around the clubhouse about things that were on my mind, politics sometimes and religion. That's breaking the rules. The word was around: Don't talk to newspapermen. Hell, baseball needs newspapermen."

"As for teaching Peterson to do the wrong things, the only thing I ever taught him was how to throw that change-up he uses so effectively. And he still enjoys giving me credit."

BOUTON ALSO recalled the time he first played against the New York Yankees as a relief pitcher for the Seattle Pilots after spending some big years with the Yanks.

"The game . . . was fantastic, unbelievable and altogether splendid. We scored seven runs in the first inning and made them look like a high school team. They threw to the wrong bases. Their uniforms looked great; they looked terrible."

"It was not a cool night, though. A big fight, two benches and two bullpens emptying, fifty guys milling around on the field. What a lovely war."

"The rule is that you're not allowed to just sit there when your teammates are in a fight, so everybody came off the bench and out of the bullpen . . ."

"The two guys who started it had so many guys piled on top of them they wouldn't reach for a subway token, much less fight."

"There are a few guys on the Yankees I knew would love to have a shot at me, especially Fred Talbot, who I don't think would know the meaning of quit if he ever got into a fight with me. So I kept one eye out for Fred and the other for my friend Fritz Peterson."

"I sort of circled the perimeter of action with both arms out to fend off any blind-siders and here comes Fritz running toward me. He was laughing his head off and we grabbed each other and started walking like a couple of bears. He tried to throw me off balance and I tried to wrestle him down and all the time we were kidding each other."

"How's your wife?" I asked. "Give me a fake punch in the ribs."

"She's fine," he said. "You can punch me in the stomach. But not too hard."

As Bouton relates on how he and Fritz staged this fake fight, he recalls that the umpires actually came over to break it up.

"But, we're only kidding," I said, protesting. "We're old roommates."

"Break it up anyway," the umpires said.

"Which made me think that here two of four umpires are breaking up a playful little wrestling match while there's a war going on nearby with 40 guys piled on top of each other."

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

"After the game Fritz and I went out to dinner and I asked him what he would have done if Talbot or somebody from the Yankees came over to help him out."

"I'd have had to tackle the guy," Peterson said."

"INSIDE, I still think of him (Harmon Killebrew) as the Fat Kid, which is what Fritz Peterson always called him. I'd say, 'How'd you do Fritz?' and he'd answer, 'The Fat Kid hit a double with the bases loaded.'"

JIM BOUTON HAD a genuine respect for Fritz Peterson, but there are several people in the book who don't come out so well.

Actually, I had not expected the book to be quite so entertaining but it was delightful. Bouton is a rare pro athlete. He is literate, witty, perceptive — and honest. And his inside tour of the major league scene lends flavor to a sport which needs it.

I wonder how many of Bouton's detractors actually read the entire book?

It's common knowledge that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn passed judgment (and helped make the book a best-seller) by just what he read in a magazine.

The establishment seems to think "Ball Four" is bad for "the game". Of course, the establishment thinks inter-league play would be bad for "the game".

Bouton is not a critic of baseball. He is one of its true champions. The book is full of examples of his feeling for the sport.

The majority of those who have been critical of Bouton have been upset by his muck-raking of some of the game's super-stars, particularly Mickey Mantle.

They contend that Mantle's image was destroyed among the glibber younger generation. It's doubtful that Bouton could bring about such a complete overhaul of young minds, more than any one other thing can.

It may be just as well that kids don't grow up thinking that Babe Ruth and Mickey Mantle and other sports heroes are sacrosanct. They learn fairly quickly that their fathers aren't.

One of the things that they should learn, it seems, is that you have to see the good along with the bad and to realize that everyone and everything is not flawless.

The book by Bouton, like others of its type, may only be a reflection of this time.

It's not that the players are doing things differently today. But they are writing about it now and they will continue to write about it. The success of Bouton's book is an indication of what the public wants.

The athlete today now realizes how strong a voice he actually has. Maybe sports will be more of a realistic world and not a dream world because of it . . . for the better or the worse.

Urban, McNab Star In Buffalo Grove Monday Night League

A new flight leader took charge in the Monday Night League at Buffalo Grove Golf Club.

Joe Urban made the big jump to the top spot in "A" Flight pushing out Val Bruning, the leader throughout the season.

Ken McNab had the hot clubs in "A" Flight with a one-under-par 25 which included three birdies — No. 1, 3 and 8.

McNab also was the low gross leader in his flight with a 30.

Jack Copeland still leads the "B" Flight and fired the low net for his division with a 34.

Chuck Cosman was the low gross leader with 45 strokes.

Their mistress wears an emerald, ermine coat and she likes to be stroked gently. She's a wide, smooth female who appreciates a loving touch and a steady hand.

Joe Balsis, Irving Crane and Jimmy Caras treat her with the respect of a woman not to be fooled with. You don't mess with your bread and butter.

Balsis, Crane and Caras are three of the finest pool shooters in America and they're wedded to a six-pocketed woman who dresses in green felt and stands on six legs. Her measurements are a stocky 4½ feet by 9 feet.

On the Brunswick, the three handle their cues like the Cincinnati Reds handle their bats. Like an extension of their arm, the cue does the bidding of the arm and the wrist.

The strokes are short and smooth. The ivory cue ball is never struck hard, always softly with measured precision. The chalked tip caresses the ivory cue and it rolls into the seven ball. The seven ball plops in. Perfect position.

Draw for the 11-ball, kiss the 14 and avoid the eight-ball hanging in the pocket.

They never miss.

Balsis, Crane and Caras are in Chicago for a tournament sponsored by the Billiard Congress of America. The competition started Tuesday and ends on the 29th.

The three put on a show for members of the press and television corps Monday night in the Chicago Playboy Club. When the media men weren't watching the bunnies, they were watching the virtuoso performance of three men who control a wooden pole as deftly as a swordsman swings a rapier.

Caras spun trick shots out of his bag of wonder, weaving the cue ball around the table as if it had a little man inside controlling its destination.

He used reverse english, low right english, high follow and masse as he commanded the cue ball. He made shots that defied Newton's Law of Gravity and caused eyelids to rise and sighs to be emitted.

"Boy, what I could win at the poolroom if I could do that," was repeated more than once by the neophyte pool shooters looking on.

And the rest of us just sat there, remembering.

Remembering how we sat in dirty poolrooms, practicing until our finger were stained blue from the chalk dust. How we rubbed talcum powder on our hands so the stick would move smoothly. How we coughed from the dust.

Remembering the stories of our heroes. The yarns about Fats, Greenleaf, Mosconi and Lassiter. And how we wanted to carry our own cues in black leather cases.

Watching Balsis, Crane and Caras reminds you of the unique pleasure of running a rack. Or making the perfect break shot. Or plopping in the long shot for the cash.

And the chant of the poolroom you were weaned in comes back to haunt you: "If you can't make it on the Brunswick, you just can't make it."

THE EXPERT. Jimmy Caras is considered to be one of the foremost experts in the game of pool. Not only does he know all the shots, he can perform those shots as well as anyone in the world. Caras is in Chicago for a tournament sponsored by the Billiard Congress of America.

Practical Tool Rob Roy Champ

Practical Tool ignored the so-called "Paddock Golf Tournament Jim" and won the Rob Roy Tuesday Golf League title this week.

Despite the fact that teams that qualify for the tourney in mid-August don't finish in first at the end of August, the front runners held on to the top spot with a victory over Drake Lites in position round action.

The final totals read like this: Practical Tool 74, Drake Lites 69.5.

In individual action, Wally Strack captured low gross honors with a two-over-par 38 on the back nine. Finishing second was Marshall Balling with 39.

Brian Kepka, the league secretary, won the low net title with a 31. Right behind were Irv Sinard, Ted Bydalek and George Rudolph with 32s.

Dick Wollack easily was crowned the alternate champion.

Posting birdies were these linksters: Balling on No. 17 and 18, Wollack on No. 16, Gary Zuck on No. 3, Paul Logan on No. 2, Clarence Peterson on No. 10, Rudolph on No. 2, Don Wills on No. 7 and Dewey Murphy on No. 11.

Taking the closest to the pin honors at No. 4 was Tom Nowak with Nick Zanini winning the golf at No. 12.

The final day of play for the Tuesday Nighters will be on Sunday, Sept. 13. On that date all the golfers will play 18 holes with plenty of prizes for those who fire low scores.

Final Sign-Up Date Nears For Paddock Net Tourney

Just six more days remain to enter the Paddock Publications Singles Tennis Tournament for men, women, boys and girls.

The response so far has been tremendous, according to Dick Adashek, tourney director. So far there are 35 men, 30 boys, and 15 each of women and girls.

Adashek, who is president of the Arlington Tennis Club, says he expects as many as 150 participants in this annual event.

Adashek listed five rules for the tourney:

- * New balls will be supplied by both players with the winner keeping the unused balls;
- * A 15-minute default time will be enforced;
- * The boys and girls divisions will be for youths 18-years-old and under;
- * Players who have a bye will be notified in advance by phone; and
- * Boys and girls will begin play at 9:00 a.m. with men and women beginning at noon on Saturday, Sept. 5.

The tournament will run through Labor Day with the finals being played the afternoon of Sept. 7. The site will be the Arlington High School tennis courts located at Ridge Ave., one block north of Euclid Ave.

There will be no entry fee for the tourney and the prizes — four first place trophies and four runnersup trophies — have been doubled over the previous years. The past nine tourneys have been just for mixed doubles play. The tourney was changed to singles play to give more players a chance to participate.

Entry blanks must be in Adashek's hands by this Thursday. Mail entries to Dick Adashek, 4600 Gettysburg Dr., Rolling Meadows, Ill. 60008.

Adashek has made entry blanks available to tennis clubs throughout the Paddock area. There is also a blank accompanying this story for your convenience.

THE BEST IN Sports

Buffalo Grove Stars Remain Undefeated

The Buffalo Grove Minor League All-Stars remained unbeaten over the past weekend with three victories. The Stars have won five games with one more to be played Sept. 6 against Wheeling.

On Sunday, the All-Stars traveled to Elk Grove and came out on top of a 10-3 count. Mike Marshall led the way with two hits including a three-run homer. Dave Rine, Scott Campbell and Wayne Belmer held Elk Grove to seven hits and three runs.

The following afternoon the All-Stars exploded against Wheeling and scored a decisive victory, 34-1. Every player on manager Dick Rice's squad got on base at least once. Scott Campbell and David Rice led the BG offense with three hits apiece, including a homer. Dave Rice's homer cleared the major league fence. Mike Marshall and Roger Carlson held Wheeling hitless.

The Buffalo squad returned to Wheeling to continue their best of three series. The hard-hitting visitors put on another offensive show. The All-Stars pounded out 19 hits in turning back Wheeling, 20-0. Wayne Geimer had three hits to pace the attack. Dave Rice and Mike Marshall had two doubles each and Andy Fairissey and Dave Wilhelm belted homers. Rice, Scott, Campbell and Fairissey held Wheeling to five hits. The teams played eight innings to enable more of the players to get into the contest.

What is the Christ?

Christ is the spirit of Truth and Love that Jesus taught and lived. It comes to each one of us when we are receptive to it.

No matter how far you may feel from the Christ, you can discover it for yourself. You can recognize its power to meet any situation.

You may learn how by coming to our study room and reading this week's Bible Lesson. It contains ideas that heal.

Campanelli Provides Land For New Schaumburg Parks

Schaumburg residents will soon have two new parks on land provided by Campanelli Bros., developers in the village.

One site is on 20 acres bound by Weathersfield Way, Braintree Drive and Sharon Lane where ball diamonds, picnic facilities and general play areas will be provided.

The second site is on five acres off the south-west corner of Salem Drive and Schaumburg Road where fishing, ice skating and picnic facilities will be provided.

A Herald article on weed problems at the Weathersfield Way site "lit the fire," to get work done toward bringing the two sites up to standard for park district acceptance, said Paul Derda, Schaumburg Park District director.

Mrs. Joseph Hula, 1037 Weathersfield Way also called The Herald saying a 50-foot stretch of weeds across from her home have been torn down.

"WE WEREN'T getting any results until the women down the street brought it to a head. I can't believe the result," Mrs. Hula said. She was speaking about Mrs. Walter Mai who called The Herald initiating the article.

Mrs. Mai's daughter is a hay fever sufferer and had become ill because of the weeds facing the 1000 block of Weathersfield Way. The weeds stood six feet high.

"They came out with sickles Monday, then come out with a plow," Mrs. Hula added. "They're doing something and it's really a pleasure."

"Campanelli is grading and knocking down weeds at the Weathersfield Way site," Derda said. "I would hope the weeds will be buried under before the end of the week."

"We'll have two real nice park parcels," he added.

"CAMPANELLI CAME through and did a lot of work at the slough area," Derda said about the site at Salem Dr. and Schaumburg Road. "They've been dredging so the site can be stocked with fish, pushing weeds down, and working to provide proper drainage."

"In the next 10 days we'll do the seeding work so we'll have good grass for next year," Derda said.

"When people complain, it's kind of healthy," he added.

"Campanelli is putting a lot of money in manpower and equipment on the sites," Derda added.

"I want to emphasize that the sites are not accepted until brought up to standard. Both sites will be in good shape now," he added.

Derda said the deeds will be passed over in the near future, adding they were refused a few months ago by park officials who insisted on higher standards.

Seek Man In Assault Case

Schaumburg police are searching for a white male between 20 and 30 years old who they say assaulted and removed the clothing of a teenage girl on Plum Grove Road, south of Schaumburg Road, at about 5:50 p.m. Wednesday.

The attack on the girl took place on the west side of Plum Grove Road behind trees, about one-half mile south of Schaumburg Road, according to the victim's statement to police.

The man removed her clothes but did not rape her, police said.

THE VICTIM described her assailant as about 5 feet 9 inches tall, 200 pounds, black hair, and wearing wire frame glasses, said Police Chief Martin Conroy. He also was reported as wearing a soiled long-sleeved shirt, blue pants, and was unshaven, added the police chief.

The man fled after removing the girl's clothing, and he took her undergarments with him, police said.

The victim was described as about 13 or 14 years old.

According to the victim's statement to police, she was walking north on Plum Grove Road and her assailant was following her on foot. After passing her up, he then hid in some trees and grabbed the girl.

The man then told the girl to take off her clothes, police said. When she refused, he hit her in the stomach with his fist. Then he removed the girl's glasses and garments himself, police said.

The man fled from the scene after telling the victim to count to 200, she told police.

Police said the girl was apparently in satisfactory condition yesterday.

Arrest Mexicans For Illegal Entry

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $500 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

Owner of Waterlogged Home May Get Aid Today

by MARY HUTCHINGS

Paul Pavey, owner of a new home in Winston Knolls, subdivision of Hoffman Estates, hopes to see at least some of the necessary repair work done on his home today. If builder Paul Sivicek of Winston Development keeps his promise.

Standing water in the crawl space that has contributed to buckling of the parquet flooring in the home is expected to be corrected today with the installation of a sump pump, drain tile and bleeders.

But the buckling of the floors in almost every room of the three-bedroom house cannot be taken care of, Sivicek says, unless the Paveys will assume the cost of removing and relaying their carpeting, an estimated $130.

The builder suggests that the heavy padding underneath the carpet may have increased the humidity and consequent swelling of the parquet. There is no clause, however, that prohibits carpeting the oak floors.

PAVEY BELIEVES THAT "removing and relaying carpeting and moving furniture are not my concern. If the house had been constructed properly the entire problem would not exist."

The 24-month warranty on the house covers "repairing or replacing any part or part thereof considered to be defective." It does not cover "secondary or consequential damage." Sivicek is willing to repair the floor, but not the cost the carpeting removal entails.

After six weeks of trying to contact Sivicek by telephone regarding defects in his home, Pavey sent him a letter dated Aug. 17 outlining specific complaints. A copy of this letter was sent to several public and private agencies and to newspapers.

Monday night he was contacted by the builder, and Tuesday morning workmen were at the house to fix one of Pavey's grievances, the cracked first section of the sidewalk. The entire walk was removed, Sivicek explained, to insure that future expansion of the sidewalk would not create an additional problem of unevenness.

PAVEY CHARGES "poor workmanship" in the home and his wife has tears in her eyes as she describes the difficulties they have had in getting work done.

Promises of repair work on the front door, the front walk and the foyer closet door have been delayed since before the March 30 closing of the house, Pavey says.

Two remaining problems, including a garage floor, which has sunk unevenly and a delay in grading of their yard have yet to be taken care of. The grader, Sivicek reports, is within a few houses of the Pavey's Firestone residence.

The problem of the carpeting still needs to be resolved however, between the two parties' readings of the warranty.

"You put your whole life savings into what you think is a good investment, and then you wonder what it's all about," Pavey said.

SPREADING IT THICK, workmen lay asphalt on Schaumburg Road, during the improvement program to be completed by Oct. 1. The road is being widened and reinforced shoulders are being constructed. Intersections at Barrington, Springguth and Roselle Roads will also have turn lanes installed.

School To Start Monday In Schaumburg

Monday is the first day of school for 1970-71 for elementary and high school students in Schaumburg Township. However, most students will have an abbreviated session Monday, with Tuesday being the first full day of school.

Students at St. Hubert Parochial School on Flagstaff Lane, Hoffman Estates, will attend school from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. on Monday. St. Hubert will have an enrollment of approximately 750 pupils in grades two through eight this year.

Tuition at St. Hubert School this year is $140 per pupil and $200 per family.

Pupils at St. Peter Lutheran School, E. Schaumburg Road, will also have their first day of school Monday from 9 to 11 a.m. They will be in school all day Tuesday, however. St. Peter's will have an enrollment of over 200 pupils in kindergarten through grade eight this year.

AN ENROLLMENT of approximately 12,900 students in kindergarten through grade eight is anticipated in Dist. 54 schools this fall.

All Dist. 54 pupils in grades one through six will attend neighborhood elementary schools from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday. Seventh graders and new eighth graders will attend junior high schools Monday in Dist. 54 for orientation.

The first regular day of school for Dist. 54 pupils will be Tuesday. Today is an Institute Day for Dist. 54 teachers.

Kindergarten pupils in Dist. 54 will not attend school until Thursday. Parent conferences are scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday.

Monday is a full day of school for 2,400 high school students attending James B. Conant High School in Hoffman Estates. Orientation Day for Conant freshmen is being held at the school today starting at 7:55 a.m. School buses will be operating.

Schaumburg High School freshmen will attend an orientation session Monday in the Conant gymnasium at 7:55 a.m. A special assembly will be held and attendance will be taken. However, Schaumburg High students will not attend class until Sept. 14 after the new high school is completed. Schaumburg High will have 1,200 students.

GOING SLOW DOWN Schaumburg Road is no new experience for rush hour travelers in the village. Greg Anderson above is relaxed while working.

Board Opposes Condominium

Rezoning of property at Schaumburg and Meacham roads was postponed last night by members of the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals, who indicated strong opposition to owner Elmer Gleich's plans to build the township's first condominium complex.

The forty-one acre site south of Schaumburg Road and west of Meacham was planned by Gleich for 440 two-bedroom and 480 three-bedroom units which would sell for $35 to $45 thousand each.

A seven acre lake, two story recreation center, eight-unit shopping center, swimming pool and tennis courts are planned with the four 10-story buildings and attached two-story covered parking areas.

Buildings would cover 77 per cent of the land, paved areas 17 per cent and greens and recreation 75.3 per cent.

THE HEARING ON the complex will be continued Feb. 10, when progress on the Salt Creek sewage treatment plant can be evaluated. Main reasons for the board's opposition, however, were based on two arguments.

Board member Martin Coniglio said multiple-family zoning on the present farm land would "inflate the cost of land in surrounding areas." He feared neighboring owners would hold on to their property longer than normal, in hopes of gaining a higher price.

This would be "more detrimental to the village than anything else," Coniglio said. "Single-family, high quality custom built homes would be just as salient."

Real estate appraiser Ralph Martin, speaking in support of Gleich, said, "Builders only build what people are buying. Condominium living is the type of living people are demanding."

Gleich said he would not be able to sell high quality homes on his property.

BOARD MEMBERS were concerned that developers of surrounding lands would not be able to build high-priced homes within eye's view of the 10 story buildings. Martin pointed to developments in Skokie, No Man's Land on the North Shore, and Regent Park in Arlington Heights in disclaiming their charge. The amount of open space would be a determining factor in the aesthetic compatibility of the area with such homes, Martin said.

Chairman Russell Parker praised Gleich's plans for the improvement of the area, and was the only member who seemed sympathetic to the rezoning. He indicated, however, that "in another section, there would be no hesitation."

In the past, the board has granted multiple-family zoning only on the village periphery, near industrial or commercial developments.

The question before the board Parker said, was "whether this is the most desirable development for this land."

Gleich said he would have no trouble financing the complex and would have no delay in building. "I would not put the time into it if it were near an industrial district," he added.

THOUGH THERE ARE 16,000 apartment units on the books in Schaumburg Township, not all are going to be built due to financing difficulties by various firms. All rezoning actions have a two year time limit.

Coniglio said "single-family homes are still the backbone of this country" before discussion moved to the second important consideration in the decision, the number of children the project would thrust upon the school district.

Dist. 54 school board member Don Rudd told the zoning board that the district was at the limit of its bonding power in the Oct. 3 referendum, which asks the voters to approve funds for the district's plans for the next three years.

He said the district's projections only include the building commitments which have already been made, most are now under construction. Multiple-family complex developments usually donate a parcel of land or a per unit monetary recompense to the school district.

RUDD SAID it would be better to build the development on the periphery where more land would be available. He feared the improvement of land surrounding Gleich's would occur in forty acre slots which would leave no room for a school site.

Gleich and Martin said that they did not anticipate the planned development would attract families. "It has been our experience that people who buy condominiums like this are in the 40-45 age bracket, and their children are grown and they have no need for a home," Martin said.

The board asked that Gleich present recent statistics from the suburban area on the number of school children condominiums would bring in. Chairman Parker, however, said the proposed complex would produce less children than a similar rental complex.

The K-8 school district experience has been a realization of 15 school children from two bedroom apartments and 1.2 from three bedroom apartments. Their figures show 128 school children per single-family unit.

MARTIN MAINTAINED that a $30,000 condominium unit would have an equal tax base as a $30,000 home, and would not produce the same number of children.

If this proved to be the case, the school district would benefit from the new construction.

After the postponement, Gleich was realistic in anticipating that rejection of the project was "only being deferred." "I'm not going to fight to work," he said. "I can always go back to Dallas."

Larson Swear-In Set For Tuesday

John A. Larsen was officially appointed to the Schaumburg village board Tuesday. Larsen was out of town and won't be sworn in as a trustee until the next board meeting.

He succeeds Donald P. DeVale who resigned earlier this month because of business commitments. DeVale had been a trustee for six years.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher said Larsen was appointed because of his years of service to the village and also to give the Timbercrest subdivision recognition. Larsen is active in the Jaycees, Young Republicans and the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township.

He has also served as publicity chairman for the village for several years.

Atcher said trustees wanted to appoint a Timbercrest resident and the one with the most service to the village is Russell Parker, chairman of the zoning board of appeals. Parker, though works for the federal bank reserve system and cannot hold an elected office.

Larsen's appointment is effective until the April election.

Toll Ramp To Close New Suffrage Stamp Issued

Closing of the Northbound ramp off Rte. 53 onto Algonquin Road is the first phase of a state highway department project that will tie the I-90, now being built south of Rte. 53, to the Northwest Tollway.

The ramp is expected to remain closed for three or four weeks, said Tom Lee, state highway department engineer on the project.

Eventually, the exit ramp will be part of a 12-lane interchange from Algonquin Road to the Tollway. The ramp is being realigned to connect with the outside lanes, which will be local lanes.

After the realignment, the Rte. 53 overpass at the Tollway will be partially closed so the overpass can be widened.

"We will maintain at least one lane each direction, and possibly two, during the reconstruction of the overpass," Lee said. The ramp to the tollway from Rte. 53 will not be closed.

THE PRESENT Rte. 53 and Northwest Tollway interchanges where I-90 will join the Northwest Tollway. North of the tollway the road will be called Rte. 53, south of the Tollway it will be I-90.

The widening of the tollway overpass is expected to be completed in the fall of 1971. The entire I-90 project will not be completed until the fall of 1972.

"We hope to have the whole project done by the time Woodfield Mall opens up," Lee said.

Barricades on Rte. 53 now block off the center lanes which will become the through lanes to the tollway interchange. No construction will take place on the Rte. 53 overpass at Algonquin Road once the ramp is realigned. South of Algonquin Road there will be six through lanes and six local lanes to handle traffic.

WHILE THE tollway interchange is being built as part of the I-90 project, the state highway department also has a project for the widening of Algonquin Road from Dempster Street west to Roselle Road.

"The Algonquin Road project east of I-90 (presently Rte. 53 overpass at Algonquin Road) is scheduled to be completed in the fall of 1972," Lee said. "In October, the bids for widening Algonquin Road west to Roselle Road will probably be awarded. I don't know when Algonquin Road west of Roselle will be widened."

Guard Stations Are Set

Twelve crossing guards will be stationed at intersections near Dist. 54 elementary schools to assist children when the 1970-71 school year begins Monday.

The crossing guards will be on duty at the busiest intersections in the school district through the cooperation of Dist. 54 and police chiefs in Schaumburg, Hanover Park, and Hoffman Estates.

In Hanover Park, a crossing guard will be stationed in front of the Hanover Highlands School at 1451 Cypress Ave. Hanover Highlands will be on split sessions this fall until the new Collins School is built.

In the Village of Schaumburg, four crossing guards have been assigned to serve three elementary schools in Weathersfield — Campanelli, Dooley, and Hale.

A guard will be stationed in front of Campanelli School to aid children crossing Springguth Road, and children walking to Dooley School will have the protection of a guard at the corner of Lowell and Norwood Lanes.

NATHAN HALE Elementary School,

Rte. 53, which will continue north from the I-90 and tollway interchange, now ends just north of Dundee Road. According to Lee, who was also the engineer on the Rte. 53 project, the highway will be extended north by the Elgin district of the state highway department.

"I know there are some engineering plans, but I do not know when they plan to construct Rte. 53 north of Dundee Road," Lee said.

1300 W. Wise Rd., Schaumburg, will have two crossing guards during the coming year. One guard will be stationed at the corner of Springguth Road and Hartman Drive, and the second will be on duty at the corner of Wise Road and Pleasant Drive.

Children who were previously bused to school from the Pleasant Hills subdivision will now walk to Hale because of the completion of sidewalks along Wise Road.

In Hoffman Estates, seven crossing guards will be strategically located throughout the village to serve children for six elementary schools.

At the corner of Bode and Washington, a crossing guard will be assigned to guard the children walking to Lakeview School. A guard will also be stationed at the intersection of Bode Road and Grand Canyon Parkway to protect children living north of Bode who will be attending Hoffman Elementary School.

Guards will also be stationed at these Hoffman Estates intersections: Roselle Road and Flagstaff Avenue, (St. Hubert School), Hillcrest Boulevard and Fremont Road, (Hillcrest School), and Chipendale Lane and Glenlake Road (MacArthur School).

HOFFMAN ESTATES children attending Churchill School on Jones Road will have two crossing guards assigned to protect them on their way to and from school. Guards will be stationed at the intersection of Jones Road and Hillcrest Boulevard, and at the corner of Jones Road and Evergreen, directly in front of the school.

Monday is the opening day of school in Dist. 54, and all crossing guards will be on duty. Parents are urged to instruct their children to follow the directions of the crossing guards, because it is for their safety that guards have been provided.

Many children will be attending school for the first time Monday, and parents should instruct children to cross only at properly guarded intersections, Milton Derr, Assistant Superintendent, said.

Drivers are reminded that the speed limit in school areas is 20 miles per hour when children are present.

Apparently, the demands of many women's liberation-minded females to "stamp out inequality" has been taken literally by the federal government.

A new postage stamp, commemorating the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage, will go on sale today at the local post offices.

Yesterday, the new six-cent stamp went on sale in Adams, Mass., according to representatives of the League of Women Voters in the suburbs.

Adams was chosen for the "First Day of Issue" of the woman suffrage stamp because it is the birthplace of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer crusader of women's rights.

Miss Anthony was founder and president of National American Woman Suffrage Association, which became the League of Women Voters (LWV) in 1920.

SINCE ITS founding, the LWV has been concerned with emphasizing the importance of the vote in our society.

In launching the League's 50th anniversary celebration, President Richard M. Nixon said: "For fifty years the League of Women Voters has provided Americans in every state with information on candidates and issues."

The President went on to say, "It has furnished a non-partisan platform for which all candidates may be seen and heard. These activities have strengthened government and have helped to sustain the public weal."

To mark its 50th year, the LWV designated 1970 as the year of the Voter. This commemorates also the 100th anniversary of the 15th amendment affirming black male suffrage.

A NEW POSTAGE stamp portraying the 50th year since women got the vote was issued yesterday. It is available at the local post office.

MAKE YOUR REAL ESTATE BROKER
EARN HIS MONEY

It's easy to do; you'll be pleased with the results; and he'll be thankful to have you as a client.

To get the best results from a real estate professional, give him (or her) a chance to work for you exclusively until you have made a satisfactory transaction or decided to get another Real Estate Broker.

Buyers occasionally negotiate with more than one Realtor at the same time in the mistaken belief they will see a better variety of properties or stand a chance of making a more advantageous transaction.

A Real Estate Broker cannot do his best work under these conditions, knowing his efforts may be useless if his client should conclude a transaction with another broker in the meantime.

Only a small percentage of properties for sale are advertised at any one time. A Real Estate Broker therefore needs sufficient time to study his listing files or Multiple Listing records while he seeks out the best answer to his buyer's needs.

Pick a competent Real Estate Broker and give him your confidence. You'll both benefit.

Drug Abuse Answers Sought

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

'No Drug Problem In NW Suburbs'

There is no drug problem in the north-west suburbs.

There are problems, each of which must be dealt with in an individualized manner, and cannot be collectively labeled or treated.

This was only one of the misconceptions cleared up at a drug abuse meeting at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night.

State, county and local officials, over 100 of them, listened as several guests and speakers gave their opinions as to the extent of drug abuse in this area and the many public misconceptions about it.

Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee (PTAC) offered some statistics to bring the scope of local drug abuse into focus.

For example, in 1966 the Palatine police handled 6 drug cases. Two years later this figure jumped up to 19, "and these are only the ones on record," he said.

ANOTHER SOURCE OF Thomas' information came from Northwest Community Hospital administrators who said the number of drug overdose cases and/or attempted suicides via overdose was 11 in January of this year, 14 in February and 10 in March.

"This is up to one every other day now," Thomas said.

When these figures are broken down into age and sex brackets, the results are interesting.

Of these cases, 4 can be attributed to females between 12 and 20, 9 to women between 21 and 39, 15 to females between 40 and 64, and 1 to a woman over 65 years of age.

And for males, 3 cases dealt with those between 12 and 40, 2 with the 21 to 39 bracket, 1 for those between 40 and 65 and none for men over 65 years of age.

Although the fact that the women between 40 and 64 years of age had the most cases spoke for itself, Thomas reiterated, "Kids are not the only ones using drugs."

FOR EXAMPLE, Thomas said his youth committee staff recently worked with a 14-year-old girl on LSD. Her mother was on tranquilizers every four hours and her father was frequently "sacked" from martinis by supper time, he said.

This is not to say that drug abuse among teens is not prevalent. Of the 200 "crisis" cases the PTAC dealt with in the last year, Thomas said about 75 per cent of them had drug problems in relation to their other "hangups."

This is another point several participants stressed. Drug abuse is not a problem in itself. It is often the symptom of other and more serious problems, frequently of which stem from the home.

HOUSE AT 701 E. Higgins Rd. has broken down in June. Bottled water has been without water since the well has been obtained from a friend.

Woman, 2 Children Facing Eviction

Mrs. Janet Hall, 41, and her two children are in need of help and time is running out.

The family is to be evicted Monday from their house at 701 E. Higgins Rd. in Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Hall has not paid her rent for at least a year, she says, and has been out of a job for about a month.

"I gotta go somewhere," she said, standing outside on the porch in front of her dilapidated house near Wildwood Road. "I've got to find a job."

Mrs. Hall lives in a four-room cement block house surrounded by tall weeds and grass that envelop the five-acre lot her rented home is located on.

She contends the property has been neglected by her landlord, yet she admits to not having paid the $100 monthly rent.

MRS. HALL has lived there for seven years. She said her husband left her five years ago.

Two of her sons by a previous marriage are in the service. She looks after the other two youngsters, Judy, 9, and Bob, 10.

She said she receives welfare from both the county and township but that it's not enough to live on.

Mrs. Hall admits that part of her problem is that she cannot find a job after having been laid off from her last one.

She contends her house is in the condition it is because her landlord has not made repairs.

Joseph Kozol of Chicago, the landlord, says Mrs. Hall has not bothered to maintain the property.

HE SAID HE told her to move last June, months after she had stopped paying rent. He said the house is not worth fixing and that he wants to have it leveled.

"It was a real nice place when they moved in," Kozol said, adding that he cannot pay for improvements if she does not pay her rent.

"I can't spend that kind of money," he said, when asked about the broken water well. At one time he did make improvements to the house, but that was when he received rent.

Finally, he said, he went to court to get a court order to have Mrs. Hall vacate the building.

"I'm in a bind," he said.

MRS. HALL has since gone to the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows for help. But, finding a place for a woman with two children and no job is a task the center is having difficulty with.

"I don't even have a tent," Mrs. Hall said. My kids have no shoes. I don't know how I'll send them to school," she said.

FAA Awaits Statements

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Pal-Waukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Pal-Waukee and John McFadden of 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

It's Open Season On Gas Caps: Cops

Hoffman Estates police received more than 20 reports of vandals taking gas caps from cars in the village Tuesday and Wednesday.

The reports varied from one gas cap missing to approximately 10 missing on several vehicles.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred.

Gas caps were reported missing from their vehicles by residents on Carthage Lane, Columbia Drive, Carnation Drive and Bluebonnet Lane in Hoffman Estates.

According to one police officer, vandalism cases should lessen once school starts.

For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

Asa Baber, "The Land of a Million Elephants." A comic fable about an invasion of a gentle southeast Asian paradise by the imperialistic drek of all nations. This amusing morality tale has been serialized in Playboy magazine.

panionable, brisk, cool candor of the tee-touchers and their connections.

William Inge, "Good Luck, Miss Wyckoff." Good luck, Miss Wyckoff, is what everyone says to her when she's ridden out of the town of Freedom, Kan., for having had what would be called, in her spinster-school teacher-romantic-literary frame of limited reference, carnal congress... with a young black athlete.

Francis Gary Powers and Curt Gentry, "Operation Overflight." On May 1, 1960, Francis Gary Powers was shot down over Russia in a U-2 surveillance-equipped aircraft, captured and served up as a dish of crow by Khrushchev in some elaborate summitry complete with trial, sentencing and imprisonment. These revelations are a moving study of an earnest, unsophisticated, honest and wounded man who had been expected to perform as something more (or less) than human.

William and Kathy Dimon, "Across the U.S.A. — By Boat." The Dimonds traveled in their craft, the "Triumph," on an 8,500 mile course through inland waterways from Alaska to Florida. Along the way there are a few mildly troublesome moments (a sportive horde of killer whales swim nearby), but mainly the Dimonds are hampered by land-bound squalls in the form of newspaper, radio and TV appearances.

Anthony Scaduto, "Getting the Most for Your Money." A real money saver dealing with commodities, food, clothes, appliances, furnishings, cars, etc. Covers all kinds of misleading consumer lures as well as a region by region list of organizations which serve and protect consumer interests.

Howard comes to the administrative building with 12 years' teaching experience, six of which were spent as the over-all department chairman for industrial arts, and eight with this high school district serving Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Howard also is responsible for coordinating current cooperative work programs in industrial cooperative education, distributive education, office occupations and cooperative work training — programs which students work in an actual job situation for half a day and attend classes in a related area during the other half.

Jack Finney, "Time and Again." This is a fully illustrated novel dealing with a remarkable experiment Simon Morley, an artist with a premium on imagination, is chosen as a possible subject by a group operating on the theory that time is charted by a myriad of details and if surrounded by what appears to be the artifacts and events of an era, they might be able to project themselves into the actual time slot. For weeks Simon is secluded in an apartment in New York where he dresses, eats, entertains himself and reads newspapers on the style of the New York of 1894 and finally he walks out into the Central Park of that January.

Dick Francis, "Enquiry." Mystery dealing with Kelly Hughes, one of Mr. Francis' scrappy jockeys, who is debarred after his poor showing in the Lemonfizz Crystal Cup. Kelly survives (a nearly fatal accident; an assault) to prove how it was rigged.

Currently working on an advanced degree at the University of Illinois, Howard holds a master's degree in industrial education from the same university, and a bachelor's degree in industrial education from Illinois State University.

Having recently ended a brief vacation with his wife and three children at their home at 262 N. Ashland, he is now gearing up for the work that lies ahead of the district's first vocational coordinator.

Willard Gaylin, M.D., "In the Service of Their Country: War Resisters in Prison." After an opening blast at the Vietnam war, an explanation of how he fell into the project, a statement of his plan, rationale and purpose, and a harsh introduction to the two prison settings, comes the core of the study: six chapters dealing each with a single subject, interviewed from six to eight times and quoted at length from tape recordings of the sessions.

Jane Howard, "Please Touch." Miss Howard is a staff writer for Life magazine, and in her field work on the group awareness circuit, she touched all bases from Big Sur to a relatively sedate "company" group on Cape Cod. A com-

Dystrophy Carnival Set

Residents in Schaumburg can help combat Muscular Dystrophy by participating in a carnival put on by neighborhood children tomorrow from 1 to 7 p.m. at 1168 Bradford Ln. Food will also be available.

Sign Confusion

Hoffman Estates Trustee James Kopp this week expressed dismay that the village is unable to quickly approve a sign requested for the 77-acre Kaufman & Broad (K&B) Industrial Park at Barrington Rd. and the tollway.

Carnival games that will be featured include a sponge toss, dart toss, movie, bowling, bottle drop, bean bag toss, and the pie toss. Ten cents per game will be charged.

Long hours and $750 for a brochure have been invested by the village business council to attract industry to the community, yet approval can't be attained for a sign at the village's first industrial park, Kopp said.

All carnival proceeds will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. John Potter, 14 and Ronald Buck, 11, are in charge of the neighborhood carnival tomorrow afternoon. Other children participating are, Pat Benson; Dave, Greg and Mike Clark; Jim Dillon; Mark Benson; Bill Frank and Peter Teragosa.

"Our little village can't be that bogged down by bureaucracy," he said.

There will also be a neighborhood Muscular Dystrophy carnival at 1318 Norwell Ct., Schaumburg, tomorrow from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Both events are planned with kits provided by "Cartoon Town," a television program on WFLD, Channel 32.

The source of the problem is that the village zoning ordinance for manufacturing districts makes no provisions for signs, said Robert Valentino, zoning board of appeals (ZBA) chairman.

The zoning board is booked solid through September and time to consider the matter is sparse, he added.

THE ZBA HAS been working on a sign ordinance for the village concerned primarily with the business district. In recent weeks a survey has been taken of signs in both Hoffman Estates and contiguous businesses in Schaumburg.

A final ordinance is a long way off, Valentino said. The writing process will not begin until Sept. 22, he added.

Valentino said there is no provision for industrial signs, and the matter should be handled directly as a legislative issue by the village board.

Interested applicants are asked to contact Park Secretary Nancy Nielsen at 837-2468 to discuss salary and other details of the opening.

Reference to the judiciary committee, chaired by Trustee Edward Hennessy, was suggested by Valentino.

Mrs. Nielsen also stressed this week that people interested in starting new park programs are welcome to contact park offices immediately.

The matter was left pending.

"We have often had interest expressed in new programs but have not been able to offer the activities because of lack of supervisor or instructor," she said.

An illustration of the billboard sign, proposed by K&B, was shown to the trustees. It indicated the name of the industrial park will be "Kaufman Barrington," an irritant to village fathers.

Some programs proposed include soccer league, model building and crocheting.

Vocational Ed Director Ready For New Challenge

If creating new titles and offices in an administration is any indication of interest, then High School Dist. 211 is on its way into vocational education on an unprecedented scale.

THIS CAN BE misleading, however, he said. "A lot of people view vocational education in too narrow a way."

Last week, Don Howard began his newly created job of Dist. 211 vocational education coordinator.

That is, the way a student uses course content determines the extent to which a course is vocational, not the actual content itself.

"The mere fact that my position was established indicates that the board, the administration and the community are more concerned about the area of vocational education," he said.

"To some students, English could be vocational. It depends on what he or she plans to do with it. Vocational education doesn't mean all machine shop courses, you see," he said.

Howard comes to the administrative building with 12 years' teaching experience, six of which were spent as the over-all department chairman for industrial arts, and eight with this high school district serving Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Thus, programs which will be developed in the future by Dist. 211 alone or in conjunction with the NEC will use as their foundations two of Howard's premises:

Currently working on an advanced degree at the University of Illinois, Howard holds a master's degree in industrial education from the same university, and a bachelor's degree in industrial education from Illinois State University.

Two things determine vocational education: "How students will use the course, and the extent to which the relationship between the course content and the student's utilization of the course are shown by the instructor," Howard said.

Having recently ended a brief vacation with his wife and three children at their home at 262 N. Ashland, he is now gearing up for the work that lies ahead of the district's first vocational coordinator.

Women participating in volleyball programs sponsored by Hanover Park Park District are invited to a demonstration to be staged Sept. 14 at 8 p.m. at Eastview Junior High School, Bartlett.

His main duties are to develop and coordinate existing vocational education programs in the areas of business education, industrial education and home economics.

"The Chicago Rebels," a women's team will demonstrate fine points of play, Park Secretary Nancy Nielsen said this week.

Howard also is responsible for coordinating current cooperative work programs in industrial cooperative education, distributive education, office occupations and cooperative work training — programs which students work in an actual job situation for half a day and attend classes in a related area during the other half.

No admission will be charged and the demonstration is open to all interested area residents.

Another major aspect of his job is to oversee all vocational reimbursements, which come from the state division of vocational rehabilitation and other state agencies.

PERHAPS THE most challenging and important task facing Howard, however, is to develop and implement a long-range vocational education plan which will meet the needs of tomorrow.

This encompasses new courses, cooperative agreements with other schools for vocational programs and similar agreements with local industries.

Already, Dist. 211 is making headway into one of these areas. They are one of 10 school districts from a four-township area comprising the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) which is currently studying the feasibility of building a joint vocational education center.

Asked if the student interest is high enough to support such an endeavor, Howard referred to a poll recently taken by Stuart Anderson, director of this study for the NEC.

"The result of Anderson's poll showed that there is more interest than students enrolled in programs, and thus a need for more courses in more areas."

What is the Christ?

Christ is the spirit of Truth and Love that Jesus taught and lived. It comes to each one of us when we are receptive to it.

No matter how far you may feel from the Christ, you can discover it for yourself. You can recognize its power to meet any situation.

You may learn how by coming to our study room and reading this week's Bible Lesson. It contains ideas that heal.

St. Joseph To Open Doors To 100 Fewer Students

St. Joseph the Worker Catholic School in Wheeling is scheduled to open its doors for fall classes on Tuesday with about 100 fewer students than attended the school last year.

Approximately 275 students are expected to attend St. Joseph this year, compared with 371 enrolled last year, according to the principal Sister Jean Schulte.

Tuition rates have also gone up at the school this year. Tuition for one child will be $150, compared to $140 last year.

Tuition for two children from the same family will be $225. The rate will be $275 for three children from the same family and $325 for each additional child from the same family.

"WE'RE SORRY but there's a financial crisis all over. It's just one of those things," said Sister Jean.

Sister Jean said the tuition had to be raised because the school operated at a $62,000 deficit last year. A $486,000 debt on the school building also remains, she added.

Students will attend classes from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday through Friday. Starting Sept. 8, students will go to school from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

One class each in grades one through seven will be offered at the school this year and two eighth grade classes will be provided.

Three classes offered last year were eliminated from the school program this year. They include a combined second and third grade class, a combined fifth and sixth grade class and one seventh grade class.

The average class size will be 29 students. The faculty at the school will include eight lay teachers and five teaching sisters.

ENROLLMENT HAS been declining at St. Joseph and tuition has been rising in recent years. Two years ago, enrollment at the school was about 400 and tuition was $90 for one child.

Members of the St. Joseph parish were active in the efforts last spring to secure passage of some sort of state aid bill to nonpublic schools in the state legislature.

Parents and officials from the school were among several busloads of area people who went to Springfield in May in an attempt to convince legislators of the need for such a bill.

However, efforts to secure passage of a state aid bill were unsuccessful.

In contrast to St. Joseph, St. Mary's Catholic School in Buffalo Grove has reported an increase in enrollment over last year.

Enrollment at St. Mary's will be about 60 students over last year.

Slightly over 800 this fall, an increase of Sister Katherine Mary, principal at the school, attributed the increased enrollment to the rapidly growing communities served by the school.

FAA Awaits Investigation

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Pal-Waukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Pal-Waukee and John McFadden of 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred.

"For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

"The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

School Bells Ring For Area Children

That low rumble you will hear early Monday morning will not be an earthquake rocking the Northwest suburbs, nor will it be Chicago's John Hancock Center teetering on its foundation.

Rather, it will be the sounds of 16,345 students pouring back into the six Dist. 214 high schools, which serve two townships and eight towns in the Northwest suburbs.

Those students are the sons and daughters of residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows. A seventh school is scheduled for completion next fall.

THERE WILL BE more than 1,300 new students in the district this year, and all of the high schools have projected increased enrollment.

Enrollment at Arlington is projected up from 2,331 to 2,405; Forest View from 2,511 to 2,850; Hersey from 2,572 to 2,850; Elk Grove from 2,604 to 2,900; Prospect from 2,469 to 2,515; and Wheeling from 2,442 to 2,825.

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, reported that official enrollment figures are taken on the sixth day of classes, which is the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Today will be the final preparation day for students and teachers in the district. Teachers are holding their annual institute day until 3:30 p.m. today. Supt. Edward Gilbert will be a featured speaker, and County Supt. of Schools Robert Hanrahan will speak briefly.

THE DISTRICT'S Education Association will vote today on the 1970-71 salary package. No public opposition to the package has appeared.

Students will have their last days of freedom over the weekend, and then it's back to school for another nine months.

Enrollment in Cook County public schools is expected to reach an all-time high of 464,470 students, according to figures from Hanrahan's office, representing an increase of 24,192 over the 1969-70 school year.

"We expect an enrollment of 342,202 in Cook County elementary schools and 142,268 in our high schools," said Hanrahan.

Arrest Mexicans For Illegal Entry

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $300 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

College-Trained Police Proposed

by JUDY RESSLER

College-trained policemen? It's in the future for both the Wheeling and the Buffalo Grove police departments.

In about five years, the Wheeling Police Department may be hiring only men with college degrees. And in Buffalo Grove, the goal is for most policemen to have at least two years of college.

Currently the only requirements for a starting police officer are weight and height limits, age limits and a high school degree or the equivalent. But because the educational level of the community is rising, policemen's education must also rise, said Wheeling Police Sgt. Gene Wolf.

Although area policemen must attend an 8-week training course, officers do not receive training in sociology and psychology, Wolf said. "There can be no in-depth study during an eight-week course," he added.

DURING THE two-month training course, policemen learn how to work with the public, legal subjects, traffic control, criminal investigations, records and reports, patrol procedures and some specialized subjects.

Although Wheeling is not yet changing requirements for beginning policemen, individual development is encouraged,

Wolf said. "We hope our officers are aggressive, self-motivating and self-disciplined individuals. We hope they're progressive," he said.

"A man should realize that if he's coming into this field, he will have to have a degree," Wolf said.

The Buffalo Grove Police Department is also discussing higher education for its current police officers. If funds are available, the Village of Buffalo Grove may

Pot Charge

Three men and one female juvenile were arrested by Wheeling police at 1 a.m. Wednesday and charged with possession of marijuana.

The three men included Jerome P. Schultz, 18, 108 Prairie View, Prairie View; Daniel J. Austin, 19, 12 Pope Blvd., Prairie View; and Mark C. Seymour, 8, RR 1, Mundelein.

The four were arrested as they were driving an auto on Wolf Road one block north of Dundee Road in Wheeling. A plastic bag containing material suspected of being marijuana was taken as evidence.

The men were released on bond. They are scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court on Sept. 25.

TWO SENIOR citizens escape the hot sun of a summer afternoon and hold a discussion on a park bench under the shade of a tree.

Buffalo Grove Days To Be Biggest Yet

The upcoming Buffalo Grove Days celebration will have something to keep everyone busy during the Labor Day weekend. Plans for the three-day celebration are being completed by the Buffalo Grove Days committee. The final official committee meeting was held Tuesday.

The village of Buffalo Grove and several community organizations have set up one of the largest celebrations ever in the village. Festivities will be held Sept. 4-6.

Larry Lujack, WLS radio disk jockey, will appear at a Battle of the Bands at the Buffalo Grove Mall Friday, Sept. 4, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The top three winners of the Battle of the Bands will receive cash prizes. Persons of any age may enter the "battle" by calling 537-0636.

BUFFALO GROVE talent will be featured at the variety show at St. Mary's Hall at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5. Tickets, which may be purchased by calling 537-5173, are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

A Western Roundup will highlight Saturday's Buffalo Grove Days festivities for adults. The Roundup will be a dinner-dance at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course with entertainment throughout the evening. "Redeye hour" begins at 7 p.m.

and dinner will be served at 8 p.m. From 7 to 9 p.m. entertainment will be provided by the Wheeling Music Shoppe Trio. At 9 p.m. the "Sage Riders," a nationally known western band, will perform. Other entertainment includes the Steve and Sylvia Duet, the AC Square Wheels and a special guest star.

Tickets for the Western Roundup are limited and will not be sold at the door. The ticket, which does not include alcoholic beverages, may be purchased for $4.50 each at the village hall or by calling 537-0636.

The annual homemaking competition will begin Sept. 6 festivities. First, second- and third-place ribbons will be awarded in baking, sewing and needlecraft, canning and gardening competition. A trophy will be awarded to the individual compiling the most points. To qualify for the trophy competition and title of Homemaking Queen, a person must place at least once in each of the four categories.

Entries for the homemaking competition will be accepted at the Emmerich Park Building Sept. 6 from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

MORE THAN 25 parade units will carry the theme of "American Heritage Day" in the parade beginning at 1 p.m.

Sunday.

Post-parade ceremonies will include the raising of the flag, demonstrations by marching units, a motorcycle demonstration by the Medinah Motor Corps and other demonstrations.

At 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Deny the Magician will perform his magic act in Emmerich Park. Also in the park, music provided by the Wheeling Music Shoppe will entertain from 3 to 8 p.m.

The Buffalo Grove-Wheeling Little League All-Star baseball game will take place during the day at the park. At 5 p.m., the Buffalo Grove major league team will play baseball with the Elk Grove All-Stars.

THE HOMEOWNERS Display will be shown from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Rocket competition and a fire department demonstration will also be held Sept. 6. Times for these demonstrations will be announced.

Carnival rides, and refreshments also will be a part of the celebration.

Fireworks will climax the Buffalo Grove Days Sunday night. The display will be staged by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees at about 8:30 p.m. Following the fireworks, the winner of Friday's Battle of the Bands will play for a teen dance, also at Emmerich Park.

Think Your Lawn, s So Big?

by DAVE PALERMO

When you see how efficiently he takes care of an 18-hole golf course, you begin to wonder what Ken Goodman could do with that ragged front lawn of yours.

Goodman, the greenskeeper for the Mount Prospect Country Club course, has spent the last 17 years tending golf courses and if he has his way he'll spend at least the next 17 doing the same thing.

"I like the profession. I can't see doing anything else," said Goodman, a resident of Wheeling. "My father worked on a golf course and I used to caddy. Almost every youngster caddied back then because they didn't have many carts like they do now."

"That's usually the way you get into this line of work. You caddy for a few years. They usually won't let you work on a course until you're 16 or 17 years old."

Goodman arrived at the Mount Prospect Country Club two years ago after tending courses at Indian Hill, River Woods (now Ravinia Green), Diamond Lake and Twin Orchards (now Long Grove).

A graduate of Arlington High School, Goodman's experience is necessary in a field which has become a science as well as a profession in the past 10 years.

Fairways at the country club must be carefully fertilized and trimmed to a length of about 1 1/4 inches. Aprons surrounding the greens must be cut to a length no higher than 1/2 inch and the greens must be kept at 3/16 of an inch.

"The daily work consists of cutting the greens, changing the tee markers and putting in the flags. Then we go into the specialized aspects such as rotoring and rebuilding greens."

"Probably the biggest thing on the course is the greens. We use a hybrid grass on our greens now called Poanu. It's actually a wild blue grass."

"The grass on the greens tend to develop fungus if not kept properly. A fungicide such as Phenyl Mercury has to be used but with all the talk about the dangers of insecticides we might have to use something else in the near future. DDT is banned in Illinois."

GOODMAN'S JOB is a year-long one.

In the winter he spends his time "going through all the machinery" needed to keep a course in good shape.

A member of the Midwest Golf Course Superintendents Association as well as its national counterpart, he spends three days at Purdue University every spring for a national convention in which newly-developed means of caring for a golf course are discussed.

Vandalism has often been a thorn in the side of greenskeepers, but Goodman tends to think that the problem has subsided in the past few months.

"At first there was quite a problem when I first came here, but it isn't as bad now," he said. "Now the thing is to take the flags."

As far as the behavior of golfers at the course, Goodman feels the great majority of them are well behaved and show respect for the course.

"THEY'RE PRETTY WELL behaved, but they don't rake the sand traps enough," he said.

Greenskeeping has become profitable as it has become a science. Goodman estimates that in the Midwest a greenskeeper can make from $9,500 to $22,000 a year.

But Goodman isn't in it entirely for the money. He's been doing it too long.

KEEPING THE FAIRWAYS in shape at the Mount Prospect Country Club is a year-round job for Ken Goodman, greens keeper at the course. Goodman, a graduate of Arlington High School, has spent the last 17 years taking care of golf courses in the Northwest suburban area.

Drug Abuse Answers Sought

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Cholner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete formal for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

No Drug Problem

There is no drug problem in the northwest suburbs.

There are problems, each of which must be dealt with in an individualized manner, and cannot be collectively labeled or treated.

This was only one of the misconceptions cleared up at a drug abuse meeting at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night.

State, county and local officials, over 100 of them, listened as several guests and speakers gave their opinions as to the extent of drug abuse in this area and the many public misconceptions about it.

Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee (PTAC) offered some statistics to bring the scope of local drug abuse into focus.

For example, in 1966 the Palatine police handled 6 drug cases. Two years later this figure jumped up to 19, "and these are only the ones on record," he said.

ANOTHER SOURCE OF Thomas' information came from Northwest Community Hospital administrators who said the number of drug overdose cases and/or attempted suicides via overdose was 11 in January of this year, 14 in February and 10 in March.

"This is up to one every other day now," Thomas said.

When these figures are broken down into age and sex brackets, the results are interesting.

Of these cases, 4 can be attributed to females between 12 and 20, 9 to women between 21 and 39, 15 to females between 40 and 64, and 1 to a woman over 65 years of age.

And for males, 3 cases dealt with those between 12 and 20, 2 with the 21 to 39 bracket, 1 for those between 40 and 65 and none for men over 60 years of age.

Although the fact that the women between 40 and 64 years of age had the most cases spoke for itself, Thomas reiterated, "Kids are not the only ones using drugs."

FOR EXAMPLE, Thomas said his youth committee staff recently worked with a 14-year-old girl on LSD. Her mother was on tranquilizers every four hours and her father was frequently "sacked" from martials by supper time, he said.

This is not to say that drug abuse among teens is not prevalent. Of the 200 "crisis" cases the PTAC dealt with in the last year, Thomas said about 75 per cent of them had drug problems in relation to their other "hangups."

Programs At St. Alphonsus New Suffrage Stamp Issued

St. Alphonsus School, in Prospect Heights will open Monday with three new programs.

Changes have been made in the science, social studies and reading programs for approximately 500 students enrolled in kindergarten through the eighth grade. St. Alphonsus, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., serves students from Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and Wheeling.

Longer labs for first through fourth grades are part of changes in the science curriculum. Science programs for fifth through eighth graders are now considered more comprehensive than in previous years.

Social studies will be taught to first, second and third graders by book as well as as records and filmstrips. Fourth through sixth grades will receive a combined history and geography course.

The first through third grades will have a new reading program that is more comprehensive than last year.

Enrollment at St. Alphonsus has decreased and tuition has gone up. Last year the school had 620 students as compared to 588 this year. Tuition is now $180 for the first child and $200 for two or more. Last year parents had to pay $100 for one child and $150 for more than one child.

The school secretary said tuition was raised "to help keep our financial heads above water." She said the raises follow suggestions of the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese. She said the school is having no money problems "that we are aware of now."

She said School Dist. 21 has helped St. Alphonsus by loaning library books. The district also has a resource center and audio-visual aid that can be used by the Catholic school.

Dist. 21 and School Dist. 26 help provide bus transportation. They transport children living over a mile and half from the school free. Other students must pay a fee.

St. Alphonsus has no hot lunch program but is part of the government subsidized milk program. Once a month the St. Alphonsus Women's Guild brings in a hamburger lunch for the students.

Money Raised For Charity

More than $100 was raised by the Buffalo Grove Lions Club for Lions service and charitable organizations at their bowling tournament last Saturday, according to Bob Bauer, club president.

Prizes were awarded to the couples who obtained the highest bowling scores. First prize, a television set, was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robin Jr. of Buffalo Grove. They bowled a score of 572 in the three-game series.

The second prize, an electric can opener, was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. D.R. Small of Buffalo Grove for their 569 score for the three-game series.

THIRD PRIZE, a power flashlight, went to Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Reading of Wheeling for a 568 score for three games.

Prizes were also awarded to the couples who finished in fourth through tenth place. Lions club members who won prizes put them up for auction.

The next activity for the Buffalo Grove Lions Club will be "Candy Day" Oct. 9. The club members will sell candy on the street corners in the community to raise funds for the club and for charity.

Women's Guild To Hold Rummage Sale

The women's guild of the Living Christ Lutheran Church on Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove will hold a rummage sale in the church basement today and Saturday.

Money from the sale, which is held annually will be used for church purposes. The sale will last from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today, and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Persons who wish to donate sale items to the women's guild may do so by calling 255-3500.

Apparently, the demands of many women's liberation-minded females to "stamp out inequality" has been taken literally by the federal government.

A new postage stamp, commemorating the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage, will go on sale today at the local post offices.

Yesterday, the new six-cent stamp went on sale in Adams, Mass., according to representatives of the League of Women Voters in the suburbs.

Adams was chosen for the "First Day of Issue" of the woman suffrage stamp because it is the birthplace of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer crusader of women's rights.

Miss Anthony was founder and president of National American Woman Suffrage Association, which became the League of Women Voters (LWV) in 1920.

SINCE ITS founding, the LWV has been concerned with emphasizing the importance of the vote in our society.

In launching the League's 50th anniversary celebration, President Richard M. Nixon said: "For fifty years the League of Women Voters has provided Americans in every state with information on candidates and issues."

The President went on to say, "It has furnished a non-partisan platform for which all candidates may be seen and heard. These activities have strengthened government and have helped to sustain the public weal."

To mark its 50th year, the LWV designated 1970 as the year of the Voter. This commemorates also the 100th anniversary of the 15th amendment affirming black male suffrage.

A NEW POSTAGE stamp portraying the 50th year since women got the vote was issued yesterday. It is available at the local post office.

Group Petitions For Zone Change

A small office building to be owned by the North Area Youth for Christ organization has been proposed for a site in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

The organization wants to place the structure on the north side of Foundry Road about 255 feet west of Newberry Lane.

Clayton Baumann, a Youth for Christ spokesman, said yesterday, "The proposed building will be the size of a house. It will be 30 feet by 50 feet, and two stories high. There will be no meeting hall there."

THE COOK COUNTY Zoning Board of Appeals will hear a petition for the necessary rezoning for the site at a hearing at 3 p.m. Monday in the Arlington Heights Village Hall.

Also to be heard at that time is a petition to change zoning on a quarter acre of land in unincorporated Wheeling Township for a proposed nursery school. The land, currently zoned for single family residences, is located on the north side of Brookfield Avenue, about 100 feet west of Lee Street.

Crossing Guard Is Needed Here

A school crossing guard is needed for the intersection of Dundee and Wille streets in Wheeling, beginning at the opening of classes in Dist. 21 next week.

The crossing guard will be paid $3 an hour and will be required to work approximately four hours a day, five days a week.

Real Estate News & Views

MAKE YOUR REAL ESTATE BROKER EARN HIS MONEY

It's easy to do; you'll be pleased with the results; and he'll be thankful to have you as a client.

To get the best results from a real estate professional, give him (or her) a chance to work for you exclusively until you have made a satisfactory transaction or decided to get another Real Estate Broker.

Buyers occasionally negotiate with more than one Realtor at the same time in the mistaken belief they will see a better variety of properties or stand a chance of making a more advantageous transaction.

A Real Estate Broker cannot do his best work under these conditions, knowing his efforts may be useless if his client should conclude a transaction with another broker in the meantime.

Only a small percentage of properties for sale are advertised at any one time. A Real Estate Broker therefore needs sufficient time to study his listing files or Multiple Listing records while he seeks out the best answer to his buyer's needs.

Pick a competent Real Estate Broker and give him your confidence. You'll both benefit.

Bike Racer Country's Hero

BRUSSELS (UPI) — By coincidence, Belgium's national holiday falls immediately after the Tour de France bicycle race. As a result, the holiday has become an occasion to laud the country's newest hero — a bicycle racer.

For two hours running, Eddy Merckx has won Europe's most prestigious cycling event, breaking 30 years of domination of the race by Frenchmen and Italians.

And on two national holidays running, King Baudouin has invited Merckx to his palace to convey the thanks of the country, where cycling races are followed in the newspapers and television as intensely as baseball in the United States and soccer in England.

"Will Eddy always spend July 21 (national day) at the palace?" A Belgian newspaper asked.

Most Belgians hope so. They talk of little else. "Eddy" books and magazines cover the sides of kiosks. Girls wear "Eddy" hats and buttons. In their adulation of Eddy, even Flemings and Wallons have put aside their traditional enmity.

Merckx has become the undisputed king of the European sport and with a strong list of teammates has insured Belgian dominance of the racing courses of Europe.

For Eddy fans in Belgium, the real test is the Tour de France, the gruelling month-long circuit over mountains and through city streets. Belgians want the 25-year-old Eddy to win four more times and beat the record of Frenchman Jacques Anquetil, who collected five yellow jerseys—the mark of the winner.

"After all," commented one Belgian newspaper, "he would then be only 29."

But Merckx is more cautious and laughs at such suggestions.

"I am not planning to break any records in that field," he said after this year's tour.

"I do not plan to go on cycling until I am completely tired and finished. I do not want to continue cycling until I am 35. I want to make something else out of my life, too. There are other things besides a bike and racing."

He does not like to talk about the other things and insists his private life be kept completely separate from his career. But he is known to be a music and jazz fan with a taste for Fats Domino and Louis Armstrong.

The sudden jump to fame and wealth for the Flemish farmer's son also has brought controversy and indications of emotions other than the grim determination that is reflected in hundreds of newspaper pictures showing Merckx with teeth clenched and muscles drawn as he crosses the finish line.

His strongest feeling during the last Tour de France was fear.

"Fear never left me during the tour—the fear of a spill, fear for accidents, for mishaps, for the unexpected which might ruin everything at the end," he said.

Merckx, who had to argue for years with his parents to become a bicycle racer, now collects annual estimated earnings in prize money and endorsements of more than $240,000.

But there is controversy. Last year he was ousted from the Tour of Italy on doping charges which provoked complaints in both the Belgian and Italian Parliaments. He won the tour this year.

His complete mastery of the sport and his share of prize money and endorsements have provoked some grumbling from competitors who wish he would let up for at least a few laps to give them a share of the glory.

Some fans, reminiscent of old Yankee-batters in American baseball, argue his dominance is killing the sport.

But Merckx never lets up. At this year's palace reception, Queen Fabiola told Eddy's wife Claudine, "Tell Eddy he should rest a little."

Eddy promised to spend four days at home with their baby daughter, Sabrina.

They're having a blast learning piano, and their school grades will improve, too.

Here's how:

Our sparkling new approach guarantees to make piano lessons fun, as they should have been all along. The result is rapid achievement of piano skills, along with the development of good learning habits which will last for a lifetime.

Motivation to learn comes from the student's own achievements in our classes as they learn quickly to compose their own songs, improvise, sight read, and play in any key. All of this is accomplished with a program which stresses the understanding of music, rather than the memorizing of music.

While learning piano with us our students are at the same time assured the scientifically proven advantages of music study, for music rightly taught is the best mind trainer on the list.

Our fall term begins the week of Sept. 14th. You may assure a convenient class time by calling 253-5592 now to pre-register. Tuition is 12.00 a month. The registration and materials fee of 10.00 includes everything that will be needed for the entire school year. Guarantee the magic of music for your school-ager by enrolling in the M.E.C. ## Language Problem In Nam

by BARNEY SEIBERT

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)— Along with all its other troubles, South Vietnam has a language problem which it is trying to overcome to help attain the goal of national unity.

According to government statistics, more than a million of the country's 17 million people do not speak the national language or speak it as a foreign tongue.

In addition, says Jacqueline G. Maier of the U.S. summer Institute of Linguistics, which is engaged in dealing with the language problem, there are at least 35 minority languages in South Vietnam, many of them divided into several local dialects.

Since most of the minority languages have no written alphabet, it is difficult to teach those who speak them.

As for the national Vietnamese language the Ministry of Education says most who try to learn it drop out of school before they become literate in it.

By next fall, the Ministries of Education and Ethnic Minorities hope to offer first grade instruction in at least seven native tongues for the children of up to 600,000 tribesmen.

In that program, the Institute is serving its own interests as well as those of the Vietnamese government, for which it is developing teaching methods. The Institute is an arm of Wycliffe Bible Translators, a U.S. fundamentalist Protestant agency which has as its goal the translation of the Bible into every tongue spoken on earth.

In areas where first-grade education in the native dialect has begun — communities in which Bahnar (85,000 persons), Bru (40,000), Koko (100,000) and Rade (100,000) are spoken — the government says:

"Results have been excellent and teachers and pupils are very enthusiastic . . . the parents are also enthusiastic . . . so much so that in one area where the girls were not allowed to study before, some are now being sent to school. The rates of dropouts and repeats have already begun to decrease . . ."

The children receive oral lessons in Vietnamese along with the written instruction in their mother tongue plus arithmetic, health, ethics and science. Teaching is done by tribesmen who have attended a government teacher training workshop.

Most children are completing a year of schooling in one year instead of the two or three years needed when classes were conducted only in the national language.

NORTH POINT STATE BANK of Arlington Heights (IN ORGANIZATION)

The new North Point State Bank moved one step closer to reality last week with the approval of the bank by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The bank, which had previously been approved for a permit to organize by the Illinois Commissioner of Banks and Trust Companies, now has clearance to complete its organization.

The bank is expected to open approximately October 1st, in temporary quarters in the North Point Shopping Center.

Shortly after the official opening of the temporary quarters of the North Point State Bank, ground will be broken for the bank's permanent headquarters to be located at the north end of the shopping center.

Approximately 10,000 shares are still available for purchase, and the sponsors of the bank have stated their intention to give local area residents first opportunity to share in the bank's ownership.

Persons desiring more information about the bank may call 825-5520, or fill in the coupon.

Public Education Bills Irking Taxpayers

by JOAN HANAUR
United Press International

The cost of public education in the United States is going up and the willingness of the taxpayer to foot the bill is going down.

The result is an increasing number of school districts strapped for funds, on austerity budgets or — in some cases — actually shutting school doors on their pupils.

The area hardest hit are not the big city ghetto schools but those in suburban and rural areas where the taxpayers vote on school budgets and construction bonds. Increasingly they are voting no.

A nationwide survey by UPI to discover how the public schools stand on the eve of the new term in September came up with these examples:

In Michigan, three districts have asked the state board of education to allow them to hold less than full-day classes because of financial troubles stemming from voter refusal to approve tax proposals that would pay operating costs. They include Lansing, fourth largest city in the state; Lincoln Park, a middle-sized Detroit suburb; and Charlotte, a small town.

In Ohio, one school district will be unable to open until late fall because voters failed to approve sufficient operating levies. Two others are in immediate danger. Many more schools are operating on state advances of subsidy money. When the advances run out, they will be in trouble. Last year 10 Ohio schools were forced to close for lack of funds during the winter — some for over a month — affecting 18,740 students.

IN MISSOURI, voters in suburban Kirkwood in St. Louis County have stubbornly turned down a descending scale of tax hikes five times this year and will vote Sept. 1 on retaining the present tax scale. Schools Superintendent W. A. Shannon called operating on the old tax rate "a situation we can live with, but not one which will contribute to continued improvement of our schools."

He refused to speculate on what would happen if voters turned down the present levy, too.

In St. Charles, Mo., the voters have consistently defeated a tax increase and the school board recently announced it would keep submitting the tax proposal every three weeks until it passed.

While some of the school districts with money troubles are areas with a low tax base, many are middle-class to rich. A prime example is Scarsdale, a downright well-to-do New York suburb in Westchester County.

Scarsdale defeated a school budget for the first time in its history this year. Virtually the same budget was defeated on a second vote. The voters were given a third opportunity to vote on the budget — this time with the warning that the alternative was an austerity budget on which, according to state law, they would not be able to vote. They gave in and accepted the proposed budget, and a tax hike.

School Board President Leonard Howard might have been speaking for his colleagues from coast to coast when he called the Scarsdale voter rejections "symptomatic of the times" and added:

"We're victims of the voters' bitterness against taxes and inflation. We can't do anything about the causes of inflation or the fact that school budgets have to come from property taxes, but we'll do the best we can within the law."

The problem involves both rising school operating and construction costs, and the sources of the funds to pay them.

The National Education Association (NEA) reports that for the 1969-70 school year, operating costs for regular public elementary and secondary schools amounted to about $32 billion, with capital expenditures adding another $4.7 billion to the bill.

For the school year 1970-71, the U.S. Office of Education estimates current expenses and interest will total about $37 billion and capital outlay $6.5 billion.

Of this, according to the NEA, the federal government pays 6.6 per cent, the state pays 41 per cent and localities raise about 53 per cent. The figures cited are the national average — actually localities in some states pay a larger percentage while in others the state picks up most or all of the tab.

THE METHODS localities use to raise money vary from state to state, and sometimes from community to community. Generally speaking, large cities such as New York include education in the city budget and the voters have no opportunity to vote on specific outlays.

It is in suburban and rural areas, in states that do not foot the education bill, where funds for operating expenses are raised through property taxes, or sometimes sales taxes, and for capital outlays through voter-approved bond issues.

And that is where the taxpayer revolt is taking place.

The taxpayers are not just rebelling against increases in operating costs. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) data show that over a five-year period ending with the 1968-69 school year, voter approval of school bond issues, by dollar value, dropped from 80 per cent to 44 per cent. That means by 1969, only 44 cents of every proposed school bond dollar was okayed by the voters.

And a study of school bond elections made in March by the Investment Bankers Association of America reveals that only 32.6 per cent of school bond proposals, in dollar value, were approved at the polls.

Education officials all over the country agree that something must be done to change the economic base of public school systems. School finance expert A. Terry Weathers, a vice president of the New York State School Boards Association, called the present system "inequitable," and urged a change from the "restrictive property tax base" to "a broader state tax base with assistance from the federal government."

James Williams, a researcher for the Illinois Education Association, said: "A much greater part of the money must come from the state and national levels if we are going to have a quality education in Illinois."

The NEA has called for "massive federal assistance," saying:

"Many school leaders believe the federal government, the state and the local community should share equally, each providing one-third of the school dollar. This, they contend, is the only road to sound financing of quality education for all American children."

Dr. R. L. Johns, director of the National Educational Finance Project, a $1.6 million federal study of public school financing, said: "To expect an old tax system to finance a modern educational operation is unrealistic." But he warned that change takes time. He predicted that by 1969 state and federal sources would pay 80 per cent of local education costs.

"I THINK WE'RE on the verge of a major revolution in school financing," he said. "It won't be a revolution like a clap of thunder. It may take 10 years, but it will come."

In state after state, the results of the UPI survey tend to prove his point.

In Illinois, school districts have been plagued by defeat of school referenda proposing bond issues and increases in property taxes. The effect has been reduction in educational services, double shifts for students until more buildings can be built and liberal borrowing in anticipation of property tax collections. Two districts currently are in critical need of operating funds.

In Georgia, an education spokesman said some school districts would be "in trouble" this fall because of financial problems and added: "I don't know how many . . . I don't believe anyone knows." He said he did not anticipate any schools closing for lack of money.

DeKALB COUNTY, with Georgia's second largest school system, had planned for $3 million to be raised via local taxes in a $49 million budget. The proposal was defeated and C. L. Harper, associate schools superintendent for the Atlanta suburb, said: "This year we are operating on an interim or deficit financing budget. If the legislature doesn't make any other sources of revenue available, we will end this year with a $3 million deficit."

New York state is no exception to the problem. The Education Department reported on July 21 that 82 of the 677 districts voting budgets in May, June and July had rejected them. Since then 31 of the 82 have approved budgets. The state education law prohibits closing of schools because of budget defeats. Instead the local school board can impose a contingency or austerity budget, on which no vote is needed.

And this is what has been happening in a number of Nassau and Suffolk County schools over the past few years. The two counties on Long Island just beyond New York City are in the lead of the taxpayers revolt.

Last year 47 school budgets went down to defeat in the two counties and the figure thus far this year is 39.

School expert Weathers, of Farmingdale, Long Island, explained why, in his view, the turndowns were taking place:

"People are feeling the frustration of other tax increases and the prospect of making ends meet in the face of ever-rising inflation. So they take out their frustrations by rejecting any more school taxes. The school tax is the one tax increase on which voters can cast a yes or no ballot."

Weathers pointed out that with the exception of school year 1960-61, school taxes in Nassau and Suffolk have risen every year since 1949-50. He said this represents an increase since 1949-50 of slightly over 500 per cent in school taxes.

No area of the country is without problems. In California, more bond issues are defeated than passed, and tax elections are perilously close to the 50 per cent level. In Los Angeles County, the school board even threatened to cut the 7th and 8th grade school day from six periods to five before needed money was found.

WYOMING REPORTED only one school district in the state, Casper, was facing urgent financial problems, with a cutback in services and teaching staff ordered when a tax increase was defeated. S. K. Walsh, Casper's assistant superintendent, said inflation was the major problem and warned that if some financial help isn't forthcoming soon, money problems will become critical for a number of districts in the state.

Pennsylvania law provides for a state takeover of "distressed" school districts, and four are now in that category. A number of others might be eligible for similar state help but prefer to avoid ceding local authority to state-appointed school boards by not requesting such status.

In Arkansas, the secretary to Harvey Z. Snell, state budget officer for schools, said no schools will fail to open this fall because of fund shortages, but last year two or three districts had to close schools after eight months for lack of money, and some may be in the same fix this year. She said the state constitution forbids any agency going into the red, so, "You live within your revenues or you close the schools."

Vermont voters in several areas refused to pass school tax hikes and in Rutland, the state's second largest city, voters three times rejected a proposal to increase the charter limit for the school tax rate. To make up the $300,000 shortage, the school board slashed programs, including kindergarten and varsity sports, to minimum state standards. The voters will have a chance to reinstate dropped programs in a referendum Sept. 8.

Street Concert ... For Education

NEW YORK (UPI)—The gentle rain had stopped. Eighteen-year-old Lou Rosenberg reappeared on the corner of 42nd Street and Lexington Avenue in Manhattan to blow another mellow melody of Beatles, folk and show tunes in his trombone.

On the sidewalk next to his foot lay an open horn case with a sign that read: "Help! I Need Funds For My First Semester At College. Let An Artist Learn His Profession."

His music flowed tunelessly through the humid air, but few of the afternoon rush hour pedestrians gave him a second glance. Even fewer gave him money. By 6 p.m. he had blown his last note of the day. He sat down on the warm concrete beside his coin-sprinkled trombone case.

"I don't brag that I do it," he spoke openly and rapidly about his sidewalk serenading that began four weeks earlier. "I never thought I would do anything like this. I was jamming with some guys in Central Park on Sundays—not for money—just for the fun of it. We started passing the hat around and then I decided to try it on my own."

Lou's first day out was an unsuccessful one in Manhattan's garment district. "But I only had six or seven songs then," he admitted. Since moving uptown he has added 10 songs to his repertoire and averages about $12 for five hours of play. Most contributors give him about 15 cents.

"I was playing 'A Day in the Life of a Fool,'" he said, grinning, "and a man came up to me and said he'd been humming that song all day long. He gave me a dollar."

The tall, thin Brooklynite assured that the money he collected from pedestrians really was needed for his upcoming semester at Staten Island's Wagner College.

Lou is one of about eight student musicians who are testing the generosity of passing New Yorkers this summer. He has become acquainted with most of them. Richard, for example, is a violin player who does quite well because, according to Lou, he gives a tear-jerking speech before each performance.

Two musicians named Steve, one a drummer (on a tin pail) and the other a flute player, are regulars at Times Square after 8 p.m. They are sometimes accompanied by an uninvited derelict who puts his own donation hat on the sidewalk and gyrates drunkenly to their music. One girl sits on a Times Square fire hydrant playing the guitar and singing. The sign in her guitar case reads simply, "Help Me Breathe Fresh Air This Summer."

Most don't solicit the pedestrians by passing a hat. They simply play and hope to be heard above the roar of the traffic. Lou said that the street concerts are illegal but they are only occasionally asked to move. "The New York City police are unbelievably nice," he said.

This Tale Quite Sweet

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Just in case you've ever wondered how maple syrup was discovered, the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets tells an old tale about an Indian squaw and her husband.

The squaw, so the story goes, left her cooking pot under a tree where her brave was napping so that when he awoke he would take the hint and go to the spring and fetch water.

But the brave, angered because getting water was a chore for women, drove his tomahawk into the tree in a fit of temper and walked away. The tree happened to be a maple, so sap ran into the pot.

The next morning the squaw found the pot, thought it was filled with water, and boiled it over her fire. As evaporation took place, she found she had made a sweet syrup.

Anyway, that's how the story goes.

THE MEDINAH MOTOR CORPS, which drew a large crowd at last year's Buffalo Grove Days, will have a motorcycle demonstration following the Buffalo Grove Days parade Sept. 6. The corps is from Chicago.

Buffalo Grove Days To Be Biggest Yet

The upcoming Buffalo Grove Days celebration will have something to keep everyone busy during the Labor Day weekend. Plans for the three-day celebration are being completed by the Buffalo Grove Days committee. The final official committee meeting was held Tuesday.

The village of Buffalo Grove and several community organizations have set up one of the largest celebrations ever in the village. Festivities will be held Sept. 4-6.

Larry Lujack, WLS radio disk jockey, will appear at a Battle of the Bands at the Buffalo Grove Mall Friday, Sept. 4, from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The top three winners of the Battle of the Bands will receive cash prizes. Persons of any age may enter the "battle" by calling 537-0536.

BUFFALO GROVE talent will be featured at the variety show at St. Mary's Hall at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5. Tickets, which may be purchased by calling 537-5173, are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

A Western Roundup will highlight Saturday's Buffalo Grove Days festivities for adults. The Roundup will be a dinner-dance at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course with entertainment throughout the evening. "Redeye hour" begins at 7 p.m. and dinner will be served at 8 p.m. From 7 to 9 p.m. entertainment will be provided by the Wheeling Music Shoppe Trio. At 9 p.m. the "Sage Riders," a nationally known western band, will perform. Other entertainment includes the Steve and Sylvia Duet, the AC Square Wheels and a special guest star.

Tickets for the Western Roundup are limited and will not be sold at the door. The ticket, which does not include alcoholic beverages, may be purchased for $4.50 each at the village hall or by calling 537-0602.

The annual homemaking competition will begin Sept. 6 festivities. First-, second- and third-place ribbons will be awarded in baking, sewing and needlecraft, canning and gardening competition. A trophy will be awarded to the individual compiling the most points. To qualify for the trophy competition and title of Homemaking Queen, a person must place at least once in each of the four categories.

Entries for the homemaking competition will be accepted at the Emmerich Park Building Sept. 6 from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

MORE THAN 25 parade units will carry the theme of "American Heritage Day" in the parade beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Post-parade ceremonies will include the raising of the flag, demonstrations by marching units, a motorcycle demonstration by the Medinah Motor Corps and other demonstrations.

At 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Deny the Magician will perform his magic act in Emmerich Park. Also in the park, music provided by the Wheeling Music Shoppe will entertain from 3 to 8 p.m.

The Buffalo Grove-Wheeling Little League All-Star baseball game will take place during the day at the park. At 5 p.m., the Buffalo Grove major league team will play baseball with the Elk Grove All-Stars.

THE HOMEMAKERS Display will be shown from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Rocket competition and a fire department demonstration will also be held Sept. 6. Times for these demonstrations will be announced.

Carnival rides, and refreshments also will be a part of the celebration.

Fireworks will climax the Buffalo Grove Days Sunday night. The display will be staged by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees at about 8:30 p.m. Following the fireworks, the winner of Friday's Battle of the Bands will play for a teen dance, also at Emmerich Park.

Election Of Officers Slated

The Buffalo Grove Recreation Association will meet to elect officers for next year Sept. 2 at Bill's Buffalo House at 8 p.m.

Jim Pfister, association spokesman, has urged all members to attend. "All nominations will be taken from the floor, and we are looking for more participation than in the past," he said.

Anyone desiring information concerning procedures for seeking office should contact Gene Muryn, 537-6126, or Dick Rice, 537-1472, he said.

The recreation association organizes and conducts all of the little league baseball programs in the village. During the past seasons more than 500 boys, age 7 to 16, participated in five leagues with a total of 36 teams. More than 150 adults assisted as managers, coaches and in field maintenance.

THE ASSOCIATION has one traveling league and four local leagues, Pfister said. In the farm league, for seven- and eight-year-olds, the winning team was the Gators. The minor league winner, for nine and 10-year-olds, was the Astros. In major league competition for 11- and 12-year-olds, the Cubs took first. A playoff is set for the Labor Day weekend between the Padres and the Expos for first place in the pony league for 13- and 14-year-olds.

Pfister also announced that the annual dinner banquet is set for Oct. 13 at the Old Orchard Country Club. There are 400 tickets available at $4 each for the banquet which starts at 6:30.

Trophies for the first and second place teams will be awarded at that time as will the award for the player of the year, he said. Arrangements are being made for a speaker from either the Cubs or White Sox organization.

Pfister said any interested person is eligible to join the association whether or not he has a child in the program. Membership fee is $3.

Long Grove VFD Conducts Drills

The Long Grove Volunteer Fire Department has been conducting fire drills in the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove recently, according to Chief Edward Deekle.

He said the drills are part of a continuing program to insure the department's readiness to handle a fire. The drills consist of calling the volunteers to the station and giving them an alarm at an address selected earlier. The truck proceeds to the address and simulates fighting a fire there. This involves setting up the equipment and making the necessary connections to the fire hydrants, Deekle said.

The department usually concentrates its drills in the Long Grove area, but does hold some in Buffalo Grove because some areas of the village are in the Long Grove Fire Protection District, he said.

Arrest Mexicans For Illegal Entry

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $500 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

FAA Awaits Investigation

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Pal-Waukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Pal-Waukee and John McFadden of 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred.

"For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

"The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

School Bells Ring For Area Children

That low rumble you will hear early Monday morning will not be an earthquake rocking the Northwest suburbs, nor will it be Chicago's John Hancock Center teetering on its foundation.

Rather, it will be the sounds of 16,345 students pouring back into the six Dist. 214 high schools, which serve two townships and eight towns in the Northwest suburbs.

Those students are the sons and daughters of residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows. A seventh school is scheduled for completion next fall.

THERE WILL BE more than 1,300 new students in the district this year, and all of the high schools have projected increased enrollment.

Enrollment at Arlington is projected up from 2,331 to 2,406; Forest View from 2,511 to 2,850; Hersey from 2,572 to 2,850; Elk Grove from 2,604 to 2,900; Prospect from 2,469 to 2,515; and Wheeling from 2,442 to 2,625.

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, reported that official enrollment figures are taken on the sixth day of classes, which is the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Today will be the final preparation day for students and teachers in the district. Teachers are holding their annual institute day until 3:30 p.m. today. Supt. Edward Gilbert will be a featured speaker, and County Supt. of Schools Robert Hanrahan will speak briefly.

THE DISTRICT'S Education Association will vote today on the 1970-71 salary package. No public opposition to the package has appeared.

Students will have their last days of freedom over the weekend, and then it's back to school for another nine months.

Enrollment in Cook County public schools is expected to reach an all-time high of 484,470 students, according to figures from Hanrahan's office, representing an increase of 24,192 over the 1969-70 school year.

"We expect an enrollment of 342,262 in Cook County elementary schools and 142,268 in our high schools," said Hanrahan.

College-Trained Police Eyed For Future

by JUDY RESSLER

College-trained policemen? It's in the future for both the Wheeling and the Buffalo Grove police departments.

In about five years, the Wheeling Police Department may be hiring only men with college degrees. And in Buffalo Grove, the goal is for most policemen to have at least two years of college.

Currently the only requirements for a starting police officer are weight and height limits, age limits and a high school degree or the equivalent. But because the educational level of the community is rising, policemen's education must also rise, said Wheeling Police Sgt. Gene Wolf.

Although area policemen must attend an 8-week training course, officers do not receive training in sociology and psychology, Wolf said. "There can be no in-depth study during an eight-week course," he added.

DURING THE two-month training course, policemen learn how to work with the public, legal subjects, traffic control, criminal investigations, records and reports, patrol procedures and some specialized subjects.

Although Wheeling is not yet changing requirements for beginning policemen, individual development is encouraged, Wolf said. "We hope our officers are aggressive, self-motivating and self-disciplined individuals. We hope they're progressive," he said.

"A man should realize that if he's coming into this field, he will have to have a degree," Wolf said.

The Buffalo Grove Police Department is also discussing higher education for its current police officers. If funds are available, the Village of Buffalo Grove may pay the tuition if its police officers attend college during their own time, said Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith.

"HIGHER EDUCATION should upgrade them and make them more professional," said Smith. "The problems in the police area are more complex every day, even in a small community like Buffalo Grove." Smith added that a higher education would teach police officers how to have better contact with people.

Harper College offers a two-year degree to policemen. Last year 274 police students were enrolled in the course. About 175 of those students are already practicing law enforcement officials. More are expected this year.

"Most policemen are getting two-year degrees now," said Larry King, director of social sciences at the college. "And more universities are beginning to offer four-year police programs now," he added.

"A heavy stress on humanities (courses) gives the police officer a broader horizon," said King. "They also learn (at the college) that the job of a policeman isn't only to give out tickets."

POLICE EDUCATION is becoming more popular because there is more money available for their education, King added. Recently, the federal Omnibus Crime Bill was passed to attempt to upgrade police departments. The bill provides loans for tuition to police students, finances consultants at the colleges and pays for instructional equipment at the schools.

Another reason policemen are obtaining higher education, King said, is because there is too much criticism of police officers. More education would tend to lessen this criticism, he said. Also, the increased crime rate shows a need for upgrading.

King said a statement by the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice in 1967 explained the need for a college education. It reads:

"SWORN PERSONNEL, who, in various unpredictable situations, are required to make difficult judgments, should possess a sound knowledge of society and human behavior. This can best be attained through advanced education."

"And this area is lucky," said King, because Harper College is offering a diversity of courses in police science, including humanities. The college also has a Law Enforcement Advisory Committee, consisting of local chiefs.

King added that one day a degree will be required for every policeman in this area. "People are more affluent here," he said. "They demand more professional and better police services."

Think Your Lawn, s So Big?

by DAVE PALERMO
When you see how efficiently he takes care of an 18-hole golf course, you begin to wonder what Ken Goodman could do with that ragged front lawn of yours.

Goodman, the greenskeeper for the Mount Prospect Country Club course, has spent the last 17 years tending golf courses and if he has his way he'll spend at least the next 17 doing the same thing.

"I like the profession. I can't see doing anything else," said Goodman, a resident of Wheeling. "My father worked on a golf course and I used to caddy. Almost every youngster caddied back then because they didn't have many carts like they do now.

"That's usually the way you get into this line of work. You caddy for a few years. They usually won't let you work on a course until you're 16 or 17 years old."

Goodman arrived at the Mount Prospect Country Club two years ago after tending courses at Indian Hill, River Woods (now Ravinia Green), Diamond Lake and Twin Orchards (now Long Grove).

A graduate of Arlington High School, Goodman's experience is necessary in a field which has become a science as well as a profession in the past 10 years.

Fairways at the country club must be carefully fertilized and trimmed to a length of about 1 1/2 inches. Aprons surrounding the greens must be cut to a length no higher than 1/2 inch and the greens must be kept at 3/16 of an inch.

"The daily work consists of cutting the greens, changing the tee markers and putting in the flags. Then we go into the specialized aspects such as rotoring and rebuilding greens.

"Probably the biggest thing on the course is the greens. We use a hybrid grass on our greens now called Poanu. It's actually a wild blue grass.

"The grass on the greens tend to develop fungus if not kept properly. A fungicide such as Phenyl Mercury has to be used but with all the talk about the dangers of insecticides we might have to use something else in the near future. DDT is banned in Illinois."

GOODMAN'S JOB is a year-long one.

In the winter he spends his time "going through all the machinery" needed to keep a course in good shape.

A member of the Midwest Golf Course Superintendents Association as well as its national counterpart, he spends three days at Purdue University every spring for a national convention in which newly-developed means of caring for a golf course are discussed.

Vandalism has often been a thorn in the side of greenskeepers, but Goodman tends to think that the problem has subsided in the past few months.

"At first there was quite a problem when I first came here, but it isn't as bad now," he said. "Now the thing is to take the flags."

As far as the behavior of golfers at the course, Goodman feels the great majority of them are well behaved and show respect for the course.

"THEY'RE PRETTY WELL behaved, but they don't rake the sand traps enough," he said.

Greenskeeping has become profitable as it has become a science. Goodman estimates that in the Midwest a greenskeeper can make from $9,500 to $22,000 a year.

But Goodman isn't in it entirely for the money. He's been doing it too long.

KEEPING THE FAIRWAYS in shape at the Mount Prospect Country Club is a year-round job for Ken Goodman, greens keeper at the course. Goodman, a graduate of Arlington High School, has spent the last 17 years taking care of golf courses in the Northwest suburban area.

Drug Abuse Answers Sought

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

No Drug Problem

There is no drug problem in the northwest suburbs.

There are problems, each of which must be dealt with in an individualized manner, and cannot be collectively labeled or treated.

This was only one of the misconceptions cleared up at a drug abuse meeting at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night.

State, county and local officials, over 100 of them, listened as several guests and speakers gave their opinions as to the extent of drug abuse in this area and the many public misconceptions about it.

Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee (PTAC) offered some statistics to bring the scope of local drug abuse into focus.

For example, in 1966 the Palatine police handled 6 drug cases. Two years later this figure jumped up to 19, "and these are only the ones on record," he said.

ANOTHER SOURCE OF Thomas' information came from Northwest Community Hospital administrators who said the number of drug overdose cases and/or attempted suicides via overdose was 11 in January of this year, 14 in February and 10 in March.

"This is up to one every other day now," Thomas said.

When these figures are broken down into age and sex brackets, the results are interesting.

Of these cases, 4 can be attributed to females between 12 and 20, 9 to women between 21 and 39, 15 to females between 40 and 64, and 1 to a woman over 65 years of age.

And for males, 3 cases dealt with those between 12 and 40, 2 with the 21 to 39 bracket, 1 for those between 40 and 65 and none for men over 65 years of age.

Although the fact that the women between 40 and 64 years of age had the most cases spoke for itself, Thomas reiterated, "Kids are not the only ones using drugs."

FOR EXAMPLE, Thomas said his youth committee staff recently worked with a 14-year-old girl on LSD. Her mother was on tranquilizers every four hours and her father was frequently "sacked" from martinis by supper time, he said.

This is not to say that drug abuse among teens is not prevalent. Of the 200 "crisis" cases the PTAC dealt with in the last year, Thomas said about 75 per cent of them had drug problems in relation to their other "hangups."

Doctors, Residents Seek Drug Answers

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

- What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?
- How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?
- How can the service from each group be coordinated?
- How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

THOMAS SAID community organizations could and should help in the overall effort to handle drug problems by disseminating and sharing more accurate information.

And Dr. Morris, who heads the communications group, said the question of how to get believable information out to the public was a major problem media are now faced with.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benzaquin Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

And none for men over 60 years of age. Although the fact that the women between 40 and 64 years of age had the most cases spoke for itself, Thomas reiterated, "Kids are not the only ones using drugs."

FOR EXAMPLE, Thomas said his youth committee staff recently worked with a 14-year-old girl on LSD. Her mother was on tranquilizers every four hours and her father was frequently "sacked" from martinis by supper time, he said.

This is not to say that drug abuse among teens is not prevalent. Of the 200 "crisis" cases the PTYC dealt with in the last year, Thomas said about 75 per cent of them had drug problems in relation to their other "hangups."

Ziarkowski Case Continued

The trial of Arthur Ziarkowski, the owner of the Palatine Book Store who is charged with keeping a gambling place, was continued until Sept. 29 at the Skokie branch of Circuit Court.

Ziarkowski's attorney did not show up for the trial. No reason was given for his absence.

Ziarkowski was arrested by Palatine police in his book store Oct. 8 after he allegedly accepted horse racing bets from two Palatine residents. The case has been continued at least five other times.

At the time of his arrest, police alleged Ziarkowski was taking in between $45,000 to $75,000 yearly. They estimated that between $150 and $250 in bets were taken in each day for five and maybe six days a week.

Clean-up Crew Gets Thanks

The Salt Creek clean-up crew received high words of praise yesterday from its leader, Mrs. Clayton W. Brown.

Mrs. Brown said the young people have finished cleaning about a mile of the west branch of the creek and any other work on the creek will be done on the weekends if enough people volunteer.

"It takes a special kind of person to really get down and do the kind of job they were doing," said Mrs. Brown.

Palatine Girls Sail On Coast

Four Palatine girls are among nine girls heading out to sea aboard The Brilliant, a yacht that travels the New England Coast.

The girls are taking part in The Mystic Mariners program which is designed to perpetuate the American Maritime Tradition.

The trip aboard The Brilliant will run from Sunday to next Saturday.

Those taking part include Diane Rankins, 26 S. Parallel, Barbara Richardson, 1830 Thornhill, Deni Sargol, 1770 Lee Ct., and Mary Lou Sobczynski of 249 E. Chicago.

The Brilliant program is an advanced practical sailing experience aboard a large cruising vessel where the efficiency of the vessel is directly dependent on the crew.

The voyage is part of the Mariner Girl Scouts program.

Mrs. Clare Sargol of 1770 Lee Ct., who is co-ordinating the trip, said that the girls qualified for The Brilliant trip by first sailing on the Joseph Conrad, a square rig schooner.

Sprinkling Ban To Continue

The ban on lawn sprinkling from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. will continue through the rest of the summer, Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun said yesterday.

Braun said there was a large water pressure drop Wednesday night between 7 and 8 p.m. because of heavy demand. Such pressure drops are expected to be eliminated because of the ban.

Once the creek starts to fill, she said, the job will become more difficult because it is almost impossible to see the junk stuck in the bottom.

Among the items the group found in the creek included bikes, toilet seats, wheels, tires, pipes and water meters. "You name it, we found it," Mrs. Brown said.

MRS. BROWN said the group removed a lot of the debris that was clogging up the underpasses.

The following people helped in the cleanup: Diane Schergen, Cornelia, Claudia and Caroline Mueller, Janet Figg, Sue Bloodgood, Diane Rankins, Karen Pipenberg, Gene Sheldon, Linda Winkler, Tim Hultin, Vince Hall, John Engleking, Mark and Joe Anderson, Jim Strobbe, Eric and Adam Brown, Pat Hall, Mike Smith, Mark Kirp and Jeff Butler.

Among the adult advisors were Mrs. Ray Wagner, Mrs. Walter Molo, and Mrs. H. C. Hill.

Mrs. Brown said the group found frogs, fish, snails and crayfish in the creek indicating it is not dead "and should not be treated like a dead creek."

Rotary Prepares Fall Plans

This is a continuing series concerning community organizations of Palatine and their goals for the 1970-71 season.

Highlighting the Palatine Rotary's fall activities will be Pitta Kalavocka, a foreign exchange student from Greece.

As one of their fall projects, the Rotary is sponsoring Miss Kalavocka's stay in Palatine. She will attend Palatine High School where she will begin her junior year.

The Rotarians will also carry over two other activities from last year into the fall. They will continue to sell fire extinguishers at $8 apiece for the General Fire Extinguisher Co., in order to raise funds.

Part of these funds will go for Sing-Out Palatine. The Rotary bought an equipment van last year for the group.

Other projects, such as doing interior painting for Countryside Center for the Handicapped's new addition, are still in the making, John Wilson, president of the club, said.

OTHER NEW OFFICERS joining Wilson this year are Joe Pegoraro, vice president; John Duer, secretary; and Dell Johnston, treasurer.

The 1970-71 Rotary board of directors consists of Roger Ahlgrim, Norman Falkanger, Leonard Newendorp and Lou Werd. These eight men are among the 39 members of the Rotary which meets at noon every Monday at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Quentin Road and Northwest Highway.

For those interested in the club, Wilson said "it is an international organization with its prime function being to serve the community."

He also said Rotary attempts to foster good business practices among members and associates and that the only people eligible to join Rotary are those who work or own businesses in Palatine.

Another requirement for membership is an annual fee of $140 which is collected quarterly, Wilson said.

Livery stables did a thriving business in Palatine from 1885 until the advent of automobiles. Buggies were rented to traveling salesmen at $3 a day.

One such livery was owned by Henry Knigge and another by Ira W. Frye whose stable was located at Wood and Brockway until he erected a livery stable at 55 N. Bothwell.

A horse stable stood on the present site of the Masonic Hall, where farmers left their horses as they visited the Meyer tavern across the street.

The first automobile in Palatine was a Stanley Steamer owned by J. A. Burlingame, who employed a chauffeur to drive the car.

Speak Out What Will No Dress Code Mean?

This is the first full year high school students in Palatine Township will return to schools without any official dress code policy.

And for this week's column we thought it would be interesting to ask residents for their opinions of the new fashions and longer hair styles, which probably will be enhanced by the absence of any formal code.

Mrs. John Power, 300 Forest Lane, Palatine, said: "It's putting the responsibility back where it belongs: on the parents. It may be more difficult for parents now, but maybe we've been derelict in our responsibility by passing this responsibility on to the schools."

Mrs. Joseph Gagliano, 3801 Kingfisher Lane, Rolling Meadows, didn't quite agree.

With mixed feelings she said, "children should dress comfortably, but neat and clean, and not with real long hair. There should be a dress code to this extent."

Mrs. Frank Malecha, 146 S. Fremont, Palatine, was decidedly conservative in viewing the question.

"I don't approve of them looking like a bunch of hippies," she said. "I think parents should be responsible to send their kids off to school looking just so — dress code or no dress code. That's the way it was in my day."

Although Mrs. Malecha wouldn't give her age, she did say she had grandchildren in college now "and they look just so."

Mrs. Eugene Nyland, 2501 Fuller St., Rolling Meadows, seemed a little more concerned about the absence of a dress code.

Without the code, other children influence your own, she said. And this makes it very hard to control your own children.

Another Rolling Meadows resident, Mrs. Charles Helmboldt, 2215 Fuller St., said the long hair didn't bother her, but some of the clothing teens were wearing today does.

"I can go along with the long hair trend, but it bothers me to see a girl bend over in a miniskirt," said Mrs. Helmboldt, who has both of her children safely suited in the uniforms of St. Collette's school.

And for Mrs. Edmund Olsen, 106 E. Wilmette, Palatine, no dress code had a little different meaning.

"It's the unconcernedness that bothers me more than the fashions, even though I think teens from this area could dress a little better than they do."

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Weigh Strike

by JUDY MEHL

With the first day of classes in School Dist. 59 11 days away, teachers in the district remain uncommitted on the issue of a strike.

The deadline for that decision seems to be Sep. 1.

On that day approximately 370 teachers are expected to vote on the ratification of their salary and comprehensive payment program contract. Members of the Teachers' Council negotiation team have recommended that the teachers reject the contract, claiming that details have not been completed to their satisfaction on the comprehensive payment program items.

If teachers' contracts are not ratified by the opening day of school the road is still legally open to them to return to the classrooms.

ACCORDING TO Ted Sanders, Illinois Education Association field representative, "Teachers can usually make arrangements to teach on last year's salary schedule, moving up one step, and when contracts are resolved, pay would be retroactive to the beginning of the school year."

He said here was nothing to stop the teachers from returning to the classrooms if the administration and teachers were willing.

In the opinion of board member Judith Zanca, this is probably what the board would encourage.

She added that many of the teachers have signed contracts already, with the provision that when a new contract is ratified it will go into effect for them also. She said many of these teachers were men who needed draft deferments.

Dave Robert, chairman of the Teachers' Council salary negotiation team, is one of these, according to Mrs. Zanca.

MRS. ZANCA SAID parents have called her and other board members asking if school will be open.

"We've been answering on the idea that the buildings will be open and fully staffed," she said.

The teachers, picketing Wednesday in front of the administration building protesting the board of education's refusal to negotiate class size, made no threats of striking.

Ruth Weisbaum, a teacher at Brentwood School, Des Plaines, said, "I hope we don't have to strike, that's all I hope. Nobody benefits and the kids suffer."

She added, "This is my eighth year in Dist. 59 and every year it gets worse."

ALTHOUGH SHE AND some 60 to 100 other teachers picketed to bring the problem of class size to the attention of parents and the board of education, there has been no comment or reaction from the board on the issue.

"The majority of the board is out of town," Mrs. Zanca said. "There is no official reaction. All I have to say is that it is unfortunate."

Reaction from the Teachers' Council to the topic of striking has been reserved.

"We have examined all various aspects of the situation for the teachers both legally and in regard to our responsibilities," Robert said, explaining that this included discussion of striking.

"The teachers at the meeting Sept. 1 will decide what steps will be taken," he said.

Dave Larsen, teacher at Dempster Junior High, gave the opinion of several teachers picketing Wednesday, however, when he said, "I would seek professional sanction. I would not strike."

Dist. 214 Teachers To Vote On Pay

The 800-plus school teachers in High School Dist. 214 will vote today to accept or reject a salary pact worked out by a team of teachers and board members for the 1970-71 year.

The package, which assures a beginning teacher with no experience and a B.A. a salary of $8,000, is one of the highest salary packages in the area.

Voting on the package will take place this afternoon during the district's Institute Day. Classes in Dist. 214 are scheduled to begin on Monday.

John Harth, president of the association, and members of the Dist. 214 administration are pleased with the success of negotiations, which were concluded in June. Approval of the salary package is expected by those close to the association.

THE SCALE, only part of the complete package, provides salaries from $8,000 to $17,235 for a teacher with a master's degree plus 30 hours of graduate work on step 16 of the scale. That's close to the level of the lowest paid district administrators.

A teacher with a master's degree starting in the district — and more and more Dist. 214 teachers have master's degrees — will earn $8,800 under the new scale.

The package also includes, as it has in the past, increments for extra-curricular and instructional related assignments. Teachers this year will be able to earn between $175 and $1200 for extra-curricular work, depending on the load and previous experience.

A variety of increments are available for extra-administrative and instructional related assignments. For example, an audio-visual building director can earn $785 extra per year and special salaries are available for persons working in special capacities during the summer.

Mexicans Arrested On Nursery Land

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago.

"We permitted them to post $500 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said. But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

Boys Complete Baseball Training

Several Palatine boys recently completed two weeks of baseball training at the Mickey Owen Baseball School, the largest boys' baseball training school in the world.

They are Keith Koerner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Koerner; Allen Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ar Nelson; Chris Barr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barr; Richard Hoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoff; and Scott and Mark Malauf, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Malauf.

The Owen School is located in Miller, Mo. and has two objectives. One is to help boys with little or no experience become good enough ball players to qualify for little league teams. The second goal is to familiarize more experienced boys with major league plays.

Area Woman Attends Grand Army Confab

Mrs. W. C. Titcomb, 1830 W. Algonquin, Palatine, will attend the 88th national convention of the Grand Army of the Republic in Cincinnati, Ohio from Aug. 29-Sept. 3.

Mrs. Titcomb, a member of the Woman's Relief Corps of GAR, has attended either a state or national convention, oftentimes both, since she was one-year-old.

The third time national aide is 76 years old.

MAKE YOUR REAL ESTATE BROKER EARN HIS MONEY

It's easy to do; you'll be pleased with the results; and he'll be thankful to have you as a client.

To get the best results from a real estate professional, give him (or her) a chance to work for you exclusively until you have made a satisfactory transaction or decided to get another Real Estate Broker.

Buyers occasionally negotiate with more than one Realtor at the same time in the mistaken belief they will see a better variety of properties or stand a chance of making a more advantageous transaction.

A Real Estate Broker cannot do his best work under these conditions, knowing his efforts may be useless if his client should conclude a transaction with another broker in the meantime.

Only a small percentage of properties for sale are advertised at any one time. A Real Estate Broker therefore needs sufficient time to study his listing files or Multiple Listing records while he seeks out the best answer to his buyer's needs.

Pick a competent Real Estate Broker and give him your confidence. You'll both benefit.

Algonquin Toll Ramp To Be Shut

Closing of the Northbound ramp off Rte. 53 onto Algonquin Road is the first phase of a state highway department project that will tie the I-90, now being built south of Rte. 53, to the Northwest Tollway.

The ramp is expected to remain closed for three or four weeks, said Tom Lee, state highway department engineer on the project.

Eventually, the exit ramp will be part of a 12-lane interchange from Algonquin Road to the Tollway. The ramp is being realigned to connect with the outside lanes, which will be local lanes.

After the realignment, the Rte. 53 overpass at the Tollway will be partially closed so the overpass can be widened. "We will maintain at least one lane each direction, and possibly two, during the reconstruction of the overpass," Lee said. The ramp to the tollway from Rte. 53 will not be closed.

THE PRESENT Rte. 53 and Northwest Tollway interchanges where I-90 will join the Northwest Tollway. North of the tollway the road will be called Rte. 53, south of the Tollway it will be I-90.

The widening of the tollway overpass is expected to be completed in the fall of 1971. The entire I-90 project will not be completed until the fall of 1972.

"We hope to have the whole project

Construction Causes Traffic Re-routing

Traffic northbound on Route 53 which cannot get off at Algonquin Road is being directed to Kirchoff Road to get onto West and East Frontage Roads.

"We have been watching the traffic, but it has been moving well alone," Rolling Meadows Police Lt. Ralph Evans said.

Traffic is heavier, Evans said, because of the detour, but the police department has not felt it was necessary to send a patrolman out to direct traffic.

The exit ramp at Algonquin Road will be closed for three or four weeks.

done by the time Woodfield Mall opens up," Lee said.

Barricades on Rte. 53 now block off the center lanes which will become the through lanes to the tollway interchange. No construction will take place on the Rte. 53 overpass at Algonquin Road once the ramp is realigned. South of Algonquin Road there will be six through lanes and six local lanes to handle traffic.

WHILE THE tollway interchange is being built as part of the I-90 project, the state highway department also has a project for the widening of Algonquin Road from Dempster Street west to Roselle Road.

"The Algonquin Road project east of I-90 (presently Rte. 53 overpass at Algonquin Road) is scheduled to be completed in the fall of 1972," Lee said. "In October, the bids for widening Algonquin Road west to Roselle Road will probably be awarded. I don't know when Algonquin Road west of Roselle will be widened."

Rte. 53, which will continue north from the I-90 and tollway interchange, now ends just north of Dundee Road. According to Lee, who was also the engineer on the Rte. 53 project, the highway will be extended north by the Elgin district of the state highway department.

"I know there are some engineering plans, but I do not know when they plan to construct Rte. 53 north of Dundee Road," Lee said.

School Bells Ring For Area Children

That low rumble you will hear early Monday morning will not be an earthquake rocking the Northwest suburbs, nor will it be Chicago's John Hancock Center teetering on its foundation.

Rather, it will be the sounds of 16,345 students pouring back into the six Dist. 214 high schools, which serve two townships and eight towns in the Northwest suburbs.

Those students are the sons and daughters of residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows. A seventh school is scheduled for completion next fall.

THERE WILL BE more than 1,300 new students in the district this year, and all of the high schools have projected increased enrollment.

Enrollment at Arlington is projected up from 2,331 to 2,406; Forest View from 2,511 to 2,550; Hersey from 2,572 to 2,550; Elk Grove from 2,604 to 2,900; Prospect from 2,469 to 2,515; and Wheeling from 2,442 to 2,525.

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, reported that official enrollment figures are taken on the sixth day of classes, which is the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Today will be the final preparation day for students and teachers in the district. Teachers are holding their annual institute day until 3:30 p.m. today. Supt. Edward Gilbert will be a featured speaker, and County Supt. of Schools Robert Hanrahan will speak briefly.

Youth Week Is Observed

Rolling Meadows Teen Government is celebrating Youth Week with special teen-oriented activities and elections this week.

In recognition of their efforts, Mayor Roland J. Meyer proclaimed Aug. 23 to 29 as Youth Week in Rolling Meadows at the city council meeting last week.

"The youth of this nation and of the City of Rolling Meadows constitute our future promises, hopes and aspirations and represent our greatest resource," the statement read.

Because young people vitally need assurance that the future of their country is bright, Meyer urged all citizens to take note of the special events going on this week to celebrate Youth Week.

WITH TRUCKS LIGHTS flashing and horns honking, the Youth Week parade of the Rolling Meadows Teen Government wound its way through the city Wednesday night. Teen candidates decorated their cars for the occasion. Residents stand on the sidelines watching the caravan of teens, city officials and the Rolling Meadows Band.

Teen Car Caravan Enlivens City

Almost 30 teens and city officials plus members of the Rolling Meadows Band weaved their way through the streets of the city Wednesday night in a caravan of cars in the Youth Week parade sponsored by the Teen Government.

Police Chief Lewis Case led the way in a police squad car as the parade left the Carl Sandburg School at 7 p.m. for more than half an hour the band played and the cars rolled up one street and down another until the parade reached its conclusion at the shopping center parking lot.

The bandwagon carrying its load of musicians followed the lead car. Next came Mayor Roland Meyer, followed by City Manager James Watson, Park Board President William Billings, Miss Rolling Meadows Cindy Williams and her court, and more than a dozen candidates for the Teen Government, all traveling in separate cars.

The candidates decorated their cars with signs and crepe paper and hung old cans and countless other objects that produced noise from the backs of the vehicles. Spectators lined the streets with lawn chairs to watch as the caravan traveled past their homes.

The city's teens will vote in the election of the Teen Government, a mock city government, during a spash party tonight at the Rolling Meadows pool.

What Will No Dress Code Mean?

This is the first full year high school students in Palatine Township will return to schools without any official dress code policy.

And for this week's column we thought it would be interesting to ask residents for their opinions of the new fashions and longer hair styles, which probably will be enhanced by the absence of any formal code.

Mrs. John Power, 300 Forest Lane, Palatine, said: "It's putting the responsibility back where it belongs: on the parents. It may be more difficult for parents now, but maybe we've been derelict in our responsibility by passing this responsibility on to the schools."

Mrs. Joseph Gagliano, 3601 Kingfisher Lane, Rolling Meadows, didn't quite agree.

With mixed feelings she said, "children should dress comfortably, but neat and clean, and not with real long hair. There should be a dress code to this extent."

Mrs. Frank Malecha, 146 S. Fremont, Palatine, was decidedly conservative in viewing the question.

"I don't approve of them looking like a bunch of hippies," she said. "I think parents should be responsible to send their kids off to school looking just so — dress code or no dress code. That's the way it was in my day."

Although Mrs. Malecha wouldn't give her age, she did say she had grandchildren in college now "and they look just so."

Mrs. Eugene Nylaw, 2501 Fulle St., Rolling Meadows, seemed a little more concerned about the absence of a dress code.

Without the code, other children influence your own, she said. And this makes it very hard to control your own children.

Another Rolling Meadows resident, Mrs. Charles Helmboldt, 2215 Fulle St., said the long hair didn't bother her, but some of the clothing teens were wearing today does.

"I can go along with the long hair trend, but it bothers me to see a girl bend over in a miniskirt," said Mrs. Helmboldt, who has both of her children safely suited in the uniforms of St. Collette's school.

And for Mrs. Edmund Olsen, 160 E. Wilmette, Palatine, no dress code had a little different meaning.

"It's the uncleanness that bothers me more than the fashions, even though I think teens from this area could dress a little better than they do."

Asked what she meant, she said, "look at some of these clothes. Why did they have to get rid of the dress code in the first place? I just wonder what they'd do if someone came to school naked."

Suburban Drug Abuse Talk Held By Area Residents

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

THOMAS SAID community organizations could and should help in the overall effort to handle drug problems by disseminating and sharing more accurate information.

And Dr. Morris, who heads the communications group, said the question of how to get believable information out to the public was a major problem media are now faced with.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benzaquin Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

Garage Work Start Near

Construction of the addition for the city garage on Central Road should begin soon, now that the city council has accepted the $194,582 bid of Aspen Enterprises Inc., of Morton Grove.

Once city officials sign the contract for the addition Monday, construction will begin as soon as possible. Construction is scheduled to be completed in about six months.

Aspen was the lowest of six companies which submitted bids for the garage project. All bids were higher than the city council and architects for the project anticipated. Tuesday night, after three weeks of negotiating to get the bids reduced, the council accepted the Aspen bid.

Present offices of the public works department will be moved to the west side and garage doors will be installed to face on Central Road. A second floor addition will change the brick structure from a slant-roofed one-story to a full two-story building.

WITH THE OFFICES on the side, traffic flow of the department's equipment will be from front to back instead of through side doors.

The bid accepted Tuesday night will include two of four alternates. A sprinkler system will be installed in the city garage and the second floor above the offices will be finished off.

The two alternates rejected are remodeling of the pistol range and outside landscaping and blacktopping.

Eventually, a retaining wall will be built on the west side of the city garage property to allow the park district to enter parklands directly behind the city garage. Earlier this year the park district offices were moved out of the city garage to an office behind the Rolling Meadows Post Office. The park district will continue to store its equipment in the city garage.

St. Thomas School Will Open

School will begin on schedule Monday at St. Thomas of Villanova and the doors will remain open for the entire year.

According to Sister Patricia Ann Bauch, principal of St. Thomas School, the school board will continue to add staff, equipment and "all that is necessary to keep quality education a top priority." Although money is tight, Sister Patricia Ann said the school board has made no plans to close this year or in future years.

Because of a recent report that St. Thomas and St. Colette schools would be forced to stop operations at the second semester in January, Sister Patricia Ann said several parents had withdrawn their children from the school and registered them in Elementary School Dist. 15. She said the school was also swamped with calls from alarmed parents.

CONCERN OVER the possible closing of parochial schools in the area became strong when the Dist. 15 Board of Education received a letter this month from Frank X. Caffrey, chairman of a board representing St. Thomas, St. Colette and St. Theresa. The letter warned Dist. 15 that St. Thomas and St. Colette may close "around the end of the calendar year."

The letter suggested that representatives of Dist. 15 and the parochial schools meet to discuss "possible means of obtaining assistance for the three schools, within the framework of existing law and court decisions."

If the parochial schools should close, Dist. 15 would be required to include all the children within its area from the schools into its program.

According to Sister Patricia Ann, 430 students are enrolled at St. Thomas for the fall semester. Of these, some 25 students would attend Arlington Heights Elementary Dist. 25 schools rather than Dist. 15 schools if St. Thomas were to close.

AT A RECENT board meeting, six new staff members were approved to teach this school year at St. Thomas. The board also committed itself to implementation of a new method of instruction responsibility on the student while he is learning those values, tasks and skills.

This teaching method would place known as individual progression, which, as an individual, he would need at a particular time. Teachers would act as resource persons and counselors to the students as they progress at their own rate.

Sister Patricia Ann said St. Thomas teachers have received training in this new method during the summer at Northern Illinois University. Demonstrations of teaching machines and audio-visual equipment were part of the two-day program.

St. Thomas will also make available to students this year a newly equipped learning and resource center. New methods of social studies and science instruction will also be introduced which will apply to the individual progression method.

School will begin at St. Thomas of Villanova Monday with a 9 a.m. mass. Students will be dismissed at noon that day. Full days of instruction will begin Tuesday from 8:30 to 11:45 a.m. and from 1:30 to 2:45 p.m.

DR. RALPH MORRIS, standing, and Emerson Thomas are two of men who called Wednesday's meeting on drug abuse at Northwest Community Hospital.

Coming Attractions: Whose Right In Right of Way?

For the first time since Palatine's sign ordinance went into effect in 1968, the village has been asked to place a sign in a public right of way.

The request came from the White Way Sign Corp. of Chicago which is building the sign for the Willow Creek theater now under construction on the Northwest Highway west of Rte. 53.

The sign company is asking to put the sign on a small island just east of the Marathon Service Station in the area.

In a letter to Village Mgr. Berton G.

Braun, James G. Flannery, president of the sign company said, "It is our belief . . . that any other location would create confusion because of the distance that the sign would be from the entrance street, Creekside Drive.

"IT IS OUR sole objective to . . . identify and create a proper traffic pattern. We feel that this suggested location is essential for this purpose."

Braun said the company is asking for a variation in the zoning code. "Basically," he said, "we don't permit signs in public rights of way."

There would have to be a "substantial" reason for allowing the request, he said. If there is an appropriate place for a sign in the public right of way, there is probably an appropriate place in some adjacent private property, he said.

Braun said the village has prohibited signs on the public rights of way because of the question of "liability exposure."

That is if there is an accident in which a motorist hits a sign or claims that his visibility was decreased because of the sign, the village could be liable for damages, Braun said.

ON THE OTHER hand, he said, the theater should not be penalized for locating on the Northwest Highway.

One other question which may be raised will be how much money, if any, the village should ask for allowing a private sign to be placed on public property.

Braun said yesterday he has not studied the matter enough to make a recommendation to the village board. The board is expected to discuss the matter at its Monday meeting.

This is at least the third time that questions have been raised about signs in the Willow Creek development. When the Suburban National Bank wanted to put a sign on its roof, it was forced to build a "penthouse" on which to hang it. The owners of the Howard Johnsons Restaurant were also forced to use a smaller sign than they had planned because of the village restrictions on sign sizes.

The $200,000 theater is expected to be completed by fall and will seat about 1,000 people.

Keeping Up

This column is a wrap-up of the news of Rolling Meadows during the past week. Clip it and send it to students, servicemen and other Rolling Meadows residents who are away from home. The column will run every Friday in The Rolling Meadows Herald.

BIG NEWS of the week is the High School Dist. 214 board's decision to name the new high school being built on Central Road across from Sacred Heart of Mary, Rolling Meadows High School. About 200 residents appeared at the board meeting Aug. 24 and voiced their opinions of what to name the school before a unanimous vote was taken.

The school is scheduled to open next September. It will not have a graduating class until 1973.

CITY OFFICIALS won the annual baseball game with Teen Government, kicking off a week of teen activities for Youth Week. Teen government had a parade through town, named Cindy Williams, 3604 Brookmeade, age 14, Miss Rolling Meadows, and will hold elections for new mock city officials Friday night at a pool party. Jan Schultz, 3306 Owl Ln., age 15, and Kathy Kolker, 3102 Swallow Ln., age 14, are the runners-up in the Miss Rolling Meadows contest. Eight girls participated.

ROARIN' WEST FEST, the annual get-together in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, will be held this weekend, Aug. 27 to 29. Teen Government is running the fire department's dunking machine one night to raise money for a memorial to Rolling Meadows men killed in Vietnam which will be located in city hall. Bratwurst, hot dogs, hot tamales, corn-on-the-cob and beer, the traditional favorites at the fest, will be on sale by community groups raising money.

THE VOLLEYBALL MARATHON between teens at Meadows Baptist Church and the Arlington Evangelical Free Church is going on. The annual affair is a way for the two youth groups to raise money for the Evangelical Christian School on Chicago's South Side.

SCHOOL OPENS Aug. 31 for all elementary and high school students. Crossing guards in Rolling Meadows, the residents who help kids cross busy intersections, will have uniforms this year.

RESIDENTS in an area bounded by Rte 53, Central Road, Euclid Avenue and the Dist. 214-211 boundary line near Owl Drive are getting ready to appear before the county board of school trustees to move the high school boundary line further west. With Rolling Meadows High opening in a year, they want their kids who now attend William Fremd High School in Dist. 211 to go to the Dist. 214 school in Rolling Meadows. The hearing is Oct. 6.

Carnivals All Over Town

by MARGE FERROLI

Mini-carnivals have come to town, and they're popping up in the backyards of several Rolling Meadows and Palatine homes.

The backyard neighborhood carnivals are being organized and run by youngsters in an effort to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America. Assorted games and booths are set up in the yards where balls, pennies, sponges and bean bags are tossed, for a small fee, to win various types of prizes.

The idea of the mini-carnivals was promoted on the television kiddie show "Cartoon Town" on WFLD. Through this program area children became interested in having their own carnival and sent their names in to the Dystrophy Association.

They then received kits with supplies for beginning their carnivals. Posters, game ideas and buttons were sent to the interested kids, along with an envelope to be returned to the association with the money collected from the carnival.

Jim and Bob Kuhn 12 and 11, of 2303 School Dr., Rolling Meadows, collected about $10 from the carnival they held Thursday.

THEIR CARNIVAL began at noon and a few neighborhood children floated in during the first couple of hours to play the penny toss, and softball throw or to have their fortunes told. When attendance began to lag a little in the afternoon, the Kuhn boys and their friends got on their bicycles and drove through the neighborhood advertising their carnival by yelling about it in the streets.

The most popular game the Kuhns ran in their yard was the sponge throw. The object was to smack a volunteer standing on a box right in the head with a soggy, wet sponge. Customers got three throws for a quarter.

"Some of the kids got a little carried away with the sponge toss," Mrs. James Kuhn, the boys' mother, explained, but the most fun seemed to take place there.

The Kuhns gave away small prizes, such as embroidery sets, miniature cars, penny banks, cap sets, plastic jewelry and balls to winners of the games. Refreshment stands selling hot dogs, Kool-aid and popcorn were also set up.

"I didn't do a thing," Mrs. Kuhn said, although she admitted to supplying some of the hot dogs. "The kids handled everything themselves, and they even cleaned the yard up after the carnival, although it did take a little screaming and yelling from me before they did it."

MRS. KUHN estimated about 50 youngsters, with several adults mixed in, attended the carnival Thursday. "It was the cutest thing," she said, watching the youngsters playing all the carnival games in the yard.

The Rothschilder and Lipavsky children of Palatine also sponsored a carnival in the Lipavsky yard Saturday which attracted youngsters of all ages. They also held a penny and ring toss game and a sponge throw as well as a marble shoot and bottle drop.

The oldest organizer of the Palatine carnival, held at 1120 E. Kiston Dr., was nine-year-old Donna Lipavsky. Donna, her two sisters and Lori Rothschilder provided the games and prizes.

"The girls were awfully excited over it," Mrs. Leslie Lipavsky, said. "They're all pretty proud of themselves."

FAA Awaits Investigation

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Palwaukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Palwaukee and John McFadden of 850 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred.

"For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

"The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

Vocational Ed Director Ready For New Challenge

If creating new titles and offices in an administration is any indication of interest, then High School Dist. 211 is on its way into vocational education on an unprecedented scale.

Last week, Don Howard began his newly created job of Dist. 211 vocational education coordinator.

"The mere fact that my position was established indicates that the board, the administration and the community are more concerned about the area of vocational education," he said.

Howard comes to the administrative building with 12 years' teaching experience, six of which were spent as the over-all department chairman for industrial arts, and eight with this high school district serving Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Currently working on an advanced degree at the University of Illinois, Howard holds a master's degree in industrial education from the same university, and a bachelor's degree in industrial education from Illinois State University.

Having recently ended a brief vacation with his wife and three children at their home at 262 N. Ashland, he is now gearing up for the work that lies ahead of the district's first vocational coordinator.

His main duties are to develop and coordinate existing vocational education programs in the areas of business education, industrial education and home economics.

Howard also is responsible for coordinating current cooperative work programs in industrial cooperative education.

precedented scale.

Last week, Don Howard began his newly created job of Dist. 211 vocational education coordinator.

"The mere fact that my position was established indicates that the board, the administration and the community are more concerned about the area of vocational education," he said.

Howard comes to the administrative building with 12 years' teaching experience, six of which were spent as the over-all department chairman for industrial arts, and eight with this high school district serving Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Currently working on an advanced degree at the University of Illinois, Howard holds a master's degree in industrial education from the same university, and a bachelor's degree in industrial education from Illinois State University.

Having recently ended a brief vacation with his wife and three children at their home at 262 N. Ashland, he is now gearing up for the work that lies ahead of the district's first vocational coordinator.

His main duties are to develop and coordinate existing vocational education programs in the areas of business education, industrial education and home economics.

Howard also is responsible for coordinating current cooperative work programs in industrial cooperative education.

Pest Strip A Hazard?

Restaurants in Rolling Meadows are not allowed to use the Shell No-Fly Pest Strips for insect control.

The yellow strip, available at gas stations and food stores in the area, may be a health hazard when used around food.

"We don't allow any insecticides in food establishments in Rolling Meadows," John F. Schultz, city health officer, said. According to Schultz, the strips haven't ever been allowed in Rolling Meadows. Until recently, Palatine and Arlington Heights were permitting the strips, known as vapona strips, to be hung in restaurants.

THE VAPONA, WHICH will be banned in New York State this year, contains DDVP, the common name for Dichlorovinyl dimethyl phosphate, the trade name for the chemical substance dichlorovinyl dimethyl phosphate.

"We do not allow any chemical of that nature to be used in restaurants," Schultz said. "It is a common practice to ban the use of insecticides in food establishments."

Schultz does not conduct the inspections of the restaurants in the city, though he is the health officer. "We have a firm which comes in to do the inspections," tion, distributive education, office occupations and cooperative work training — programs which students work in an actual job situation for half a day and attend classes in a related area during the other half.

Another major aspect of his job is to oversee all vocational reimbursements, which come from the state division of vocational rehabilitation and other state agencies.

PERHAPS THE most challenging and important task facing Howard, however, is to develop and implement a long-range vocational education plan which will meet the needs of tomorrow.

This encompasses new courses, cooperative agreements with other schools for vocational programs and similar agreements with local industries.

Already, Dist. 211 is making headway into one of these areas. They are one of 10 school districts from a four-township area comprising the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) which is currently studying the feasibility of building a joint vocational education center.

Asked if the student interest is high enough to support such an endeavor, Howard referred to a poll recently taken by Stuart Anderson, director of this study for the NEC.

"The result of Anderson's poll showed that there is more interest than students enrolled in programs, and thus a need for more courses in more areas."

THIS CAN BE misleading, however, he said. "A lot of people view vocational education in too narrow a way."

That is, the way a student uses course content determines the extent to which a course is vocational, not the actual content itself.

"To some students, English could be vocational. It depends on what he or she plans to do with it. Vocational education doesn't mean all machine shop courses, you see," he said.

Thus, programs which will be developed in the future by Dist. 211 alone or in conjunction with the NEC will use as their foundations two of Howard's premises:

Two things determine vocational education: "How students will use the course, and the extent to which the relationship between the course content and the student's utilization of the course are shown by the instructor," Howard said.

Teachers Ratify Salary Plan

by KAREN RUGEN

After three months of negotiations with the school board, School Dist. 26 teachers have ratified a salary schedule that increases their pay.

Yesterday afternoon about 130 teachers voted unanimously to accept a salary proposal drawn up by teacher and board negotiation teams. The school board must approve the schedule at a meeting next Tuesday night before it is formally adopted.

The new schedule includes increases in pay raises for each salary level. A teacher is placed on a salary step according to the number of years of teaching experience and college training he has had.

Under the proposed schedule a teacher with no experience and a bachelor's degree would receive $7,500 for the school year as compared to the present $7,000. The teacher with a bachelor's degree could rise up to step 12 and receive $11,825, an increase of $1,425. A teacher with a master's degree could start at $8,350 working up to step 16 and a salary of $14,200. Now he gets $7,600 and can rise up to $12,150.

THE PROPOSED schedule also provides for a $375 increase for each salary increase after the third step. Louis Bissa, past president of the River Trails Education Assn. (RTEA), said that previously there was no set increase and it would depend upon the decision of the school board for each teacher.

"This is what we really dickered for because some of the older teachers thought they weren't getting as much as the younger ones," he said.

The proposed schedule also includes increases to teacher benefits from health and accident insurance. The number of sick days a teacher can accumulate is also increased to 150 from 120.

RTEA is recognized as an official bargaining agent in the proposal. This is only a formal repetition of a previous agreement between the board and association in May when a procedural agreement was signed allowing the teachers' group to negotiate with the board.

BISSA SAID THE teachers are satisfied with the agreement. "We gave and they gave. We're happy and I think the board will be happy."

He said he thinks the board's approval will be just a formality.

"My personal opinion is that the board will very likely ratify it," said the district Supt. Winston Harwood. "But I long since learned you can never tell."

He said that all contracts that have been signed with teachers including a notification that salary would be contingent upon approval of a schedule.

Arrest Mexicans For Illegal Entry

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

German said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $500 bond and he released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

German termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

Giant Flower Sprouts Here

by KAREN RUGEN

There's flower power in Prospect Heights. It's an 11-foot tall sunflower in Fred Hedemark's backyard at 9 Hillside Ave. As to why he grew it, Hedemark said, "I wanted to see if I could do anything with sunflowers."

He can. There are four sunflowers standing at least 10 feet tall in his backyard to prove it. Hedemark doesn't really have a green thumb—just a lot of patience.

"I enjoyed taking care of them. You have to water, fertilize and keep the soil loose," he explained.

He said sunflowers come in both small and large sizes depending on the type of seed. The seed he planted last spring was for the large sunflower which he said would ordinarily grow about seven feet. He said he was surprised when one seed turned into an 11-foot flower.

The flowers started growing about three weeks after planting, and now have reached their full height. Some of them have started slowing down, and the heads are beginning to droop. Hedemark said the heads get big and then the flowers begin to bend as birds start to eat the seeds. When the head bends, the stalk also starts to bend under its pressure.

"They'll probably die in about two weeks. Really I am no authority, just lucky," said the amateur gardener. "I picked sunflowers because they are sort of spectacular. I remember when I was a kid in Chicago. Then they were quite the vogue."

"I am a real nature lover," he said. Hedemark has feeding stations for ducks, squirrels and raccoons right in front of his house. "They are my big family and I don't have to worry about being retired."

His house is on a hill behind the Wetland Slough and provides what he calls "a natural wildlife sanctuary including three families of ducks."

Hedemark said he has always had flower gardens and that sunflowers will be part of his blooming collection next summer. His wife has her own botanical garden and he splits his time between his flowers and a few tomato and carrot plants.

"I retired in January and feel like a kid out of school going barefoot all summer. Now I don't have to hurry with my plants."

3 New Programs At St. Alphonsus

St. Alphonsus School, in Prospect Heights will open Monday with three new programs.

Changes have been made in the science, social studies and reading programs for approximately 580 students enrolled in kindergarten through the eighth grade. St. Alphonsus, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., serves students from Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and Wheeling.

Longer labs for first through fourth grades are part of changes in the science curriculum. Science programs for fifth through eighth graders are now considered more comprehensive than in previous years.

Social studies will be taught to first, second and third graders by book as well as by records and filmstrips. Fourth through sixth graders will receive a combined history and geography course.

The first through third graders will have a new reading program that is more comprehensive than last year.

Enrollment at St. Alphonsus has decreased and tuition has gone up. Last year the school had 620 students as compared to 588 this year. Tuition is now $150 for the first child and $200 for two or more. Last year parents had to pay $100 for one child and $150 for more than one child.

The school secretary said tuition was raised "to help keep our financial heads above water." She said the raises follow suggestions of the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese. She said the school is having no money problems "that we are aware of now."

She said School Dist. 21 has helped St. Alphonsus by loaning library books. The district also has a resource center and audio-visual aid that can be used by the Catholic school.

Dist. 21 and School Dist. 26 help provide bus transportation. They transport children living over a mile and half from the school free. Other students must pay a fee.

St. Alphonsus has no hot lunch program but is part of the government subsidized milk program. Once a month the St. Alphonsus Women's Guild brings in a hamburger lunch for the students.

Group Petitions For Zone Change

A small office building to be owned by the North Area Youth for Christ organization has been proposed for a site in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

The organization wants to place the structure on the north side of Foundry Road about 255 feet west of Newberry Lane.

Clayton Baumann, a Youth for Christ spokesman, said yesterday, "The proposed building will be the size of a house. It will be 30 feet by 50 feet, and two stories high. There will be no meeting hall there."

THE COOK COUNTY Zoning Board of Appeals will hear a petition for the necessary rezoning for the site at a hearing at 3 p.m. Monday in the Arlington Heights Village Hall.

Also to be heard at that time is a petition to change zoning on a quarter acre of land in unincorporated Wheeling Township for a proposed nursery school. The land, currently zoned for single family residences, is located on the north side of Brookfield Avenue, about 100 feet west of Lee Street.

Street Dance For TAP Tonight

A street dance at the corner of Lee and Old Willow roads in Prospect Heights will start at 8 p.m. tonight.

Tickets, on sale at the dance, are $1 and children are welcome. The dance is being sponsored by Taxes and Promises (TAP), an organization formed to fight construction of a one-million gallon water tank at the dance site by the Citizen's Utility Co. (CU).

Proceeds will be used by TAP to finance litigation against CU. A 6-piece band will play until midnight and refreshments will be sold.

Vandals Pour Sugar In Auto Gas Tank

Vandals played a sweet trick on Neil Ackeret of Mount Prospect Wednesday.

Ackeret, of 1005 Cottonwood, told police vandals poured sugar in the gas tank of his auto while it was parked in the lot behind his apartment. Ackeret owns a 1963 station wagon. How sweet it is.

School Bells Ring For Area Children

That low rumble you will hear early Monday morning will not be an earthquake rocking the Northwest suburbs, nor will it be Chicago's John Hancock Center teetering on its foundation.

Rather, it will be the sounds of 16,345 students pouring back into the six Dist. 214 high schools, which serve two townships and eight towns in the Northwest suburbs.

Those students are the sons and daughters of residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows. A seventh school is scheduled for completion next fall.

THERE WILL BE more than 1,300 new students in the district this year, and all of the high schools have projected increased enrollment.

Enrollment at Arlington is projected up from 2,331 to 2,406; Forest View from 2,511 to 2,850; Hersey from 2,572 to 2,850; Elk Grove from 2,904 to 2,980; Prospect from 2,460 to 2,515; and Wheeling from 2,442 to 2,825.

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, reported that official enrollment figures are taken on the sixth day of classes, which is the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Today will be the final preparation day for students and teachers in the district. Teachers are holding their annual institute day until 3:30 p.m. today. Supt. Edward Gilbert will be a featured speaker, and County Supt. of Schools Robert Hanrahan will speak briefly.

THE DISTRICT'S Education Association will vote today on the 1970-71 salary package. No public opposition to the package has appeared.

Students will have their last days of freedom over the weekend, and then it's back to school for another nine months.

Enrollment in Cook County public schools is expected to reach an all-time high of 464,470 students, according to figures from Hanrahan's office, representing an increase of 24,192 over the 1969-70 school year.

HOUSE AT 701 E. Higgins Rd. has been without water since the well broke down in June. Bottled water has been obtained from a friend.

Woman, 2 Children Facing Eviction

Mrs. Janet Hall, 41, and her two children are in need of help and time is running out.

The family is to be evicted Monday from their house at 701 E. Higgins Rd. in Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Hall has not paid her rent for at least a year, she says, and has been out of a job for about a month.

"I gotta go somewhere," she said, standing outside on the porch in front of her dilapidated house near Wildwood Road. "I've got to find a job."

Mrs. Hall lives in a four-room cement block house surrounded by tall weeds and grass that envelop the five-acre lot her rented home is located on.

She contends the property has been neglected by her landlord, yet she admits to not having paid the $100 monthly rent.

MRS. HALL has lived there for seven years. She said her husband left her five years ago.

Two of her sons by a previous marriage are in the service. She looks after the other two youngsters, Judy, 9, and Bob, 10.

She said she receives welfare from both the county and township but that it's not enough to live on.

Mrs. Hall admits that part of her problem is that she cannot find a job after having been laid off from her last one.

She contends her house is in the condition it is because her landlord has not made repairs.

Joseph Koziol of Chicago, the landlord, says Mrs. Hall has not bothered to maintain the property.

HE SAID HE told her to move last June, months after she had stopped paying rent. He said the house is not worth fixing and that he wants to have it leveled.

"It was a real nice place when they moved in," Koziol said, adding that he cannot pay for improvements if she does not pay her rent.

"I can't spend that kind of money," he said, when asked about the broken water well. At one time he did make improvements to the house, but that was when he received rent.

Finally, he said, he went to court to get a court order to have Mrs. Hall vacate the building.

"I'm in a bind," he said.

MRS. HALL has since gone to the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows for help. But, finding a place for a woman with two children and no job is a task the center is having difficulty with.

"I don't even have a tent," Mrs. Hall said. My kids have no shoes. I don't know how I'll send them to school," she said.

FAA Awaits Statements

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Pal-Waukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Pal-Waukee and John McFadden of 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred.

"For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

"The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

City Resident Pleads Guilty

A 25-year-old Des Plaines man pleaded guilty to charges of illegal possession of a hypodermic syringe and driving with a revoked license yesterday in Cook County Circuit Court, Mount Prospect branch.

George Washington Pennington III, of 2210 Webster Ln., was sentenced by magistrate George Martay to serve one-year probation and fined $100 plus $5 court costs for the illegal possession.

Pennington also was sentenced to serve one-year probation, 30 days in the house of correction and fined $100 plus $5 court costs for driving after his license had been revoked by the secretary of state.

Pennington was stopped by Mount Prospect police June 6 for driving a motorcycle with loud mufflers. Pennington, who told police he did not have his driver's license with him at the time, was then taken to the police station, where it was learned his license had been revoked.

Pennington was then arrested and searched by police, who found a hypodermic syringe in his possession.

Harper Hears Union Rep

A union official representing a group of 25 Harper maintenance custodial employees handed the Harper College Board an unsigned collective bargaining agreement last night.

Charles Foxworth, representing Local 11, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, said that the document represented the union membership of 24 employees.

Board President James Hamill accepted the document and explained that in the next meeting or two of the Harper Board the proposal will be discussed by the board members.

He also explained that the Harper administration will go over the agreement and submit a recommendation to the board.

Foxworth said the unionization had been "hanging fire since May," and that the union had not solicited Harper employees.

He said it was a "grassroots effort." The dialogue between Foxworth and the five board members present last night was marked by considerable cordiality.

Foxworth said that all management people "are fair people"; Board member John Haas, a former Dist. 214 board member, praised the union as "a very, very good organization to work with."

Local 11, which has its office in Maywood, also serves Elementary Dist. 15 (Palatine-Rolling Meadows) and Dist. 54 (Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates).

Dist. 214 Teachers To Vote On Pay

The 800-plus school teachers in High School Dist. 214 will vote today to accept or reject a salary pact worked out by a team of teachers and board members for the 1970-71 year.

The package, which assures a beginning teacher with no experience and a B.A. a salary of $8,000, is one of the highest salary packages in the area.

Voting on the package will take place this afternoon during the district's Institute Day. Classes in Dist. 214 are scheduled to begin on Monday.

John Harth, president of the association, and members of the Dist. 214 administration are pleased with the success of negotiations, which were concluded in June. Approval of the salary package is expected by those close to the association.

THE SCALE, only part of the complete package, provides salaries from $8,000 to $17,225 for a teacher with a master's degree plus 30 hours of graduate work on step 16 of the scale. That's close to the level of the lowest paid district administrators.

A teacher with a master's degree starting in the district — and more and more Dist. 214 teachers have master's degrees — will earn $8,800 under the new scale.

The package also includes, as it has in the past, increments for extra-curricular and instructional related assignments. Teachers this year will be able to earn between $175 and $1200 for extra-curricular work, depending on the load and previous experience.

A variety of increments are available for extra-administrative and instructional related assignments. For example, an audio-visual building director can earn $795 extra per year and special salaries are available for persons working in special capacities during the summer.

Suburban Drug Abuse Talk Held By Area Residents

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

THOMAS SAID community organizations could and should help in the overall effort to handle drug problems by disseminating and sharing more accurate information.

And Dr. Morris, who heads the communications group, said the question of how to get believable information out to the public was a major problem media are now faced with.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benzaquin Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

(See related story on page 3.)

No Drug Problem Here

There is no drug problem in the northwest suburbs.

There are problems, each of which must be dealt with in an individualized manner, and cannot be collectively labeled or treated.

This was only one of the misconceptions cleared up at a drug abuse meeting at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night.

State, county and local officials, over 100 of them, listened as several guests and speakers gave their opinions as to the extent of drug abuse in this area and the many public misconceptions about it.

Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee (PTAC) offered some statistics to bring the scope of local drug abuse into focus.

For example, in 1966 the Palatine police handled 6 drug cases. Two years later this figure jumped up to 19, "and these are only the ones on record," he said.

ANOTHER SOURCE OF Thomas' information came from Northwest Community Hospital administrators who said the number of drug overdose cases and/or attempted suicides via overdose was 11 in January of this year, 14 in February and 10 in March.

"This is up to one every other day now," Thomas said.

When these figures are broken down into age and sex brackets, the results are interesting.

Of these cases, 4 can be attributed to females between 12 and 20, 9 to women between 21 and 39, 15 to females between 40 and 64, and 1 to a woman over 65 years of age.

And for males, 3 cases dealt with those between 12 and 20, 2 with the 21 to 39 bracket, 1 for those between 40 and 65 and none for men over 60 years of age.

Although the fact that the women between 40 and 64 years of age had the most cases spoke for itself, Thomas reiterated, "Kids are not the only ones using drugs."

FOR EXAMPLE, Thomas said his youth committee staff recently worked with a 14-year-old girl on LSD. Her mother was on tranquilizers every four hours and her father was frequently "sacked" from martinis by supper time, he said.

This is not to say that drug abuse among teens is not prevalent. Of the 200 "crisis" cases the PTYC dealt with in the last year, Thomas said about 75 per cent of them had drug problems in relation to their other "hangups."

Board Passes New School Calendar

A total of 182 days are designated as actual class days in the Dist. 57 calendar for the 1970-71 school year which was passed recently by the school board.

The school year will begin Sept. 8 and end June 11.

Included in the calendar are nine legal holidays: Columbus Day, Veterans' Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Good Friday, Memorial Day, New Years, Christmas, Thanksgiving and Labor Day.

Winter vacation will begin Dec. 23 and end Jan. 4. Spring vacation will begin April 8 and classes will resume April 13.

There will be no classes on Sept. 4, Nov. 6 and Jan. 22. These days are designated for teachers' institutes.

MAKE YOUR REAL ESTATE BROKER EARN HIS MONEY

It's easy to do: you'll be pleased with the results; and he'll be thankful to have you as a client.

To get the best results from a real estate professional, give him (or her) a chance to work for you exclusively until you have made a satisfactory transaction or decided to get another Real Estate Broker.

Buyers occasionally negotiate with more than one Realtor at the same time in the mistaken belief they will see a better variety of properties or stand a chance of making a more advantageous transaction.

A Real Estate Broker cannot do his best work under these conditions, knowing his efforts may be useless if his client should conclude a transaction with another broker in the meantime.

Only a small percentage of properties for sale are advertised at any one time. A Real Estate Broker therefore needs sufficient time to study his listing files or Multiple Listing records while he seeks out the best answer to his buyer's needs.

Pick a competent Real Estate Broker and give him your confidence. You'll both benefit.

Vehicle Stolen

A 1962 Chevrolet was reported stolen Monday while it was parked in the lot at Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The owner of the auto, Anthony J. Delise, of 1419 S. Chestnut Dr., reported the incident to police. Delise told police the car included a stereo tape deck, tapes and a tachometer.

Police issued an all-points bulletin on the missing auto, a white and gold two-door hardtop. Value of the missing property was not estimated.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Weigh Strike

by JUDY MEHL

With the first day of classes in School Dist. 59 11 days away, teachers in the district remain uncommitted on the issue of a strike.

The deadline for that decision seems to be Sept. 1.

On that day approximately 370 teachers are expected to vote on the ratification of their salary and comprehensive payment program contract. Members of the Teachers' Council negotiation team have recommended that the teachers reject the contract, claiming that details have not been completed to their satisfaction on the comprehensive payment program items.

If teachers' contracts are not ratified by the opening day of school the road is still legally open to them to return to the classrooms.

ACCORDING TO Ted Sanders, Illinois Education Association field representative, "Teachers can usually make arrangements to teach on last year's salary schedule, moving up one step, and when contracts are resolved, pay would be retroactive to the beginning of the school year."

He said there was nothing to stop the teachers from returning to the classrooms if he administration and teachers were willing.

In the opinion of board member Judith Zanca, this is probably what the board would encourage.

She added that many of the teachers have signed contracts already, with the provision that when a new contract is ratified it will go into effect for them also. She said many of these teachers were men who needed draft deferments.

Dave Robert, chairman of the Teachers' Council salary negotiation team, is one of these, according to Mrs. Zanca.

MRS. ZANCA SAID parents have called her and other board members asking if school will be open.

"We've been answering on the idea that the buildings will be open and fully staffed," she said.

The teachers, picketing Wednesday in front of the administration building protesting the board of education's refusal to negotiate class size, made no threats of striking.

Ruth Weisbaum, a teacher at Brentwood School, Des Plaines, said, "I hope we don't have to strike, that's all I hope. Nobody benefits and the kids suffer."

She added, "This is my eighth year in Dist. 59 and every year it gets worse."

ALTHOUGH SHE AND some 60 to 100 other teachers picketed to bring the problem of class size to the attention of parents and the board of education, there has been no comment or reaction from the board on the issue.

"The majority of the board is out of town," Mrs. Zanca said. "There is no official reaction. All I have to say is that it is unfortunate."

Reaction from the Teachers' Council to the topic of striking has been reserved.

"We have examined all various aspects of the situation for the teachers both legally and in regard to our responsibilities," Robert said, explaining that this included discussion of striking.

"The teachers at the meeting Sept. 1 will decide what steps will be taken," he said.

Dave Larsen, teacher at Dempster Junior High, gave the opinion of several teachers picketing Wednesday, however, when he said, "I would seek professional sanction. I would not strike."

Vandals Pour Sugar In Auto Gas Tank

Vandals played a sweet trick on Neil Ackeret of Mount Prospect Wednesday.

Ackeret, of 1005 Cottonwood, told police vandals poured sugar in the gas tank of his auto while it was parked in the lot behind his apartment. Ackeret owns a 1963 station wagon. How sweet it is.

KEEPING THE FAIRWAYS in shape at the Mount Prospect Country Club is a year-round job for Ken Goodman, greens keeper at the course. Goodman, a graduate of Arlington High School, has spent the last 17 years taking care of golf courses in the Northwest suburban area.

Think Your Lawn's So Big?

by DAVE PALERMO

When you see how efficiently he takes care of an 18-hole golf course, you begin to wonder what Ken Goodman could do with that ragged front lawn of yours.

Goodman, the greenskeeper for the Mount Prospect Country Club course, has spent the last 17 years tending golf courses and if he has his way he'll spend at least the next 17 doing the same thing.

"I like the profession. I can't see doing anything else," said Goodman, a resident of Wheeling. "My father worked on a golf course and I used to caddy. Almost every youngster caddied back then because they didn't have many cars like they do now."

"That's usually the way you get into this line of work. You caddy for a few years. They usually won't let you work on a course until you're 16 or 17 years old."

Goodman arrived at the Mount Prospect Country Club two years ago after tending courses at Indian Hill, River Woods (now Ravinia Green), Diamond Lake and Twin Orchards (now Long Grove).

A graduate of Arlington High School, Goodman's experience is necessary in a field which has become a science as well as a profession in the past 10 years.

Fairways at the country club must be carefully fertilized and trimmed to a length of about 1 1/2 inches. Aprons surrounding the greens must be cut to a length no higher than 1/2 inch and the greens must be kept at 3/16 of an inch.

"The daily work consists of cutting the greens, changing the tee markers and putting in the flags. Then we go into the specialized aspects such as rotoring and rebuilding greens."

"Probably the biggest thing on the course is the greens. We use a hybrid grass on our greens now called Poanu. It's actually a wild blue grass."

"The grass on the greens tend to develop fungus if not kept properly. A fungicide such as Pheny Mercury has to be used but with all the talk about the dangers of insecticides we might have to use something else in the near future. DDT is banned in Illinois."

GOODMAN'S JOB is a year-long one. In the winter he spends his time "going through all the machinery" needed to keep a course in good shape.

A member of the Midwest Golf Course Superintendents Association as well as its national counterpart, he spends three days at Purdue University every spring for a national convention in which newly-developed means of caring for a golf course are discussed.

Vandalism has often been a thorn in the side of greenskeepers, but Goodman tends to think that the problem has subsided in the past few months. "At first there was quite a problem when I first came here, but it isn't as bad now," he said. "Now the thing is to take the flags."

As far as the behavior of golfers at the course, Goodman feels the great majority of them are well behaved and show respect for the course.

"THEY'RE PRETTY WELL behaved, but they don't rake the sand traps enough," he said.

Greenskeeping has become profitable as it has become a science. Goodman estimates that in the Midwest a greenskeeper can make from $9,500 to $22,000 a year.

But Goodman isn't in it entirely for the money. He's been doing it too long.

Arrest Mexicans For Illegal Entry

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $500 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

School Bells Ring For Area Children

That low rumble you will hear early Monday morning will not be an earthquake rocking the Northwest suburbs, nor will it be Chicago's John Hancock Center teetering on its foundation.

Rather, it will be the sounds of 16,345 students pouring back into the six Dist. 214 high schools, which serve two townships and eight towns in the Northwest suburbs.

Those students are the sons and daughters of residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows. A seventh school is scheduled for completion next fall.

THERE WILL BE more than 1,300 new students in the district this year, and all of the high schools have projected increased enrollment.

Enrollment at Arlington is projected up from 2,331 to 2,445; Forest View from 2,511 to 2,880; Hershey from 2,572 to 2,888; Elk Grove from 2,804 to 2,900; Prospect from 2,440 to 2,515; and Wheeling from 2,442 to 2,625.

Evan Shall, a district instructional hapordinator, reported that official enrollment figures are taken on the sixth day of classes, which is the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Today will be the final preparation day for students and teachers in the district. Teachers are holding their annual institute day until 3:30 p.m. today. Supt. Edward Gilbert will be a featured speaker, and County Supt. of Schools Robert Hanrahan will speak briefly.

THE DISTRICT'S Education Association will vote today on the 1970-71 salary package. No public opposition to the package has appeared.

Students will have their last days of freedom over the weekend, and then it's back to school for another nine months.

Enrollment in Cook County public schools is expected to reach an all-time high of 484,470 students, according to figures from Hanrahan's office, representing an increase of 24,192 over the 1969-70 school year.

"We expect an enrollment of 342,282 in Cook County elementary schools and 142,288 in our high schools," said Hanra-

Teachers Ratify Pay Scale

by KAREN RUGEN

After three months of negotiations with the school board, School Dist. 26 teachers have ratified a salary schedule that increases their pay.

Yesterday afternoon about 130 teachers voted unanimously to accept a salary proposal drawn up by teacher and board negotiation teams. The school board must approve the schedule at a meeting next Tuesday night before it is formally adopted.

The new schedule includes increases in pay raises for each salary level. A teacher is placed on a salary step according to the number of years of teaching experience and college training he has had.

Under the proposed schedule a teacher with no experience and a bachelor's degree would receive $7,500 for the school year as compared to the present $7,000. The teacher with a bachelor's degree could rise up to step 12 and receive $11,625, an increase of $1,425. A teacher with a master's degree could start at $8,350 working up to step 16 and a salary of $14,200. Now he gets $7,600 and can rise up to $12,150.

THE PROPOSED schedule also provides for a $375 increase for each salary increase after the third step. Louis Bissa, past president of the River Trails Education Assn. (RTEA), said that previously there was no set increase and it would depend upon the decision of the school board for each teacher.

"This is what we really dickered for because some of the older teachers thought they weren't getting as much as the younger ones," he said.

The proposed schedule also includes increases to teacher benefits from health and accident insurance. The number of sick days a teacher can accumulate is also increased to 150 from 120.

RTEA is recognized as an official bargaining agent in the proposal. This is only a formal repetition of a previous agreement between the board and association in May when a procedural agreement was signed allowing the teachers' group to negotiate with the board.

BISSA SAID THE teachers are satisfied with the agreement. "We gave and they gave. We're happy and I think the board will be happy."

Creek Project Continues

Robert Klovstad, chairman of Mount Prospect's clean streams and drainage commission, said Wednesday he will continue his efforts to talk to state waterway officials about the discrepancies in the Weller Creek widening project maps.

The plans were drawn up by the Illinois Division of Waterways in anticipation of the project, expected to start sometime next year.

Klovstad said at the commission's meeting Wednesday he had tried to contact John Guillou, chief engineer for the waterways division, but was unsuccessful. Klovstad had planned to make a report on the matter at Wednesday's meeting, but postponed it because he was unable to contact Guillou.

Klovstad said he expects to get in touch with Guillou prior to the commission's meeting next Wednesday.

Difficulties over the project arose after the state turned over certain maps of the project to village officials. Those maps showed temporary easements larger than what has been expected were needed. They also showed permanent rights-of-way that had not been part of the project earlier.

He said he thinks the board's approval will be just a formality.

"My personal opinion is that the board will very likely ratify it," said the district Supt. Winston Harwood. "But I long since learned you can never tell."

He said that all contracts that have been signed with teachers including a notification that salary would be contingent upon approval of a schedule.

Woman Hurt In Auto Accident

No action was taken by the commission Wednesday because the necessary quorum was not present.

Woman Hurt In Auto Accident

A 23-year-old Mount Prospect woman suffered minor injuries Wednesday when the auto in which she was riding collided with another car at the corner of Main Street and Central Road in Mount Prospect.

Judy Carlson, of 965 Cottonwood Ln., was transported by Mount Prospect firemen to Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, where she was treated and released.

Police said Miss Carlson was a passenger in an auto driven by Stephen Carlson, also of 965 Cottonwood Ln., when it collided with another auto driven by Nancy Evans, 19, of Mount Prospect.

Miss Evans, of 427 Oriole Ln., was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way at an intersection. She is scheduled to appear in Mount Prospect Court Oct. 14.

HOUSE AT 701 E. Higgins Rd. has broken down in June. Bottled water has been without water since the well has been obtained from a friend.

Woman, 2 Children Facing Eviction

Mrs. Janet Hall, 41, and her two children are in need of help and time is running out.

The family is to be evicted Monday from their house at 701 E. Higgins Rd. in Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Hall has not paid her rent for at least a year, she says, and has been out of a job for about a month.

"I gotta go somewhere," she said, standing outside on the porch in front of her dilapidated house near Wildwood Road. "I've got to find a job."

Mrs. Hall lives in a four-room cement block house surrounded by tall weeds and grass that envelop the five-acre lot her rented home is located on.

She contends the property has been neglected by her landlord, yet she admits to not having paid the $100 monthly rent.

MRS. HALL has lived there for seven years. She said her husband left her five years ago.

Two of her sons by a previous marriage are in the service. She looks after the other two youngsters, Judy, 9, and Bob, 10.

She said she receives welfare from both the county and township but that it's not enough to live on.

Mrs. Hall admits that part of her problem is that she cannot find a job after having been laid off from her last one.

She contends her house is in the condition it is because her landlord has not made repairs.

Joseph Koziol of Chicago, the landlord, says Mrs. Hall has not bothered to maintain the property.

HE SAID HE told her to move last June, months after she had stopped paying rent. He said the house is not worth fixing and that he wants to have it leveled.

"It was a real nice place when they moved in," Koziol said, adding that he cannot pay for improvements if she does not pay her rent.

"I can't spend that kind of money," he said, when asked about the broken water well. At one time he did make improvements to the house, but that was when he received rent.

Finally, he said, he went to court to get a court order to have Mrs. Hall vacate the building.

"I'm in a bind," he said.

MRS. HALL has since gone to the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows for help. But, finding a place for a woman with two children and no job is a task the center is having difficulty with.

"I don't even have a tent," Mrs. Hall said. My kids have no shoes. I don't know how I'll send them to school," she said.

City Resident Pleads Guilty

A 26-year-old Des Plaines man pleaded guilty to charges of illegal possession of a hypodermic syringe and driving with a revoked license yesterday in Cook County Circuit Court, Mount Prospect branch.

George Washington Pennington III, of 2210 Webster Ln., was sentenced by magistrate George Martay to serve one-year probation and fined $100 plus $5 court costs for the illegal possession.

Pennington also was sentenced to serve one-year probation, 30 days in the house of correction and fined $100 plus $5 court costs for driving after his license had been revoked by the secretary of state.

Pennington was stopped by Mount Prospect police June 6 for driving a motorcycle with loud mufflers. Pennington, who told police he did not have his driver's license with him at the time, was then taken to the police station, where it was learned his license had been revoked.

Pennington was then arrested and searched by police, who found a hypodermic syringe in his possession.

FAA Awaits Statements

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Pal-Waukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Pal-Waukee and John McFadden of 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred.

"For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

"The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

Harper Hears Union Rep

A union official representing a group of 25 Harper maintenance custodial employees handed the Harper College Board an unsigned collective bargaining agreement last night.

Charles Foxworth, representing Local 11, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, said that the document represented the union membership of 24 employees.

Board President James Hamill accepted the document and explained that in the next meeting or two of the Harper Board the proposal will be discussed by the board members.

He also explained that the Harper administration will go over the agreement and submit a recommendation to the board.

Foxworth said the unionization had been "hanging fire since May," and that the union had not solicited Harper employees.

He said it was a "grassroots effort."

The dialogue between Foxworth and the five board members present last night was marked by considerable cordiality.

Foxworth said that all management people "are fair people"; Board member John Haas, a former Dist. 214 board member, praised the union as "a very, very good organization to work with."

Local 11, which has its office in Maywood, also serves Elementary Dist. 15 (Palatine-Rolling Meadows) and Dist. 54 (Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates).

Dist. 214 Teachers To Vote On Pay

The 800-plus school teachers in High School Dist. 214 will vote today to accept or reject a salary pact worked out by a team of teachers and board members for the 1970-71 year.

The package, which assures a beginning teacher with no experience and a B.A. a salary of $8,000, is one of the highest salary packages in the area.

Voting on the package will take place this afternoon during the district's Institute Day. Classes in Dist. 214 are scheduled to begin on Monday.

John Harth, president of the association, and members of the Dist. 214 administration are pleased with the success of negotiations, which were concluded in June. Approval of the salary package is expected by those close to the association.

THE SCALE, only part of the complete package, provides salaries from $8,000 to $17,225 for a teacher with a master's degree plus 30 hours of graduate work on step 16 of the scale. That's close to the level of the lowest paid district administrators.

A teacher with a master's degree starting in the district — and more and more Dist. 214 teachers have master's degrees — will earn $8,900 under the new scale.

The package also includes, as it has in the past, increments for extra-curricular and instructional related assignments. Teachers this year will be able to earn between $175 and $1200 for extra-curricular work, depending on the load and previous experience.

A variety of increments are available for extra-administrative and instructional related assignments. For example, an audio-visual building director can earn $795 extra per year and special salaries are available for persons working in special capacities during the summer.

Suburban Drug Abuse Talk Held By Area Residents

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

THOMAS SAID community organizations could and should help in the overall effort to handle drug problems by disseminating and sharing more accurate information.

And Dr. Morris, who heads the communications group, said the question of how to get believable information out to the public was a major problem media are now faced with.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benzaquin Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

Fire Calls

Wednesday, August 26

—11:03 a.m. an engine responded to a call at Muffich Buick, 801 E. Rand Rd. Firemen investigated a bomb threat.

Tax Rate Will Drop For Parks

Taxpayers in the Arlington Heights Park District will be paying less money to the district next year.

The tax rate for the park district will decrease about 7.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation compared to last year's rate.

To the owner of a house with a market value of $40,000, the decrease will amount to about $12. Houses are usually assessed at about 40 per cent of their market value. With an assessment of $16,000 and a rate of 38.98 cents per $100 assessed valuation, about $62 of a homeowner's bill will go to the park district.

This year, with a rate of 46.55 per $100 valuation, the park district's portion of tax bills ran about $74. The rate for next year will be 38.98 cents per $100 valuation.

THE DISTRICT'S tax rate is established by the levy ordinance which was passed recently by the park board. In figuring the rate, the park district used a total assessed valuation of $235 million, about $15 million more than this year's actual assessed valuation.

The assessed valuation of the park district has grown an average of $15 million per year for the last few years. When the actual valuation for this year was announced in March, the figure had jumped about $0 million. This increase was attributed to quadrennial reassessment which updates the valuation of property every four years.

The growth in the district's valuation this year will be because of annexations of land during 1970.

The levy ordinance will produce an income of about $934,000 from taxes for the park district. The levy ordinance has been passed, but the taxes will not actually be collected until after the bills are sent out next spring.

THUS, ALTHOUGH the district has passed the ordinance, it will not receive the income until it is three or four months into its next fiscal year, which begins in May, 1971.

Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, said that the main reason for the decrease is a lower levy for construction bonds.

The rate which will be used to figure next year's tax bills is about only three cents more than the rate used on the bills received in 1969.

Of the total income from taxes, about $286,000 was levied to pay for construction bonds and interest, $308,000 for general corporate purposes; about $188,000 for recreation program fund; about $41,000 for Federal Old Age and Survivor's Insurance and Illinois Municipal Fund; $8,800 for public liability insurance and $2,200 for auditing costs.

The tax rate in the corporate and recreation program fund categories is fixed by law. The park district is levying the maximum amount allowed in these two accounts.

JUST A MINOR adjustment... School Dist. 25 has been converting its budgeting system to a computer. The system was described at this week's board meeting as "a simple accounting system" by Dan Suffoletto, business manager. There have been a few minor problems with the program, Suffoletto explained. "We inadvertently put pluses instead of minuses in the machine," he said, "and one check came out for $49 million."

LIBERATED? On Women's Liberation Day some secretary struck an inadvertent blow for some sort of liberation. A letter arrived for the new female Arlington Heights Herald reporter addressed to Mr. Wandalyne Rice.

"NOW THEY KNOW where to burn the cross," said one Arlington Heights plan commissioner Wednesday night as new nameplates were passed out to the commission. After the identification placards were distributed, Commissioner O. V. Anderson sat behind one that said "Mrs. Harms."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN? Trying to soften the meaning of a proposed ordinance change, plan commissioner Victor Beisler coined a new phrase. "Let's try and unharshen it," he quipped.

WAKE UP, FANS: The racing season at Arlington Park Race Track ended a week ago today but apparently some racing fans didn't read the sign at the main entrance telling them so. Rolling Meadows police had to direct traffic when almost 150 cars showed up at the Euclid Avenue entrance Saturday, the day after the racing season closed.

THAT'S A DECREASE? The much-heralded decrease in tolls doesn't mean much to people who travel to Elgin via the Northwest Tollway. The old toll was 15 cents to get on and the same to get off. Now it costs 10 cents to get on the Tollway at Rte. 53... and 20 cents to get off at the exits which serve Carpentersville, Elgin and Dundee.

AND THEY'RE OFF! The annual volleyball marathon began Monday night and will continue day and night in all kinds of weather until 8 p.m. Saturday. Food and drink as well as sleeping bags for tired players are available nearby.

65 Hours And The Match Continues

At about 3 p.m. yesterday, the score was Arlington 3,781, Rolling Meadows 3,759.

They'd been at it now for 65 hours and some of the members of each volleyball team were beginning to tire. "Is there anyone who wants to rotate in for me?" one sweated and fatigued teenager asked, searching the sidelines for a substitute.

One teammate, who had already taken a short rest to refresh himself, eagerly took the place of the tired player who ran to the water jug to help himself to a cold drink.

WHEN THE GAME began at 8 p.m. Monday in back of the Meadows Baptist Church, almost 100 persons were there, some as players and some as spectators.

The annual Volleyball Marathon between the Meadows Church and the Arlington Evangelical Free Church began with teens representing each church ready to play for the next 120 hours, day and night, rain or shine.

The youth group of the Meadows Church organized the entire show. Lights have been set up, benches were borrowed from the park district and mothers, grandmothers and aunts are to supply food for the players three times a day and cold drinks throughout the play.

Sleeping bags are also set up inside the church so that player can catch a short nap whenever necessary, cool off with the air conditioning during the hot days and warm up with the heat during the cold nights.

Because the Meadows team has lost the last two volleyball marathons by almost 1,000 points, they're determined not to let it happen again. This year they'll have more time in which to develop a lead. Both teams are shooting for a 120-hour long game, which would not only break last year's record but also the national volleyball marathon record currently set at 108 hours.

This year more than just the championship was riding on the game.

Before the game began, both teams worked to sell pledges to people throughout the community to collect money for the Evangelical Christian School on Chicago's South Side. The idea was to get a contribution for the fund through a pledge if the teams were able to last a specific number of hours.

When the game started, almost $400 in pledges had been made and the team members are still trying to solicit more. All the money collected will be turned over to the Chicago school, a private, non-denominational organization that trains the inner-city child in Christian principles and provides him with a wholesome moral atmosphere.

When the marathon finally reaches its conclusion at 8 p.m. Saturday, all team members will celebrate with a party and concert at the volleyball court. The New Directions, a local folk singing group, will entertain the teens.

But before the winners can celebrate, the marathon has to be completed

Salem Street Residents Still Confused?

Residents of Salem St. came to last night's meeting of the Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements confused and they may have left the same way.

The board held a formal hearing on the Salem-Fernandez proposed street paving and storm sewer installation for about 40 residents attending the hearing.

Prior to the hearing, the residents were under the impression that paving their street by private contract would be far cheaper than doing it by special assessment. BOLI usually encourages residents to initiate private contract proceedings rather than the village starting by special assessment.

But Bob Bishop, court appointed commissioner on many local improvements, said the Salem-Fernandez project would not be cheaper if completed by private contract. He said the installation of the storm sewer before the street paving and the fact that not all the residents have expressed an interest in private contract were some of the extenuating circumstances behind his reasoning.

BOLI head Harold Klingner and member Russel Colvin questioned Bishop's conclusions and expressed their surprise that private contract would not be at least 15 per cent cheaper than special assessment.

SOME RESIDENTS, who had been trying to convince their neighbors to participate in a private contract, also questioned Bishop's statement and asked BOLI if they could get estimates of private bids so that a comparison could be made to special assessment figures.

After Klingner said it was not the board's function to solicit private bids and the residents questioned the wisdom of asking a contractor to give a cost estimate for a project that won't begin until next year, the board asked Cooper Roberts, consulting engineer, to prepare private contract bids based on past experience.

The hearing will be continued to Sept. 24.

In other action, the board held an informal public hearing on proposed Thomas Street improvements. The project would include pavement widening from Highland to Evergreen and from Arlington Heights Rd. to Hickory. Sidewalks on the north side of the street, from Hickory to Highland would be included also.

Youth Work Together In Unique Mass

by WANDALYN RICE

The young priest sat quietly under the bare light bulb — listening. "Let's pray that what we have discovered will become a way of life," the young girl said softly.

Her prayer was the call to worship. The church was a small garage decorated with signs and posters.

"Christ had a dream of love, live it," one read.

"It is better to have loved and lost than to have hated and won," read another. The congregation sat on lawn chairs or on blankets on the concrete floor.

The priest wore a brown-striped knit shirt and slacks. Only minutes before he had been laughing and talking with the now-silent congregation.

NEXT TO THE PRIEST was a bare picnic table with only a chalice. The picnic table would soon be transformed into an altar where he would say the ancient Christian Eucharist rite.

But first, there was a discussion of readings that had been selected by members of the congregation and the priest.

The discussion was subdued, almost sad. Finally one girl spoke up. "Just sitting here with nobody saying anything is the most beautiful because what we feel just can't be said in words."

This mass was the last official celebration to be held by the Rev. Joe Sander for a mass group formed of area young people two years ago.

The group, composed of high school and college students, gathered at the home of one of the members for the celebration. Father Sander was being transferred to Peoria.

During the prayer of the faithful, one girl said, "I think we should be thankful that Joe has been with us for so long and pray for him and the kids who need him in Peoria."

THE STORY OF THE mass group, however, involves more than the story of the last mass Father Sander said Sunday.

It began two years ago when a young couple, Mike and Rosemary Green, moved into Arlington Heights.

"We had been involved in the Newman Club (a Catholic youth organization) at college," Green explained, "and when we went back to the regular church it was not what we wanted."

The Greens became involved with the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine (the Catholic Sunday School) and through that set up a mass group with young people from several parishes.

Youths from Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines were soon involved in the group and Father Sander, director of guidance at St. Viator's High School, became the group's regular priest.

During the next two years the group developed close relationships. Instead of a sermon, their services had dialogues between those attending and the priests.

"It isn't something you can just go to, you kind of have to come a part of it," Green said.

THE DIALOGUES covered many topics — death, sex, drugs, parents and the meaning of the mass.

"In many ways these are ordinary kids with kids' problems," Green said, "but in a sense they are very different. I don't know how many kids are concerned about the mass they go to and who are upset when it doesn't go right."

Members of the group met every Wednesday night at the Greens' apartment to plan the topic for the dialogue and the readings for the next mass.

"It doesn't upset me when people say perience," Green said.

The whole process was a learning experience there are young people in your group who don't believe in God. The mass group is a way to come and hear other people's ideas about God."

Now the group is in transition. Not only is Father Sander leaving, but the Greens are leaving too.

"We have told them we are officially quitting on Sept. 1, but unofficially we will probably never quit," Green said.

Last week the group held a meeting to discuss the future. They decided to continue.

"The kids are beginning to realize how much they have," Green said.

THIS FALL THE masses will be held for one month at each of three to five parishes, with different priests officiating each week. The group is also arranging for some adult couples to fill the Greens' role.

St. James and Our Lady of the Wayside churches in Arlington Heights and St. Collette's School in Rolling Meadows have already agreed to let the mass groups use their facilities, and priests have agreed to say mass.

The group is also talking to two other parishes about meeting places.

The one-month-at-each-place arrangement will make transportation problems easier for the group. "Now people have to call every week to find out where we are," Green said.

Father Ray Devereux of St. James, who began a mass group for younger students last year, said he will help with the larger group.

The youthful mass groups are useful, he said, because "the kids are at the age where they are starting to search out the meaning of religion in their lives. When topics in the mass are related to their own lives and needs it will help."

In addition, he said, the participants are likely to bring about greater changes as they return to the regular church.

"THE FREEDOM IN the mass today is great and unless there is someone to say what to do with it, it can be lost," he said. "At first the mass groups are very important to the kids, but as they find their identity they find they have to express it by going out into the larger church."

The youthful mass group will use a creed written by the group.

"Previous creeds were written by priests and cardinals to define what it meant to be a Catholic," Green said. "The kids wanted this creed to define as simply as possible what they believed."

The creed reads: "I believe in me I believe in you. I believe the world is mine and yours. I believe that together we can create a world of love."

"I believe in God, therefore I love. I trust, I seek justice, I search for brotherhood and peace."

"I believe in Jesus the Christ. I believe he was a man like us, a man of peace who suffered death and I believe he is with us."

"I believe all this and more."

Drug Abuse Answers Sought

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to "scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacist, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

For the community organizations, which included local PTAs, churches, the Jaycees, youth organizations and other civic groups, Emerson Thomas served as the moderator.

THOMAS SAID community organizations could and should help in the overall effort to handle drug problems by disseminating and sharing more accurate information.

And Dr. Morris, who heads the communications group, said the question of how to get believable information out to the public was a major problem media are now faced with.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benaquan Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

No Drug Problem In NW Suburbs

There is no drug problem in the north-west suburbs.

There are problems, each of which must be dealt with in an individualized manner, and cannot be collectively labeled or treated.

This was only one of the misconceptions cleared up at a drug abuse meeting at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night.

State, county and local officials, over 100 of them, listened as several guests and speakers gave their opinions as to the extent of drug abuse in this area and the many public misconceptions about it.

Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee (PTAC) offered some statistics to bring the scope of local drug abuse into focus.

For example, in 1966 the Palatine police handled 6 drug cases. Two years later this figure jumped up to 19, "and these are only the ones on record," he said.

ANOTHER SOURCE OF Thomas' information came from Northwest Community Hospital administrators who said the number of drug overdose cases and/or attempted suicides via overdose was 11 in January of this year, 14 in February and 10 in March.

"This is up to one every other day now," Thomas said.

When these figures are broken down into age and sex brackets, the results are interesting.

Of these cases, 4 can be attributed to females between 12 and 20, 9 to women between 21 and 39, 15 to females between 40 and 64, and 1 to a woman over 65 years of age.

And for males, 3 cases dealt with those between 12 and 20, 2 with the 21 to 39 bracket, 1 for those between 40 and 65 and none for men over 60 years of age.

Although the fact that the women between 40 and 64 years of age had the most cases spoke for itself, Thomas reiterated, "Kids are not the only ones using drugs."

FOR EXAMPLE, Thomas said his youth committee staff recently worked with a 14-year-old girl on LSD. Her mother was on tranquilizers every four hours and her father was frequently "sacked" from martinis by supper time, he said.

This is not to say that drug abuse among teens is not prevalent. Of the 200 "crisis" cases the PTAC dealt with in the last year, Thomas said about 75 per cent of them had drug problems in relation to their other "hangups."

JACK RYON, director of publicity for Northwest Community Hospital talked about drug abuse in this area as two local teens looked on.

School Bells Ring For Area Children

That low rumble you will hear early Monday morning will not be an earthquake rocking the Northwest suburbs, nor will it be Chicago's John Hancock Center teetering on its foundation.

Rather, it will be the sounds of 16,345 students pouring back into the six Dist. 214 high schools, which serve two townships and eight towns in the Northwest suburbs.

Those students are the sons and daughters of residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows. A seventh school is scheduled for completion next fall.

THERE WILL BE more than 1,300 new students in the district this year, and all of the high schools have projected increased enrollment.

Enrollment at Arlington is projected up from 2,331 to 2,405; Forest View from 2,511 to 2,650; Hersey from 2,572 to 2,850; Elk Grove from 2,604 to 2,900; Prospect from 2,469 to 2,515; and Wheeling from 2,442 to 2,825.

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, reported that official enrollment figures are taken on the sixth day of classes, which is the Tuesday after Labor Day.

Today will be the final preparation day for students and teachers in the district. Teachers are holding their annual institute day until 3:30 p.m. today. Supt. Edward Gilbert will be a featured speaker, and County Supt. of Schools Robert Hanrahan will speak briefly.

THE DISTRICT'S Education Association will vote today on the 1970-71 salary package. No public opposition to the package has appeared.

Students will have their last days of freedom over the weekend, and then it's back to school for another nine months.

Enrollment in Cook County public schools is expected to reach an all-time high of 484,470 students, according to figures from Hanrahan's office, representing an increase of 24,192 over the 1969-70 school year.

"We expect an enrollment of 342,262 in Cook County elementary schools and 142,288 in our high schools," said Hanrahan.

Bag This Number

A story in yesterday's Arlington Heights Herald about the local Jaycees selling plastic trash bags included an incorrect phone number.

The correct phone number is FL 8-2397. Residents may call the phone number to order rolls of 30-gallon bags. A roll of 50 bags costs $3 and a roll of 100 costs $5.50.

Members of the Jaycees will provide free home delivery of the bags and the proceeds will be used to finance Jaycee community service projects.

Losers Become Winners At Celebration

by MURRAY DUBIN
Sometimes losers win.
Sometimes coming in first isn't of paramount importance.

The Coronets understand. The 82-girl color guard and drill team from Arlington Heights recently lost a national competition in Florida by six tenths of a point.

Futurities

Voters can register to vote tomorrow between 10 a.m. and noon in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road.

But this week, they were feted by some of their parents as winners.

Herb and Lynn Lindstrom, the teams' directors, and the 10-man board of directors of the Coronet Drill Team and Color Guard Inc., hosted a dinner for the girls at the VFW Hall in Arlington Heights.

Lynn is ex-Arlington High School physical education teacher who left Arlington in 1965. Moving to Kenosha, however, didn't end a long time dream.

"When I was a kid, I always wanted a drill team," she said.

HAVING ORGANIZED a team nucleus while she was at Arlington, Lynn and her husband have been commuting from Wisconsin ever since. And they've made the Coronets into the largest drill team in the country.

Why would a girl become a Coronet? "They receive discipline, meet nice people, have responsibility, travel and have a lot of fun," the Lindstroms said.

The girls practice one night during the school term until April or May when the practices accelerate to two or three times a week until the national competition in August.

Herb Lindstrom hasn't taken the defeat as lightly as others.

"The judges judging execution weren't capable, and I should know because I'm a judge," Lindstrom said.

BUT THERE WAS too much laughter in the VFW hall for sad thoughts. Eating a beef dinner supplied by the VFW, the girls sang songs and giggled as they talked about their bus trip to Florida and the past year.

Rising for an ovation for their bus driver or blushing just a little as the board of directors told them "You're still number one to us," the Forest View, Hersey and Arlington High school Coronets basked in the well-wishes of everyone there.

Mexicans Arrested On Nursery Land

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $500 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

Joan Klussmann

Two new diplomas and a graduation tassel on a Barbie doll. These recent additions to the home of Joann and Hal Cress, 922 N. Yale Ave., signify their achievements during the past year.

Hal, media director at Niles Township North High School, took a sabbatical last year, and the family left Arlington Heights for Salt Lake City and the University of Utah. Hal earned an Educational Specialist degree (which comes in between a Master's and a Ph. D.), stressing audio-visual work in his studies.

Joann, who had some credits from other colleges, crammed all year to earn her Bachelor's Degree in history this summer. She praises her history professor for his understanding and help. He is a champion of housewives who wish to return to school and he bent over backwards to make sure that all her old credits would be accepted. She also praises Hal for pitching in with the housework and taking the children skiing every weekend while she curled up in the library with textbooks.

HER STUDIES made Joann even more aware that "history isn't black and white" and that there may be several theories for why wars are started. She hopes that in the future young children will be taught even more of the differing philosophies relating to world events.

The summer graduation followed closely on the heels of the June ceremonies but more than 900 students received degrees with Joann this month. The state of the economy was made clear during the exercises when a faculty member announced that "this is a sad occasion as well as a happy one." Many of the degree holders will have to search hard to find a position to fit their qualifications.

Hal will return to his post at the high school. The three children will return to classes at elementary, junior high and high schools. Joann will relax awhile after the last year's grind but eventually she hopes to be a school librarian. The Barbie doll in daughter Jennifer's room will resplend in a graduation tassel—the tassel Joann wore for the ceremonies.

BETTY NEWBART and other members of the human resources committee of the League of Women Voters of the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area have been chasing down facts and figures on low and middle income housing all summer. They have talked with local officials, collected statistics and recently took a trip to Rockford to view first hand the Valerie Percy Homes and the Rockford Squares development.

The committee met yesterday to exchange information and to start work on a fact sheet which will relate to the proposed mixed income housing on the Victorian property in Arlington Heights. The League supports the need for low and middle income housing throughout the country.

Automobiles will be scrubbed and polished tomorrow by high school students who attend the First United Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid St. Car washing services will be available from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

It May Not Be A Whisper

Hearing loss can be very subtle and many people just pass it off. It may be an accumulation of wax in the ears. A physician can do a great deal to correct this problem. If it is just wax he will clean it out and advise you to have this done periodically.

For more serious loss he might recommend one of the new effective hearing aids. Each hearing loss is individual and the just right aid must be selected. Don't wait until not hearing becomes embarrassing. Have it checked as soon as it is noticed.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly, without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Area Resident Writes On 'Dietetics and Ecology'

Arlington Heights resident Sheila Henderson has an article in the current issue of Hospitals Magazine, the official journal of the American Hospital Association.

The article, "Dietetics and Human Ecology," discusses the role of the dietetic staff in implementing the concept of human ecology at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. Mrs. Henderson is executive dietitian at the hospital.

According to Mrs. Henderson's article, human ecology, the concept on which patient care is based at Lutheran General, is the "understanding and treatment of the whole person in light of his relationship to God, his family and the society in which he lives."

MRS. HENDERSON says nutrition is a common denominator in the care of patients. Food and emotions are inseparable and the dietitian should consider this fact in patient care.

The article says education and family understanding is necessary to support modifications in a patient's diet.

A registered dietitian, Mrs. Henderson is serving as the incoming president-elect of the Illinois Dietetic Association. She is a graduate of St. Mary of the Woods College and completed her dietetic internship at St. Louis University.

Officials To Discuss Coach Co.

L. A. Hanson, Arlington Heights village manager, said yesterday the village will send a representative to the meeting of officials Sept. 4 to discuss the financial plight of the United Motor Coach Co.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel called the meeting of officials from 15 area suburbs. He wrote to Jack Walsh, Arlington Heights village president, who referred the matter to Hanson.

The bus company, which has scheduled cut backs in service effective Aug. 30, has asked the suburbs for operating subsidies but has not received any since meeting with officials of Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Niles and Elk Grove Village.

The bus company currently runs 11 trips daily in each direction on Northwest Highway through Arlington Heights between Barrington and Des Plaines. A company spokesman said that number will be cut to two Sept. 1.

HANSON SIAD Darryl Kenning, the manager's administrative assistant, will attend the meeting. "We're not in any position right now," Hanson said. "We're just at the listening stage. We can't take a position because we don't know what they want yet."

In a letter to mayors of suburbs from Barrington to Evanston, Behrel said United Motor Coach "apparently is in dire financial circumstances, is already planning serious curtailment of its services, and there is also a great possibility that if some assistance is not forthcoming (it) will have to go out of business."

Behrel said the bus company problem seriously affects the northwest suburban area and the mayors should get together to see if they can come up with a solution.

The company last month announced that it will virtually abandon service on four local Des Plaines routes, on routes in Park Ridge and Niles and on night and weekend trips between the northwest suburbs and downtown Chicago.

AFTER RECEIVING a report on the firm's financial condition from City Comptroller Duane Blietz, Behrel said United Motor Coach is "almost insolvent." According to Elmer Schuemann, the company's vice president and general manager, United Motor Coach lost $70,000 in the first six months of this year.

The firm lost $84,000 in 1969 and more than $130,000 the year before.

United Motor Coach serves Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, Park Ridge, Palatine, Barrington, Glenview, Wheeling, Morton Grove, Skokie, Lincolnwood, Niles, Edgebrook and Countryside. The company has run buses between the northwest suburbs and Chicago's Jefferson Park.

The Illinois Commerce Commission has said United Motor Coach can go ahead with its plans for token service on some routes unless local communities or a large number of citizens protest.

According to Behrel, there is some question about the ability of municipalities to subsidize United Motor Coach directly. Illinois laws allow subsidies to be funneled through mass transit districts, but no such districts have been formed in the northwest suburban area.

Schuemann has estimated that the company would need about $5,000 to maintain Des Plaines service at its present levels and would need aid amounting to about $140,000 a year, its present rate of loss, to eliminate cut backs in other areas.

Policeman Wins Official 'Thanks'

An Arlington Heights policeman received a departmental commendation this week from L. W. Calderwood, police chief.

The policeman, Ronald M. Knapp, was commended for his actions while on patrol in the village Monday night. Knapp reportedly stopped a motorist for driving without lights.

A subsequent investigation by Knapp led to the solution of an unreported, undiscovered burglary.

Harper Hears Union Rep

A union official representing a group of 25 Harper maintenance custodial employees handed the Harper College Board an unsigned collective bargaining agreement last night.

Charles Foxworth, representing Local 11, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, said that the document represented the union membership of 24 employees.

Board President James Hamill accepted the document and explained that in the next meeting or two of the Harper Board the proposal will be discussed by the board members.

He also explained that the Harper administration will go over the agreement and submit a recommendation to the board.

Foxworth said the unionization had been "hanging fire since May," and that the union had not solicited Harper employees.

He said it was a "grassroots effort." The dialogue between Foxworth and the five board members present last night was marked by considerable cordiality.

Foxworth said that all management people "are fair people"; Board member John Haas, a former Dist. 214 board member, praised the union as "a very, very good organization to work with."

Local 11, which has its office in Maywood, also serves Elementary Dist. 15 (Palatine-Rolling Meadows) and Dist. 54 (Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates).

Dystrophy Carnivals Set

Neighborhood carnivals against Muscular Dystrophy will be held at three Arlington Heights homes today and tomorrow.

The first carnival will be from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. today at 115 S. Wilshire. Cathryn A. Trotter will serve as ringmaster, assisted by J. Schwem, C. Trotter, G. Schwem, D. Nelson and C. Trotter. The carnival will feature games such as ring toss, fortune telling, pie toss, sponge toss, and milk bottle drop.

A carnival will take place from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday at 1223 S. Fernandez. Ringmaster Ellen S. Poklacki will be assisted by her sister, Julie, and her brother, Tuffer. The carnival will feature the bean bag toss, sponge in the face, penny pitch, marble shoot, bowling and an auction.

There will be a carnival from 1:50 p.m. Saturday at 1108 N. Derbyshire. Paul Parry will act as ringmaster with assistance from his brothers and sisters and neighbor children. The carnival will feature a fishing game, the bean bag throw, guess-the-number-of-noodles-in-the-jar and a ring toss.

The children got the idea for staging the carnivals while watching TV personality Bill Jackson, who is promoting the carnivals on this television cartoon show.

All proceeds from the carnival will go to aid the fight against dystrophy and related diseases.

Real Estate News & Views

MAKE YOUR REAL ESTATE BROKER
EARN HIS MONEY

It's easy to do; you'll be pleased with the results; and he'll be thankful to have you as a client.

To get the best results from a real estate professional, give him (or her) a chance to work for you exclusively until you have made a satisfactory transaction or decided to get another Real Estate Broker.

Buyers occasionally negotiate with more than one Realtor at the same time in the mistaken belief they will see a better variety of properties or stand a chance of making a more advantageous transaction.

A Real Estate Broker cannot do his best work under these conditions, knowing his efforts may be useless if his client should conclude a transaction with another broker in the meantime.

Only a small percentage of properties for sale are advertised at any one time. A Real Estate Broker therefore needs sufficient time to study his listing files or Multiple Listing records while he seeks out the best answer to his buyer's needs.

Pick a competent Real Estate Broker and give him your confidence. You'll both benefit.

Dist. 59 Teachers Still Weigh Strike

by JUDY MEHL

With the first day of classes in School Dist. 59 11 days away, teachers in the district remain uncommitted on the issue of a strike.

The deadline for that decision seems to be Sep. 1.

On that day approximately 370 teachers are expected to vote on the ratification of their salary and comprehensive payment program contract. Members of the Teachers' Council negotiation team have recommended that the teachers reject the contract, claiming that details have not been completed to their satisfaction on the comprehensive payment program items.

If teachers' contracts are not ratified by the opening day of school the road is still legally open to them to return to the classrooms.

ACCORDING TO Ted Sanders, Illinois Education Association field representative, "Teachers can usually make arrangements to teach on last year's salary schedule, moving up one step, and when contracts are resolved, pay would be retroactive to the beginning of the school year."

He said here was nothing to stop the teachers from returning to the classrooms if he administration and teachers were willing.

In the opinion of board member Judith Zanca, this is probably what the board would encourage.

She added that many of the teachers have signed contracts already, with the provision that when a new contract is ratified it will go into effect for them also. She said many of these teachers were men who needed draft deferments.

Dave Robert, chairman of the Teachers' Council salary negotiation team, is one of these, according to Mrs. Zanca.

MRS. ZANCA SAID parents have called her and other board members asking if school will be open.

"We've been answering on the idea that the buildings will be open and fully staffed," she said.

The teachers, picketing Wednesday in front of the administration building protesting the board of education's refusal to negotiate class size, made no threats of striking.

Ruth Weisbaum, a teacher at Brentwood School, Des Plaines, said, "I hope we don't have to strike, that's all I hope. Nobody benefits and the kids suffer."

She added, "This is my eighth year in Dist. 59 and every year it gets worse."

ALTHOUGH SHE AND some 60 to 100 other teachers picketed to bring the problem of class size to the attention of parents and the board of education, there has been no comment or reaction from the board on the issue.

"The majority of the board is out of town," Mrs. Zanca said. "There is no official reaction. All I have to say is that it is unfortunate."

Reaction from the Teachers' Council to the topic of striking has been reserved.

"We have examined all various aspects of the situation for the teachers both legally and in regard to our responsibilities," Robert said, explaining that this included discussion of striking.

"The teachers at the meeting Sept. 1 will decide what steps will be taken," he said.

Dave Larsen, teacher at Dempster Junior High, gave the opinion of several teachers picketing Wednesday, however, when he said, "I would seek professional sanction. I would not strike."

Teachers Are 'Nice, Orderly'

A "Keep the grass Be nice. Be orderly," sign was posted on the newly seeded grass Wednesday in front of the Dist. 59 administration building in Arlington Heights.

It was hastily constructed and put up by the teachers at the request of the administration prior to an all-day picket by the teachers.

The teachers did keep off the grass and remained orderly as they paced on the hard-to-walk-on gravel path around the seeded area.

The path was bordered by a makeshift fence to keep the teachers from slipping off the curb into traffic. The administration gave permission to the teachers to put up the fence, according to the negotiation chairman.

JUST INSIDE THE main door of the administration building weary teachers coming in from the hot sun talked to the administration personnel and stopped to take a drink from the fountain. Outside the demonstrators drank pop from bottles bought from a machine inside.

Although the atmosphere between the two groups was somewhat congenial, the teachers were serious about the picket. Some drove in from Chicago, others came from Des Plaines and Palatine.

They all taught in Dist. 59 schools, either in Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect or Des Plaines, and they wanted a contract which included details on smaller classes. Classes in some of the 20 district schools now have 30 students per teacher.

Meanwhile, classes are scheduled to begin in 12 days.

"NOBODY REALLY KNOWS how big the drug problems are in this area," according to Eric Scapp, a psychologist for the Illinois Drug Abuse Program. Standing behind him is Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who made several recent TV appearances on the subject of drug abuse and what can be done.

Area Doctors, Laymen Study Drug Abuse

by TOM ROBB

More than 100 local, county and state representatives met at Northwest Community Hospital Wednesday night to

"scratch the surface" of a massive community plan for action against drug abuse in the Northwest suburbs.

People from health, communication, education and community organizations, as well as many other individual concerns, discussed what can be done in the area of drug abuse to provide more accurate information, education, in-service training among various professions and treatment for people with drug problems.

The purpose of the meeting was "to see first what the needs are of the community in the area of drug abuse, and then see how, or even if there are ways to cut back or at least cope with the problem by calling on the resources of many groups," says Dr. Ralph Morris, a professor of pharmacology in the College of Pharmacy at the University of Illinois Chicago campus.

MORRIS IS ONE of five men who make up the core group behind this project and called the meeting.

Others are Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township

Youth Committee; Palatine physician Morton Friedman; John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization; and Bert Chotiner, assistant administrator of Northwest Community Hospital.

"This meeting is not an attempt to form another new organization," Morris said.

Rather, it is an effort to begin channeling a wide range of local interest in drug abuse into a useful and effective "advisory council," said Dr. Friedman.

"I was rather depressed because of the public apathy toward drug abuse which I thought existed. After seeing tonight's turnout, I'm no longer depressed, but worried as to whether we can retain this great interest and support and do something with it," Friedman said.

Other participants agreed that a major problem of the meeting was too many people and too little time. Although only 40-50 people were invited, other rooms had to be opened to accommodate a crowd twice that size during the two and one-half hour session.

BECAUSE OF THIS, members from each of the major groups — health, education, communication and community — will meet separately over a period of the next few months, develop a concrete format for their representatives and then regroup for a final "community plan for action meeting" around Dec. 1.

The groups will use four questions as guidelines for action, as they did in short workshops Wednesday night. They will try to answer:

—What's your group's role in drug abuse programs?

—How does this role fit into the larger role of this entire group?

—How can the service from each group be coordinated?

—How do we make available other needed services?

After the workshops, a moderator from each of the four groups presented a brief summary of what was discussed.

In the field of education, John Wightman served as the moderator. His group was composed of representatives from high school districts 211 and 214, elementary districts 15 and 54, Harper College, the Northwest Education Cooperative, Clearbrook and Countryside centers for the handicapped and many other educational agencies.

WIGHTMAN SAID the role of educators in drug abuse "was significant, but perhaps unsuccessful." He recommended the establishment of a store-front drug information center, a coordinated in-service training program and a total community drug education program.

Dr. Friedman spoke for members of the health professions, which included, physicians, pharmacists, nurses, psychologists, social workers and various county and state agencies.

He said their main responsibility in the area of drug abuse was in prevention, treatment, rehabilitation and a "follow-up" program for former users.

He said the best way to deal with drug abuse is through honest and accurate information presented in a straightforward manner.

The one thing the Northwest suburbs lack in the area of drug abuse is any type of rehabilitation center, the nearest of which are located in Chicago.

At the close of the meeting Bruce McQuaker, a representative of Traveler's Aid who recently participated in the Conversation on Drugs TV series and appeared to speak on this subject on the Benzaquin Show, left with this remark:

"I think your group here tonight is tremendous. I haven't seen this much community interest in a long time. But remember, you're on your way into a heartbreaking venture, so stick with it and don't give up out of frustration."

Lieutenant Picked For Institute

Lt. August Schwiesow of the Des Plaines Police Department is among 100 police officers selected to attend the 1970-71 Traffic Police Administration Training Program at the Traffic Institute, Northwestern University.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz announced that Lt. Schwiesow will begin his nine month study on Sept. 10 at the institute in Evanston.

Chief Hintz said his department received a grant-in-aid under the state's highway safety program amounting to 50 per cent of the total cost of salary and expenses. The remainder of Schwiesow's salary and expenses will be paid by the department.

ATTENDING THE 1970-71 class will be officers from 28 state, two county and 41 municipal law enforcement agencies in the United States plus representatives of the New York Port Authority, Navajo Indian Police in Arizona, Quebec Provincial Police in Canada, and foreign officials from Johannesburg, South Africa, Taipei, Formosa, Guam, West Pakistan and Venezuela.

James M. Slavin, institute director, said the 100-man class, the largest in the history of the institute, was in response to an unprecedented number of requests by departments to enroll representatives.

"There is a need," he said, "for improved management practices and more effective supervision in police agencies."

Like industry, law enforcement is also experiencing a middle-management crisis.

Departments throughout the nation need men trained, knowledgeable and experienced in the management of resources to better serve their clients. The traffic police administration training program is structured to provide police officers with the techniques and procedures involved in Police Administration," he said.

"The men who complete this program can thus contribute more effectively for their departments and their communities," he said.

THE 24 AMERICAN officers were selected from 494 applicants on the basis of: (1) extent of the traffic problem in the applicants' city or state, (2) the managerial and training needs of his department, and (3) the applicant's abilities and potential.

The Traffic Institute was founded in 1934. Since then 1355 men from the U.S. and 31 foreign countries have graduated from the traffic police administration training program.

In addition to an extensive training program the institute, a service organization dedicated to the improvement of street and highway safety, engaged in traffic accident prevention programs that encompass direct technical field assistance, research and development and publication.

League of Women Voters

Significant Day

by CARROLL SALMAN

Whether you celebrated Aug. 26 by striking for women's rights as the National Organization for Women did, or whether you celebrated it as the 50th anniversary of women receiving the vote as the National League of Women Voters did, there was no mistaking the day as a significant one.

Although the League of Women Voters did not officially support the national women's strike called by NOW, individual Leaguers were free to participate as they saw fit, and there is not as great a gap between the goals of the two groups as it might seem at first glance.

The League's stance regarding the feminist strike was explained by Mrs. Lucy Wilson Benson, current national LWV president: "We're certainly not against what NOW is trying to accomplish — we simply have different objectives at this point in time. There's no sex discrimination in the important issues the League works on — voting rights, poverty, racism, pollution. We won the vote in 1920, and it's been 'right on' ever since."

CONSEQUENTLY, Leaguers will shortly begin work on the climactic celebration of their "Year of the Voter" — the November elections.

First in line is the voters' registration campaign in Des Plaines the first three Saturday mornings in September.

Volunteer registrars will be sworn in by Des Plaines City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach just before they begin their duties Saturday, Sept. 5. The ladies will be stationed in the hallway of the main city hall building (between the police and fire stations) from 9 a.m. to 12 noon Sept. 5, 12 and 19.

"We would especially welcome any 18-year-olds who would like to register to vote, even though the new federal law is still to be challenged," said Sally Gay, president of the Des Plaines league.

LEAGUERS WILL have a special "Youth Kit" available for the young people registering. The kit includes general information on the political process in this country, Mrs. Gay said.

"Young people will probably want to be more active politically now," she explained. "We feel that the League should play an educational role for them. This kit will provide a non-partisan background for the new voters. It's up to them to decide how much they wish to get involved and with which party."

There will be a 25-cent charge for the packet, which was prepared for local leagues by the National League of Women Voters.

Leaguers who will have some time available on any or all of these Saturday mornings are asked to call Nancy Sherden, the local Voters' Service Chairman, to volunteer their services.

MRS. GAY NOTED that such volunteer service could perform a double purpose in this 50th anniversary year of women's right to vote and the newly resurgent feminist movement in this country.

"It would be most appropriate for women to turn out in droves to vote this fall," she said. "They could accomplish a lot of their goals — both as leaguers and as liberated women."

There's no generation gap among Leaguers, it seems. Susan B. Anthony, suffrage leader born 150 years ago in Adams, Mass., believed the vote was the key to emancipation.

"The ballot is bread, education, equality — civil and political — hence woman needs the ballot," she declared during her long battle to get women the vote.

Incidentally, there are still three states which have not formally ratified the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution — Delaware, Mississippi and North Carolina. And it was only within the last year that legislatures in Florida, South Carolina, Georgia and Louisiana ratified the amendment after some prodding from their state Leagues.

Right on, then, in good conscience, no matter what your opinions on the women's liberation movement!

Welcome Maine Teachers

"We are pleased and proud you have chosen Maine Township high schools."

This was the way Dist. 207 Supt. Richard Short greeted 140 new full-time staff members Thursday during new teacher orientation. The new teachers were chosen from more than 7,000 applications, school officials said.

Short warned that Maine Township high schools "are not a haven from educational problems." He said Maine high schools have the same problems as all suburban high schools including an expanding student population, discipline and learning problems.

MAINE TOWNSHIP high schools have modern facilities and programs to deal with their problems because its school board and communities "are not afraid to spend money when they see it is needed," Short said.

"They expect good education, and they have provided excellent support."

The students the new teachers will deal with "reveal in excellence, and they are anxious to be involved and desperate to be heard," he said.

Teachers should set firm behavioral standards from the beginning and must be part of the "guidance team" and develop the rapport to "tactfully" guide the students, Short said.

Attention should not be paid just to the excellent student because, he said, "We believe that every teacher must work with every student."

Short said the administration will provide new teachers with assistance, advice and support.

NOTING THAT they were chosen because of experience, training and potential, he said the new teachers could benefit society "by just being the people you are."

The new teachers were also addressed by C.E. Millis, assistant business manager, who explained the school system's budgeting process, and by Michael J. Myers, administrative assistant, who explained new courses to be offered.

Merlin W. Schultz, coordinator of pupil personnel services, explained the guidance organization and urged the new teachers to make use of the guidance staff.

E. Gaydon Brandt, director of the Maine Township Special Education District, talked about the facilities for emotionally, mentally and physically handicapped in the district, which include a new center at Maine East.

Victor Costanza and Robert Jacobson explained the district's new facilities to help teachers cope with student learning problems.

Today, the new teachers will attend meetings in their schools to get acquainted with their buildings, classrooms, and general organizational procedures, district officials said.

Arrest Mexicans For Illegal Entry

The federal Immigration Authority in Chicago Wednesday morning arrested about 20 Mexican-American employees of the Klehm Nursery and charged them with being in the country illegally.

Chief of Investigation Robert Germain told the Herald his department learned illegal aliens were working at the nursery in unincorporated Arlington Heights, and sent six officers there at 5 a.m. to arrest them.

Germain said there was no trouble in arresting the aliens and that his office "was looking into why there was so many illegal aliens in Klehm's employ."

The Mexican-American men were taken to the immigration office in Chicago. "We permitted them to post $500 bond and be released provided they returned for deportation hearings," Germain said.

But most of the former Klehm workers decided not to post bond, he said. "A lot of them asked to be returned to Mexico at their own expense and we put them on the train," Germain said.

Germain termed the whole affair "as routine" and said his office was constantly on the lookout for people in this country illegally.

The Herald tried to contact Carl Klehm, owner of the Klehm Nursery, but he could not be reached for comment.

214 To Discuss Budget

The High School Dist. 214 board will hold a committee meeting Wednesday, Sept. 2, to further discuss the 1970-71 levy budget.

Monday night the board established Monday, Sept. 28, as the date for the legally required open hearing on the budget. After the hearing, the board will move to approve the budget.

Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business services, said that the district will be discussing income for 1971 and 1972, as the levy collects income for the following year. So, the board members agreed that they wanted to talk further about the budget.

In other action, the board, after a 60 minute closed session, approved the names of six police counselors to serve the district this fall.

The officers and the schools to which they are assigned are: Ralph Martisen, Arlington; Melvin Mack, Elk Grove; Wally Moist, Forest View; Michael Schenkel, John Hersey; Richard Yost, Prospect; and Clarence Trausch, Wheeling.

Man OK After Wounding Self

A Des Plaines man was taken to Holy Family Hospital early Thursday after accidentally shooting himself.

According to police, Bobby McCoy, 42, of 1685 Van Buren, accidentally discharged his pistol wounding himself in the right foot. The bullet lodged in his shoe.

Bomb Threat At Zayre's

Stores at the Market Place Shopping Center, Golf Rd., and Route 83, were evacuated yesterday morning after an anonymous phone caller told Des Plaines police a bomb had been planted in Zayre's Department Store.

According to police, the female caller said "There is a bomb in the market place." Police officer William Harz, who took the call, asked her, "A what?" and she answered, "A bomb at Zayre's Market Place," and hung up.

Police and firemen evacuated all the stores in the center and searched the Zayre's store but could find no bomb.

With the exception of Zayre's, the stores were reopened shortly after noon when the search was completed. Zayre's remained closed until 1 p.m. "As a precautionary measure," according to Asst. Store Manager Gene Weiser.

Thursday's bomb threat was the third the store has received in recent weeks. Weiser said he does not know why the store has been a target for the recent threats.

A store employee, Marlana Santy, told police she saw a man come into the store shortly before the bomb threat. She said the man carried a shopping bag and walked around the store for a while.

Miss Santy said when the store was cleared the man was the first person to leave but he was no longer carrying the bag.

According to police, the man was also seen in the store late Wednesday afternoon.

School Safety Drive Begins

The annual School's Open safety drive sponsored by the Chicago Motor Club has started in Des Plaines.

In its 23rd year, the safety drive has been credited with reducing the number of accidents involving school children on their way to and from classes.

Donald Reynolds of the Chicago Motor Club's Des Plaines office, 1789 Oakton St., launched the club's safety campaign by presenting Des Plaines Police Chief Arthur Hintz and Capt. Willard Blume with 40 safety posters.

Reynolds said the motor club's campaign is stressing the important role parents play in promoting school traffic safety. He said parents have the responsibility for teaching their youngsters to be cautious and safe pedestrians and showing them the safest route to and from school.

CHIEF HINTZ urged motorists to be particularly alert when traveling in the vicinity of schools and to reduce traffic speeds in school zones. He also cautioned drivers to be on the lookout for children crossing streets especially just before and after school hours when many youngsters will be on their way to and from their classes.

Reynolds also presented Hintz with a National Pedestrian Safety Citation in recognition of Des Plaines' efforts to save lives in traffic.

In announcing the commendation to Des Plaines, the Motor Club reported that the city has gone for one year without a pedestrian fatality.

Capt. Blume was saluted for his efforts in pedestrian program activities in Des Plaines and the club praised the efforts of local school officials, traffic engineers and police in helping Des Plaines gain the national pedestrian safety recognition.

Union Rep At Harper

A union official representing a group of 25 Harper maintenance custodial employees handed the Harper College Board an unsigned collective bargaining agreement last night.

Charles Foxworth, representing Local 11, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, said that the document represented the union membership of 24 employees.

Board President James Hamill accepted the document and explained that in the next meeting or two of the Harper Board the proposal will be discussed by the board members.

He also explained that the Harper administration will go over the agreement and submit a recommendation to the board.

Foxworth said the unionization had been "hanging fire since May," and that the union had not solicited Harper employees.

He said it was a "grassroots effort." The dialogue between Foxworth and the five board members present last night was marked by considerable cordiality.

Foxworth said that all management people "are fair people"; Board member John Haas, a former Dist. 214 board member, praised the union as "a very, very good organization to work with."

Local 11, which has its office in Maywood, also serves Elementary Dist. 15 (Palatine-Rolling Meadows) and Dist. 54 (Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates).

FAA Awaits Statements

Federal Aviation Administration investigators are still unable to interview the two men who were aboard a light plane that crashed Sunday near Palwaukee Airport, according to Neal Callahan, FAA spokesman.

The two men, Dan Johnson an instructor at Pal-Waukee and John McFadden of 650 Murray Ln., Des Plaines, are undergoing treatment at Holy Family Hospital. Johnson was removed from the intensive care unit Tuesday night. His condition is listed as fair. McFadden remains in serious condition.

Callahan said the first step in the investigation is to obtain statements from the persons aboard the aircraft and find out why they thought the crash occurred. "For instance if they said the engine stalled, then we check out the engine," he said.

"The passengers are the ones most able to tell us what happened before the plane hit the ground. It saves the taxpayers a lot of money if we wait to hear what they have to say before we start investigating," he said.

MAKE PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS PART OF YOUR DAILY LIFE

Historical Society Names Coordinator

Effective Sept. 1, Miss Mary V. Wright will serve as the Des Plaines Historical Society's coordinator.

She will conduct tours of the museum at 777 Lee St., Des Plaines, maintain a search for historic objects for preservation in the museum, plan displays for the museum, and be available to give talks on the history of the Des Plaines area to school classes and public organizations.

Further, Miss Wright will guide the society's various committees with the assistance of William Jedlick, assistant director of the Chicago Historical Society, who will act as a professional consultant to the local society.

MISS WRIGHT's appointment to her new position was accepted by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel and the city council following the recommendation of the executive board of the historical society, which has been searching for a full-time coordinator for the museum for several months.

Miss Wright is a graduate of St. Stephen, Maine Township High School West and Northwestern University. She received a master's degree in social studies education this summer from Northwestern and has been initiated into Phi Lambda Theta, a national association for women in education.

Miss Wright resides at 1703 Mannheim Rd., Des Plaines, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wright.

Sherry Designated Notre Dame Scholar

John F. Sherry, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Sherry, 1221 Welwyn Dr., Des Plaines, has been designated a Notre Dame Scholar by the University of Notre Dame.

In an international competition involving 4,900 applicants, Sherry is one of 225 entering freshmen to be honored for outstanding academic, extracurricular and personal achievements. He is a graduate of Notre Dame High School and intends to major in arts and letters at Notre Dame.

Academic Prowess Of Student Cited

Glenn R. Kalen, 8231 Twin Oaks Ln., Des Plaines, has been named to the University of Notre Dame Dean's Honor List for the past academic year. Included on this list are students who achieved the required 3.250 average (4.0 equals a "straight A" average).

Kalen is a junior in the College of Arts and Letters.

A total of 1,857 students made the Dean's List, and the percentages by class were: freshmen, 24 per cent; sophomores, 22 per cent; junior, 28 per cent and senior, 27 per cent.

From 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. (if it doesn't rain) more than 130 artists will display their wares on Ellinwood Street, between Lee and Graceland streets. Also, the more than 1,000 persons expected to attend the event, sponsored by the Des Plaines Art Guild, can treat themselves to refreshments.

Represent Toastmasters

Curt McKim from Elk Grove Village, district governor, and Dick Storer, senior lieutenant governor from Des Plaines, represented local Toastmasters in Portland, Ore., at the 39th annual international convention of Toastmasters International.

These men were among more than 1,000 delegates from throughout the United States and several other countries who participated in a series of business and educational sessions of the international communication and leadership organization.

Highlights of the convention included the group's annual business meeting and election of officers, and presentations by speech professor Alvin A. Goldberg of Northwestern University and Frank E. X. Dance of the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee. Management consultant David L. Schmidt was also featured on the program.

TOASTMASTERS International is a non-profit educational organization which has helped more than a million men through its programs of communication and leadership. Established in 1924, it now has over 3,500 clubs in the United States and 47 other countries.

Local clubs are in Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Schiller Park and Park Ridge. A new club will be opened in Elk Grove Village.

Each Toastmasters Club is limited to 40 members. Any men, 18 years of age or older that are interested in membership in the new Elk Grove Club or any other of the 60 in the Chicagoland area should contact district governor, Curt McKim, 159 Brantwood Ave. West, Elk Grove Village, phone 439-2045.

Golf, Sailing And Fishing Events Set

Golf, sailing, and fishing will be the activities featured at Lake Park during the Labor Day holiday.

Resident golfers will be playing for the Commissioner's Cup, an annual event, in which the man and woman with the lowest score receive a silver cup.

Last year's winners were Bob Peterson and Darlene Goslee with scores of 50 and 65.

Tee off begins at 8 a.m. and will end at 5 p.m. Those golfers not wishing to enter the tournament may tee off anytime during the regular hours.

Sailing fans can enter the Labor Day Regatta which features trophies in five sailing categories. The skipper's meeting will begin promptly at 1 p.m. The first race will start shortly thereafter. A large turnout is expected and spectators are encouraged to sit along the shore.

This summer, the catching of a 27-inch Northern Pike and several large bass at Lake Opeka has renewed the enthusiasm of local fishermen, park officials said. If the fish aren't prizes enough, trophies will be awarded for the largest and most fish caught.

Psychotherapies Topic Of Sessions

Forest Hospital in Des Plaines will present its first lecture of a seven-session course on The Group Psychotherapies Sept. 2 at 6 p.m.

Dr. Herzl Spuro, associate professor of psychiatry at John Hopkins University in Baltimore, will discuss an "Overview of Group Psychotherapies."

Spuro, who comes from Burlington, Vermont, is director of the Henry Phipps Psychiatric Clinic of John Hopkins and has served as director of the division of outpatient psychiatry and community mental health programs.

During the seven lecture-demonstration series authorities from the United States and Canada will acquaint members of the psychiatric profession with the various forms which group psychotherapy takes today. The lectures will be held Sept. through June at the hospital.

Reservations for the course can be made through the hospital.

Hospital Schedules Class For Parents

Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines will hold a four-week series of free classes for expectant parents beginning Sept. 3.

The classes, which will be conducted by nursing service members of the obstetrics department, is open to both mothers and fathers-to-be. The two-hour sessions will include a tour of the hospital obstetrics department, lectures and films on various topics.

Parents who are anticipating adoption are invited to a September 24 class to learn to care for their adopted infant. Registration for the course is encouraged.

Mass Provides Meaning

by WANDALYN RICE

The young priest sat quietly under the bare light bulb — listening. "Let's pray that what we have discovered will become a way of life," the young girl said softly.

Her prayer was the call to worship. The church was a small garage decorated with signs and posters.

"Christ had a dream of love, live it," one read.

"It is better to have loved and lost than to have hated and won," read another. The congregation sat on lawn chairs or on blankets on the concrete floor.

The priest wore a brown-striped knit shirt and slacks. Only minutes before he had been laughing and talking with the now-silent congregation.

NEXT TO THE PRIEST was a bare picnic table with only a chalice. The picnic table would soon be transformed into an altar where he would say the ancient Christian Eucharist rite.

But first, there was a discussion of readings that had been selected by members of the congregation and the priest.

The discussion was subdued, almost sad. Finally one girl spoke up. "Just sitting here with nobody saying anything is the most beautiful because what we feel just can't be said in words."

This mass was the last official celebration to be held by the Rev. Joe Sander for a mass group formed of area young people two years ago.

The group, composed of high school and college students, gathered at the home of one of the members for the celebration. Father Sander was being transferred to Peoria.

During the prayer of the faithful, one girl said, "I think we should be thankful that Joe has been with us for so long and pray for him and the kids who need him in Peoria."

THE STORY OF THE mass group, however, involves more than the story of the last mass Father Sander said Sunday.

It began two years ago when a young couple, Mike and Rosemary Green, moved into Arlington Heights.

"We had been involved in the Newman Club (a Catholic youth organization) at college," Green explained, "and when we went back to the regular church it was not what we wanted."

The Greens became involved with the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine (the Catholic Sunday School) and through that set up a mass group with young people from several parishes.

Youths from Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines were soon involved in the group and Father Sander, director of guidance at St. Viator's High School, became the group's regular priest.

During the next two years the group developed close relationships. Instead of a sermon, their services had dialogues between those attending and the priests. "It isn't something you can just go to, you kind of have to come a part of it," Green said.

THE DIALOGUES covered many topics — death, sex, drugs, parents and the meaning of the mass.

"In many ways these are ordinary kids with kids' problems," Green said, "but in a sense they are very different. I don't know how many kids are concerned about the mass they go to and who are upset when it doesn't go right."

Members of the group met every Wednesday night at the Greens' apartment to plan the topic for the dialogue and the readings for the next mass.

"It doesn't upset me when people say perience, Green said.

The whole process was a learning experience there are young people in your group who don't believe in God. The mass group is a way to come and hear other people's ideas about God."

Now the group is in transition. Not only is Father Sander leaving, but the Greens are leaving too.

"We have told them we are officially quitting on Sept. 1, but unofficially we will probably never quit," Green said.

Last week the group held a meeting to discuss the future. They decided to continue.

"The kids are beginning to realize how much they have," Green said.

THIS FALL THE masses will be held for one month at each of three to five parishes, with different priests officiating each week. The group is also arranging for some adult couples to fill the Greens' role.

St. James and Our Lady of the Wayside churches in Arlington Heights and St. Collette's School in Rolling Meadows have already agreed to let the mass groups use their facilities, and priests have agreed to say mass.

The group is also talking to two other parishes about meeting places.

The one-month-at-each-place arrangement will make transportation problems easier for the group. "Now people have to call every week to find out where we are," Green said.

Father Ray Devereux of St. James, who began a mass group for younger students last year, said he will help with the larger group.

The youthful mass groups are useful, he said, because "the kids are at the age where they are starting to search out the meaning of religion in their lives. When topics in the mass are related to their own lives and needs it will help."

In addition, he said, the participants are likely to bring about greater changes as they return to the regular church.

"THE FREEDOM IN the mass today is great and unless there is someone to say what to do with it, it can be lost," he said. "At first the mass groups are very important to the kids, but as they find their identity they find they have to

His election as a delegate was announced by Thomas C. Page, vice president and general manager of the Autolite-Ford Parts Division. The council met in Livonia, Mich., to discuss improved distribution and marketing policies.

Auto Insurance Is Necessary

What does the law have to say about the motorist who fails to carry automobile liability insurance?

According to the Illinois State Bar Association, a person may own and operate a motor vehicle in Illinois without insuring himself against his liability for damages in case of accident but, if an accident happens, the law does make certain demands upon him under penalty of the loss of his license.

By law, the uninsured driver who is involved in an accident resulting in property damage of $250 or more, or the injury of any person, must provide proof to the division of highways of the state department of public works and buildings that he is a financially responsible person. If he fails to provide this proof to the satisfaction of the law, his driver's license will be suspended and the license plates of his car may be confiscated.

Here is what the law expects by way of proof of financial responsibility on the part of the uninsured motorist who has an accident:

HE MUST DEPOSIT cash or a surety bond with the state in an amount required to cover his possible liability for damage claims resulting from the accident. This requirement is waived only if the uninsured motorist is freed by final court adjudication from any liability, or if he executes a duly acknowledged written agreement with the injured party or parties providing for payment of all claims, or if he obtains signed releases from all persons involved in the accident absolving him from liability.

He must obtain insurance to cover his liability in case of future accident in the amount of at least $5,000 for damage to the property of others; $10,000 for the injury or death of one person; $20,000 for injury or death of two or more persons in the same accident (A certificate verifying that insurance in the required amounts has been obtained must be supplied by the insuring company.)

This requirement is waived only if the uninsured motorist instead deposits cash or a surety bond in the amount of $25,000 with the state to cover his possible liability for future accident.

IF, IN ORDER to meet the financial responsibility requirements, the motorist obtains insurance, this insurance must be kept in force for a period of three years and his failure to do so will result in the loss of his driving privilege.

Warning: that coverage in the minimum amounts provided in the law is not intended as a guide to desirable insurance protection. It points out that actual damage claims resulting from an accident could run much higher, especially in view of the high cost of hospital care, medical treatment and substantial loss of income which an injured person might suffer, to say nothing of damages due to a person's death.

According to ISBA, many insurance experts and lawyers who try damage suits in court favor insurance coverage in at least the following amounts

The Way We See It

Ogilvie In National Spotlight

Two resolutions approved by the recent National Governors Conference had the effect of placing Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie in the national limelight.

The resolutions, introduced by Ogilvie, strike at the heart of major political and social problems: urban transportation and the declining role of the states.

Ogilvie introduced, and got passed, a resolution calling for establishment of a federal trust to funnel funds to states with mass transit financial problems. Such funding is essential, and Ogilvie's resolution could be helpful in breaking down the federal emphasis on spending for highways.

A second resolution called for a U.S. Constitutional Convention to provide for federal tax sharing. It was a blunt power play, aimed at forcing Congress to approve a tax sharing program rather than face a Constitutional Convention. And it had that effect, forcing a House committee chairman to release tax sharing legislation. Should Congress defeat the measure, however, the threat of a Convention still hangs as an implied threat.

While we have endorsed federal tax sharing, we are inclined to agree with Illinois Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, who said, "We have to stop the thinking that if we can't get a pet legislative program through Congress that we amend the federal constitution."

The strength of our Constitution is that it is not a piece of legislation. If Congress doesn't pass needed laws, it should be replaced, not circumvented.

The Political Beat

Nixon Needs A 'Rabbit'

by CHARLES E. HUFNAGEL

Charles Hufnagel

Whether the word has gone out or not indications are that the financial and business community of the nation are aware that the Nixon Administration expects more than a complacent sitting on hands during the coming hectic 1970 election campaign. The GOP has to get control of at least one of the houses of Congress to bring the President any comfort for the Battle of 1972. By a bit of spectacular fortune, Republican strategists believe control of the Senate can be accomplished. It will take a landslide to swing the House, something that defies all optimism at this time. Can Mr. Nixon pull a rabbit out of a hat, any kind of hat?

THIS MAKES THE Illinois Senate contest now warming up between Adlai III and Senator Ralph T. Smith a key decision in the Nixon plans. The GOP has selected "law and order" as the key issue in the campaign which means clamping down on the college kids and riots and upholding the arm of the police to protect citizens wherever they may be and whoever they may be. It's a Republican challenge to patriotism.

The Democrats will stick to the "bread and butter" issue which has been their staple since FDR took command in 1932. They are encouraged because they say take home home pay not only affects the unprivileged and the low-income people but in this era of advanced technology a recession-inflation puts high income people with college degrees in the ranks of the unemployed.

With the fading out of space and military procurements in various industries, news reports tell of some top income people biting the dust. Will they and should they take it without protest? The Democrats argue that the Nixonites are looking at unemployment and take home pay through the eyes of the 1930's. There is in progress a technological slowdown in a technological society. The college trained are hit as much as the uneducated. Adlai backers are saying it calls for a new deal.

The Democrats will also charge that the Nixon Administration is mixing the old and new economics, a party managed economy with the ancient laissez faire. Such policy with recession-inflation, the Democrats predict, will lead to disaster.

But the big disenchantment is with the Nixon foreign policy which despite Lyndon Johnson's bold adventure in Vietnam in the name of American defense has some Democrats at Washington worried. They see in West Germany's deal with Russia a lost confidence in the American military to make its presence acknowledged around the world. The Soviet boldness everywhere they claim testifies to what is happening.

SO IT COULD very well happen from the events between now and Nov. 3 on the international scene that the GOP "law and order" and the Democrats "bread and butter" will be required to step aside as "the issue." A parent Administration optimism is no safe guideline in a world where distrust prevails on all sides with trade wars growing in intensity and national currencies wobbling. It's the perfect setting for the man on horseback.

There are some who will shrink from so gloomy an outlook. They should be reminded of Spengler's declaration that "optimism is cowardice." It can become a fear to face the realities, to examine them intelligently and measure their impact. The domestic and international situation must be handled realistically by both candidates in the election campaign otherwise Illinois citizens could be voting for self-deception.

such action and these circumstances are few and have stringent rules associated with them.

POLICEMEN ARE taught to use their guns with restraint and care. This, too, is good. But I still shudder when I think about the potential dangers that are inherent in the gun. Not just using it — but carrying it too.

A Gun Takes On Meaning

by CYNTHIA TIVERS

Once a month Des Plaines policemen go to the city garage to practice combat shooting. The practice is done to keep the men acquainted with the feel of their weapon and improve their precision.

Wednesday I watched some of them shooting on the police range. The men used a human paper silhouette as their target, and they shot their rounds of ammunition while being timed.

That was the first time I had ever heard or seen a gun being shot and it was some experience.

FIRST, OF COURSE, was my reaction to the loud noise a gun makes when it's fired. Then I looked closer and noticed how a man's body shook after he fired his gun and I saw the spark and smoke which was caused by the explosion of the gun as the bullet left it. And I saw a piece of lead which was flattened and mangled after hitting its target.

And then I really started thinking about guns and their potential dangers. Before this I always thought about guns in a nebulous way. But now the gun had taken on new meaning to me — it was not just the thing a policeman carries in his holster like he wears his uniform but a weapon — a dangerous weapon.

The kind of mechanism that you wouldn't want too many people to have just because it's too easy for a gun to be handled carelessly or used for the wrong reason.

And my train of thought continued: A gun could mean death to any living creature or it could mean serious injury or permanent disability — just because someone pulled a trigger — once.

But it's not the gun which is responsible for the act of shooting. It's the person holding the gun — pulling the trigger.

According to Des Plaines police, no one member of the department has intentionally shot his gun at anyone over the past several years — which is a heartening record. And each man is taught just what circumstances call for

Quota On Human Error?

In reply to the letter of Aug. 20, to the person who requested his name be withheld.

Just as you vigorously objected to the article on ticket quotas, may I object to the reasoning behind your letter. Definitely, as you stated, there usually are contributing factors to all accidents: designs of roads, road surfaces, poor lighting, etc. And who among us can state that anyone designing a roadway, or any roadway, ever claimed it to be hazard-free. However, the major contributing factor to all accidents is human error, that error being committed by a person behind the wheel of a car, who believes as you lead me to believe of you, that he is one of those privileged few who laws do not apply to.

IF YOU THINK 90 miles an hour is a safe speed, perhaps 90 miles an hour should be a legal speed. But if said motorist, going 90 miles an hour, kills your child, or causes an accident which disables you or one of your loved ones, does that make it illegal as well as unsafe in your mind?

I also resent the term "brainwashed" as used in your letter. I am very proud to be the wife of one policeman and daughter of another, and no time has my husband spoken of being pressured, forced or coerced into writing a ticket

'Little Pay Lots Of Abuse'

for something he himself did not judge to be illegal or unsafe. He writes as he sees them; as I'm sure 90 per cent of the officers do.

You speak of intelligent people not supporting the police. Who do you intelligent people call when you need help of someone has deprived or tried to deprive you of your rights or belongings? I have had dealings with various police departments and have always been treated courteously and as an intelligent human being, and have reciprocated as such.

When people realize policemen are human beings, screened very carefully before they are hired, and get damn little salary for the physical and verbal abuse they put up with from the intelligent people such as yourself, they might appreciate the job these men do, and yes, even the tickets they give us intelligent human beings to try and prevent us from killing each other for lack of common sense.

Carnival Takes Volunteers

In response to Mr. Robert Bergman's negative comments regarding the Palatine Legion-Lions Carnival, I am curious to know if he is a member of either organization. In all probability he is not, or he would not have offered these comments.

As for the number of attractions offered... this is a very limited area due to the lack of volunteer workers of both organizations. Do you realize that each booth, game, and ticket cage is manned by a member of the Legion or Lions who have given up many of their leisure hours to help out? Attractions are also limited because of certain law statutes.

Refreshments are available only through volunteer Legion Auxiliary members. Their work begins two months before carnival time ordering food, pop, etc. Many, many hours are given in the preparation and serving the food. You could almost say that this part of the carnival is a public service as the Auxiliary realizes a very small profit; sometimes none. General attendance has much to do with the competition of other civic events on the same dates, vacations, and last but not least, the weather and the elements.

I AGREE WITH Mr. Bergman's disturbance at having to pay 50 cents for a can of beer. I understand one has to pay the same or more for a beer at ball games, sport events, special events, race track, etc., and those are all profit making enterprises. But he must admit, the beer was cold, and it was in an easy to handle can and not a flimsy paper cup.

He states, "perhaps if next year we were less worried about making money and more concerned about providing some genuine attractions, 'we' might be surprised at the results." WE, the Legion and Lions have to overcome many obstacles each year, and yet always do the best we can. Indeed WE are rightfully concerned about making money as both organizations are non-profit and the proceeds of this event are used for charities, too numerous to list, Veterans, Service Men, and for the welfare and service of the community, state, and nation.

Next time Mr. Bergman, know the facts before you compare.

Rotary: Thank You; Sorry...

May we take this opportunity to thank all of the people (both young and not-so-young) who attended the circus sponsored by the Palatine Rotary this past Monday afternoon and evening. Both shows were completely filled to overflow capacity. Through gifts of local businesses we were able to invite several hundred underprivileged children, including children from Camp Reinberg, Clearbrook, Countryside, Norwesco's Headstart, Maryville City of Youth and Wheeling Service Corps, to the circus.

Our financial success from this venture is not so important to Rotary as our goodwill and respect in this community.

WE, THEREFORE, sincerely apologize for: 75-cent reserved seat section which should have been pre-advertised, the commercialism of selling many items during the show, and the insufficient seating space.

Some of these inconveniences were policy of the circus management over which we had no control and received no profit, our only profit being derived from the sale of tickets.

With these facts in mind we again say that we are sorry that all were not pleased or satisfied, but we are truly grateful to this community for their fine support. Thank you.

The Equal Rights Fight

A Wider Choice In Education

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(Second in a series)

It is difficult for a young girl growing up in America to understand the double message. On one hand she is told she can do anything that she wants to do.

Naturally she can go to college, but the important things are that she is "supposed" to get married and she is "supposed" to have children because that is the role for a woman.

"Our educational system is not adaptable to the needs of individuals nor does it work around the potentials of women," said Mrs. Eugenia Chapman, of Arlington Heights, state assemblywoman.

The Task Force on Women's Rights and Responsibilities, established by President Nixon in October of 1969, recommended that the commissioner of education establish a woman's unit in his office to lead efforts to end sex discrimination in education.

IN A REPORT published in April, the Task Force states, "Discrimination in education is one of the most damaging injustices women suffer. It denies them equal education and equal employment opportunity, contributing to a second-class image."

Women are on a backslide. The percentage of graduate degrees awarded women today is lower than in 1950.

"It's still a held belief that men need and should have education, but it's purely nice for women," said Mrs. Chapman.

Infant girls are handed dolls and tea sets. Boys receive basketballs and model airplanes. The roles have been set. Separated distinguished avenues continue throughout schooling.

Educators have been urged to examine curriculum at the secondary level, if not earlier, which tends to segregate the boys from the girls even before they join the labor market.

"DON'T PUT THE label 'women's work' on a job and keep women in the traditional occupations — secretaries, nurses, teachers or assistants," says Mrs. Elizabeth D. Koonz, director of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Labor Department.

The National Education Association (NEA) states that schools are not preparing girls for lucrative jobs. Yet the boys are introduced to the sciences, business management and the top professions of law, medicine, engineering and politics.

The American Association of University Women is an organization of college-educated women who seek to continue their intellectual growth and promote other women to greater heights in education.

"We are one of the foremost organizations that have constantly plugged for the status of women," said Mrs. Bryce Engle, a member of the Northwest Suburban Chapter in Des Plaines. "Others have come and gone. Two years ago AAUW affirmed its original purpose to promote equality for women."

"HAVING BENEFITTED ourselves by the advantages of higher education, we feel we have a special responsibility to society to continue our growth. Through study groups we keep our members informed and acquaint them with ways to put their talents to use in the community," said Mrs. Robert Jacks, president of AAUW's Arlington Heights branch.

AAUW is concerned particularly with the limited opportunities for women interested in doctorate and postdoctorate work.

With an endowment fund presently surpassing $6 million, AAUW international and national fellowships are awarded to women who wish to continue in study past the master's degree level.

FEW OTHER PROGRAMS offer fellowships to women. Those that do give men top priority. If women are to receive assistance, AAUW members feel, very largely women are going to have to provide it. And, more than 95 per cent of those women awarded AAUW fellowships do complete their studies.

"We feel there are now many responsible and talented women who are available and willing to fill positions on the university academic level," said Mrs. Jacks.

This is in answer to college presidents or deans who comment that they would be more than eager to employ more women on the college level if qualified women were available.

Yet even more pathetic is the lack of avenues open to the mature woman who desires to resume her education by either finishing up a degree interrupted by marriage or lack of money, or continuing in graduate study.

MRS. CHARLES TOOT, state chairman of the status of women and resolutions for AAUW, was encouraged to return to school to obtain her master's in physical therapy. She is 34 and the mother of two.

At one school Mrs. Toot was told she was too old and second, they were not anxious to enroll married women with children.

"I realize physical therapy is an unusual field," said Mrs. Toot, "but what really amazed me was that I was so naive. I thought I could just go back to school, but I found what I think is typical with most schools. They prefer to accept their own recent graduates."

Although few in number, there are some schools which are initiating programs specifically geared to the needs of mature women and housewives. Mundelein College in Chicago is one.

MORE THAN 200 females will be returning in the fall to Mundelein to finish a degree which was in some way interrupted.

An educational plan based on a special counseling service was created to enable a woman to re-enter the academic world at precisely the right level.

While most attend regular classes, four hour one-day seminars have also been set up to enable those women tied more closely to home to conveniently arrange for baby sitters. Classroom work remains the same.

Harper College right in this area is also beginning to recognize the need for continuing education for women.

The first step was taken in the formation of a Citizens Committee on Women. Beginning fruits will be born in October at Harper's one-day introspection type workshop, "Expanding Horizons."

"WE HOPE TO EXPOSE women to their own feelings and fears," said Dave Groth, assistant to the dean in continuing education, "to help them get out of the homes if they choose, whether it be to return to school, work, go into volunteer work or politics."

"I think there is a real need in aiding women to realize their resources and potentials."

Life is full of fun —sometimes a little too full.

There are as many rats as there are people in the United States. Either directly, or through the lice and germs that live in their fur, rats spread rabies, typhus, plague, amoebic dysentery and more than 30 other diseases. A major battle of the war against rats will be held Sept. 13 through Sept. 19 with the observance of National Rodent Control Week, sponsored by garbage can manufacturers. Health authorities claim rats could be literally wiped out within six months if all households and businesses provided adequate storage for garbage. (Rats are cannibalistic and would eat each other if their supply of garbage were shut off).

After the first week or two in September cicada killers will no longer bug you if they have been dive-bombing around your lawn and garden. The cicada killer is a large wasp about 1½ inches long with a yellow and black body, formidable-looking but not considered vicious. Like most insects of their type, they inflict a terrific sting when provoked. Their biggest kick is scaring kids, buzzing the begonias and falling into martinis on the patio.

For years people have referred to the "wildflower preservation list" as THE LIST like it was the Index. But how can we expect people to heed the list when it has never to my knowledge been printed in the media? For the benefit of the conservation-minded a clip-and-save list follows:

THESE WILDFLOWERS are protected by Illinois law: bloodroot, Columbine, gentian, lady's slipper, lotus and trillium.

The following are not to be picked in Illinois (no law protects them, only the good judgment of nature lovers): adder's tongue, bearberry, bellwort, bird-foot violet, bishop's cap, bluebell, blueberry, bluest, blue-eyed Mary, bunchberry, cardinal flower, celandine poppy, Dutchman's breeches, false dragonhead, fire pink, flowering dogwood, gerardia, ginseng, goldenrods, gold-thread, grass of Parnassus, harbinger of spring, harebell, hepatics, Indian pipe, Jack-in-the-pulpit, Jacob's ladder, lily (rare ones), leadplant and meadow beauty.

Orchids, painted cup, partridgeberry, pipissewa, pitcher plant, poppy mallow, prairie clover, prairie parsley, purple coneflower, redbud, rose mallow, sabatia, shadbush, shinleaf, shooting star, squirrel corn, trailing arbutus, turtlehead, twinflower, twinleaf, wild crab-apple, wild plum, wintergreen, wood anemone, yellow-eyed grass.

THE PEOPLE WHO wouldn't know a pipissewa from a bluet even if they saw it, but wish they did, may contact the Wild Flower Preservation Society, Illinois chapter. Leon F. Urbain, 343 S. Dearborn, Room 1702, Chicago, 60604, is the president. The group has programs on identification with pertinent commentary. (Garden club program chairmen take note.)

Summer slump got your lawn looking tired? Too little food and too many bugs are a summer lawn's worst enemies. Frequent, thorough waterings, especially during dry periods, will do wonders for most lawns. Watering helps keep the bugs in check, because they like it dry. Spectracide, containing Diazinon, is one product recommended by the National Audubon Society (bird lovers) as a broadly-effective, short-lived garden chemical for controlling lawn pests. Irregular dry, yellow patches or a generally ragged lawn are two tell-tale signs of insects. And a little shot of slow-release fall's-a-coming fertilizer is now in order.

'Mary Sunshine' Opens Sept. 18

"Little Mary Sunshine," Des Plaines Theatre Guild's opening show of its 25th anniversary season, is now in rehearsal. Music On Stage has merged with DPTG to present the musical Sept. 18, 19, 25 and Oct. 2 and 3.

Directors are Tom Ventress and John Shaw.

While Little Mary, Sandy Grabowski of Prospect Heights, and Capt. Warrington, Carl Gustafson of Crystal Lake, are picking posies and hollyhocks in the garden, Nancy Twinkle, played by Karen Mason, and Cpl. Billy Jester, Doug Patterson, both of Arlington Heights, manage to get into the act when they dream of Vienna and days gone by.

Adorning the stage with beauty and versatility are the young ladies from Eastchester Finishing School played by Barbara Curren, Des Plaines; Jackie Shadinger, Chicago; Beth Vandenberg, Wheeling; Karol Verson, Niles; Marey Vosburgh, Mount Prospect; and Sue Wille, Des Plaines.

Also appearing in "Little Mary Sunshine" are Ron Chesmore, Mount Prospect; Dan Issac, Skokie; Ron Napier, Schaumburg; Don Potter and Roy Quid, Arlington Heights; and Jim Tuversen, Buffalo Grove.

Also Fred Holper, Chicago; Ed Sauer, Des Plaines; and Chuck Smith of Arlington Heights.

Tickets are now available through the box office, 296-1211 after noon daily.

Performance Free For Engaged Couples

Realizing that romance is a year-around phenomenon, not necessarily limited to springtime and the month of June, the Country Club Theatre in Mount Prospect is offering two free tickets to "Luv," its current production, to couples who are contemplating marriage during the current run of the play which is through Oct. 4.

Engaged couples may see the gratis performance of "Luv" any evening, Sunday through Thursday. Reservations, 259-5400.

Witt Builds Cleabrook Center by 1,100%

by MIKE KLEIN

Six years ago, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded served 26 people. Then Byrn T. Witt became executive director. The school underwent a name change — it's now just Clearbrook Center — and the number of persons served has increased more than 1,100 per cent since Witt took over his position.

Current figures show about 300 physically or mentally handicapped persons of all ages enrolled in Clearbrook programs, including the Clearbrook-Maine school the center operates in Des Plaines.

Witt came to Clearbrook, which is headquartered in Rolling Meadows, after a four-year stint as director of the South-west School for Retarded Children in Chicago. Before that, he served two years with the Chicago Board of Education.

His position with Chicago schools followed a Master's Degree in speech pathology and audiology at Northwestern University.

HE RECEIVED his Bachelor's Degree in speech correction and English from the University of New Mexico in 1955. Witt, currently working on a Doctorate Degree from Northern Illinois University, has "always been interested in special education and working with retarded children through speech therapy."

Because of his present position, however, Witt hasn't been a practicing speech therapist for three or four years. "Right now, I'm more of a generalist," Witt said. "Most of my work at Clearbrook is administration but I'm still involved in the programs."

"Also, when kids and parents come to the Center, I sit in on the team that decides who will be admitted and who leaves."

Since Witt became executive director, Clearbrook has added vocational rehabilitation, homebound, evaluation and referral service, and counseling programs.

FROM ITS OPENING in 1956, Clearbrook traditionally operated only a Day School for retarded and multiply handicapped children.

The addition of several new programs, especially the vocational rehabilitation, demonstrates an unexpected trend that has "overtaken" Clearbrook, according to Witt.

"Our programs for children are increasing but the requests for adult services are increasing more rapidly," Witt said.

"Eventually what will happen is that we'll have many kids in adult programs. We have a projected figure of about 80 adults for the coming year."

That's a large jump. Last year's average daily attendance listed between 50 and 60 adults.

CLEARBROOK, like many similar schools and hospitals, ran into financial bind early this summer when Gov. Richard Ogilvie attempted to cut the mental health budget.

Pressure from legislators and mental health associations forced Ogilvie to restore $25 million of the slightly over $30 million he had slashed.

The financial situation was complicated by a state legislature ruling that townships could no longer donate surplus funds to private institutions.

Last year, Clearbrook received $120,000 from the Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Maine Townships. This year's projected income would have been $160,000 according to Witt.

Until June, Witt thought Clearbrook might have to cut back staff or programs, and maybe both.

"But three things helped us," Witt said. "First of all, there's the $214,000 from the Department of Mental Health. Without that, we'd have to have let some staff go."

Unfortunately, the $214,000 represents just slightly more than a third of Clearbrook's $625,000 budget. In 1964, the Mental Health Department awarded Clearbrook $20,000, half the school's budget.

THIS YEAR'S appropriation is over $70,000 less than Clearbrook asked for, Witt said. And the percentage per student gets smaller every year, he added.

"Secondly, the (state) legislature passed a bill which allows (public) school districts to purchase services for children five through 21 years of age," Witt said.

"Thirdly, our board of directors decided to use some of our reserve which isn't much but rather than make a cut-back, we'll maintain our programs by using our operating reserve."

More growth will typify Clearbrook in coming years. The school already operates a Clearbrook-Maine Center in Des Plaines. Negotiations should soon be completed for a building lease in Elk Grove Village. This site will serve an estimated 150 adults in an expansion of vocational rehabilitation, Witt said.

More programs are on the drawing board. Many would have been implemented this year had the financial problems not arisen.

A lot of progress has been made. More will come, thanks to Byrn Witt

Teachers Ratify Salaries

by KAREN RUGEN

After three months of negotiations with the school board, School Dist. 26 teachers have ratified a salary schedule that increases their pay.

Yesterday afternoon about 130 teachers voted unanimously to accept a salary proposal drawn up by teacher and board negotiation teams. The school board must approve the schedule at a meeting next Tuesday night before it is formally adopted.

The new schedule includes increases in pay raises for each salary level. A teacher is placed on a salary step according to the number of years of teaching experience and college training he has had.

Under the proposed schedule a teacher with no experience and a bachelor's degree would receive $7,500 for the school year as compared to the present $7,000. The teacher with a bachelor's degree could rise up to step 12 and receive $11,625, an increase of $1,425. A teacher with a master's degree could start at $8,350 working up to step 16 and a salary of $14,200. Now he gets $7,600 and can rise up to $12,150.

THE PROPOSED schedule also provides for a $375 increase for each salary increase after the third step. Louis Bissa, past president of the River Trails Education Assn. (RTEA), said that previously there was no set increase and it would depend upon the decision of the school board for each teacher.

"This is what we really dickered for because some of the older teachers thought they weren't getting as much as the younger ones," he said.

The proposed schedule also includes increases to teacher benefits from health and accident insurance. The number of sick days a teacher can accumulate is also increased to 150 from 120.

RTEA is recognized as an official bargaining agent in the proposal. This is only a formal repetition of a previous agreement between the board and association in May when a procedural agreement was signed allowing the teachers' group to negotiate with the board.

BISSA SAID THE teachers are satisfied with the agreement. "We gave and they gave. We're happy and I think the board will be happy."

He said he thinks the board's approval will be just a formality.

"My personal opinion is that the board will very likely ratify it," said the district Supt. Winston Harwood. "But I long since learned you can never tell."

He said that all contracts that have been signed with teachers including a notification that salary would be contingent upon approval of a schedule.

North American women's pairs finished fourth and ninth also in Stockholm. In fourth place were bridge teacher Sally Johnson of Westport, Conn., and Bea (Mrs. Howard) Schenken of New York. Sally and Bea have ranked among our top women players for many years, although neither can match Mary Jane Farrell's record.

Sally and Bea both like to bid, so that they reached four spades with today's collection of 25 high-card points and no singletons anywhere. Sally might well have dropped the bidding at two spades and Bea could have signed off at three instead of going on but there Sally was in this doubtful game.

She covered the 10 of hearts lead with dummy's king because she wanted East to play the ace of hearts if he held it. East obliged and returned the suit, whereupon Sally was ready to operate.

There were several ways to go after 10 tricks. One would be to try to clear the diamond suit. That would fail because West would overruff the third diamond lead and East would still make two trump tricks. Sally gave just a little thought to that play and proceeded to adopt the line that was most likely to bring the contract home.

She led a low spade. West's 10 held the trick and he led his 10 of diamonds. Sally won in dummy and led a spade to her ace. When both opponents followed, it was all over but the mopping up.

Sally cashed her high cards and started to crossruff diamonds and clubs. It didn't matter who held the last trump or when he got to take it. That would be the only trick for the defense.

New Suffrage Stamp Issued

Apparently, the demands of many women's liberation-minded females to "stamp out inequality" has been taken literally by the federal government.

A new postage stamp, commemorating the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage, will go on sale today at the local post offices.

Yesterday, the new six-cent stamp went on sale in Adams, Mass., according to representatives of the League of Women Voters in the suburbs.

Adams was chosen for the "First Day of Issue" of the woman suffrage stamp because it is the birthplace of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer crusader of women's rights.

Miss Anthony was founder and president of National American Woman Suffrage Association, which became the League of Women Voters (LWV) in 1920. SINCE ITS founding, the LWV has been concerned with emphasizing the importance of the vote in our society.

In launching the League's 50th anniversary celebration, President Richard M. Nixon said: "For fifty years the League of Women Voters has provided Americans in every state with information on candidates and issues."

The President went on to say, "It has furnished a non-partisan platform for which all candidates may be seen and heard. These activities have strengthened government and have helped to sustain the public weal."

To mark its 50th year, the LWV designated 1970 as the year of the Voter. This commemorates also the 100th anniversary of the 15th amendment affirming black male suffrage.

Man Is Charged With Coat Theft

A 24-year-old Des Plaines man was charged with theft Tuesday after a security agent for Wieboldt's department store at Randolph Shopping Center in Mount Prospect signed a complaint against him.

Stephen Brennan, 625 Howard St., was charged with the theft of a man's brown leather coat, valued at about $140.

He was released by Mount Prospect police on $1,000 bond and is scheduled to appear Sept. 24 in Mount Prospect court.

Fritz Peterson...A Yankee, A Winner

"A season can seem too long... except when you're trying to catch Baltimore... or win 20 games."

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

They arrived shortly before noon at White Sox Park.

They arrived without fanfare, without any youngsters shouting, "Where's Mickey? Hey, isn't that Whitey? Hi ya, Roger."

There was no Mickey Mantle, no Whitey Ford, no Roger Maris.

Those were the New York Yankees of 1970, and nobody was there to greet them as they arrived at the park.

Only minutes before an usher had said, "The Yankees? I don't know where they dress. Ask that guy over there in the reception area."

The usher was standing just a few feet from the Yankees' dressing room door.

The New York Yankees dominated baseball on and off, but mostly on, for the better part of 40 years. There were other teams and other players, good ones and even great ones, but the Yankees were the centrifugal force, the standard, the gauge, by which other teams were measured and by which other teams measured themselves.

New York, or so it seemed to outsiders, had the game of baseball all to itself, had it all locked up behind the highways of the sprawling city. For the fans in the provinces, it was merely to watch and hate, or grudgingly admire.

When the Yankees arrived at a park, they were besieged by autograph seekers. Youngsters waited outside the dressing room doors and hoped to get a glimpse of a Mantle or a Ford or a Maris or a Berra. Even the ushers knew where the team dressed.

When would it ever end?

And then — thud. For the rest of the league, it had a beautiful sound. The Yankees started to slide. It was as though the old man had left home, and bawling guy he may have been, it was strange without him.

While the new, lightweight Yankees were being built, New York fans slipped away in hordes to watch the Mets.

It's still that way although sports fans, fickle as they are, started to come back to Yankee Stadium when the club gave Baltimore a good run early this season and got some national attention.

"But they left as soon as we went into a losing streak," Yankee pitcher Fritz Peterson said last weekend as he sat in the dugout at White Sox Park.

"The fans will come back. We're better than the Mets right now, and I think we have a real shot at it next year. I said last winter that we'd finish second this season and then win the division in 1971. I still feel that way.

"Baltimore has some great players, but they're showing their age. We're a team of the future."

And the future of the New York Yankees rests on the broad shoulders of such talented performers as Fred (Fritz) Peterson, the pride of the Paddock area, a young man who grew up in Mount Prospect and pitched for Arlington High School.

Peterson is in his fifth year in the major leagues and he just keeps getting better. He was named to the All-Star team in July, and he's 63-61 in his Yankee career, a record that has been carved out without much offensive support.

The Yankees just don't score many runs for Peterson, and the 29-year-old southpaw lost two decisions in four days last week while his teammates failed to dent the scoreboard.

"This has been a strange year for me," says Peterson. "After last year (17-16) I just had a feeling this was going to be one of those extremes a pitcher has, either a great year or a lousy one. It hasn't been either."

"Making the All-Star team meant a lot, it was a goal I always had, but I can't really be that satisfied with the way I've been going."

"Early in the year I was getting the wins but not pitching that well. Later, and it reminds me of last year, I felt my pitching had improved but there aren't any runs."

"I used to worry when I got beat in a close game or was shut out," Fritz continued, "but that's something else I can't let bother me any more. I know they rate me on how I pitched, not on how the team scored behind me."

When Peterson, a guy who likes fun, enjoys life, was breaking in as a Yankee rookie in 1966, he was always a worrier. He worried about being sent to the minors, about being traded, about not sticking around long enough to qualify for the pension fund, about not making the All-Star team.

"It's so important for the future of your family to make the pension plan and now I've made it. I certainly hope to be around much longer, but you never know. There was always that chance to goof up."

Maybe he still worries — just a little.

Fritz has made steady progress in his pro career. Off his excellent 1969 record, it can be estimated he moved into the $35,000 bracket for his fifth full year with the Yankees.

All along the line, Peterson had two big pluses going for him. He was blessed with a good arm and he never was bothered by control problems. He only walked 42 hitters last summer in 272 innings.

"Starting out," he explains, "I just never had the kind of fast ball to make up for a lack of control. I wasn't very big so I just worked on getting my breaking ball over the plate."

Peterson, who has never missed a start in five years because of injuries, has five pitches now, pitches he can rely on, pitches that add to his effectiveness. "I picked up the screw ball at the end of last year and learned the slider from Mel (Stottlemyre). There's the fast ball, curve, and the change-up I learned from Bouton."

Bouton! Jim Bouton. Yes, the author of the controversial "Ball Four" book that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn helped make into a best-seller.

"No, I haven't read the book," Peterson said. "I always liked Jim, we roomed together, and he's really a great guy. Sure, the players talk about the book, and I know I'm in it too, but I just haven't read it. I do know that a lot of things Jim said two years ago that got people mad at him are proving to be true today."

As Fritz Peterson looks back on his baseball days as a youngster in Mount Prospect, and as an American Legion and high school pitcher, he admits that he's still surprised by his pro career.

"You know, when I go back to Arlington High School, and look at that picture in the foyer, of the little guy with glasses, this is all kind of hard to believe."

Peterson was 5-7, 155 pounds as a senior at Arlington. Only one scout talked to him and "that was just for a couple minutes." Today, Fritz stands six feet and weighs a solid 205.

"I always wanted to play baseball. My dad (who now lives in Crystal Lake) helped me but never pushed me into the game. He let me do what I wanted. I did the pushing. At night, I'd wait for him by the corner at the train station with my glove, and we'd play ball all the time."

Fritz fondly remembers those days in boys baseball. "A win never means more than it does to a boy in Little League. It's quite a feeling at that age to walk off the mound with victory. It's not quite that feeling now, however satisfying any win has to be."

Peterson, who is married and has one child (a second is due in November), teaches at his alma mater Northern Illinois University in the winter months. He has a master's degree in physical education.

He signed a pro contract with the Yankees after they saw him pitch seven innings of shutout ball for Northern Illinois on a southern trip in 1963. They only scouted him once.

This very personable and articulate 29-year-old places a high value on a college education. "For a boy starting out today," Fritz says, "he shouldn't sign right out of high school for anything under $50,000. I mean that. I know it sounds high, but just how many make it in baseball? And that college degree is so very important. After he's got some college in, it's different, easier to finish up, but right out of high school, he shouldn't sign for anything less than $50,000."

Peterson admits that life in pro baseball has its problems ("My wife and I have moved 22 times in the past six years") and when asked what he would do to the season if he were the commissioner, he unhesitatingly said, "Start the season around May 1 and end it around Labor Day. Look at the league races this year. Fans are starting to lose interest, and football season is coming."

"But," he quickly added, "the season doesn't seem long enough when you're trying to catch a Baltimore or win 20 games."

Life on the road can be tedious so Fritz is learning how to play the accordion. "There are just so many movies you can see and television isn't much in the afternoon so this helps pass the time. I'm not ready to give a concert but it's enjoyable."

His wife makes an occasional road trip, but she stayed in New Jersey while the Yankees visited Chicago and Kansas City.

Peterson, who says quite frankly that "New York is a nice place to visit but . . .", enjoys his off-season work at Northern Illinois University and also being close to Chicago so he can drive to the Stadium and watch the Black Hawks.

Once a fine amateur hockey player, Peterson still follows the game closely although the Yankees, for obvious reasons, told him to keep the skates and stick in the closet.

"No, I haven't switched as a fan to the New York Rangers," he says. "Not unless Chicago trades Bobby Hull."

Fritz Peterson has realized many of his goals, but he is still shooting for that World Series appearance and that 20-game victory season.

He likes the Yankees' chances. The Yankees like his chances.

Many people are talking about the new Yankees, the speed, the great arms, the enthusiasm. Perhaps the public wants, and baseball needs, this assurance of omnipresent excellence, this year-in, year-out devil figure or father figure, or whatever the Yankees in their years of dominance may have represented to those who watch ball games.

Yankee fans are excited. While Peterson was sitting in the dugout an hour before game time at White Sox Park, a fan came out on the field. He looked in the dugout, reached for Peterson's hand, and said:

"You're Peterson, aren't you? Great job, Fritz, great job. You're doing just fine. I've been a Yankee fan for many years, going back to the Joe McCarthy days, and this Yankee team looks good, young, fast. I like what you're doing, Fritz. Keep it up!"

He's not alone. The New York Yankees also like what Fritz Peterson is doing.

"MY BROTHER IS a big leaguer," is what nine-year-old Scotty Peterson can tell his friends in Crystal Lake. Scotty and dad Fred J. Peterson visited with the All-Star pitcher over the weekend as the New York Yankees played Chicago in White Sox Park.

"THIS IS ALL kind of hard to believe at times," Yankee pitcher Fritz Peterson tells Paddock Sports Editor Bob Frisk. "I always wanted to play baseball. My dad helped me but never pushed me into the game. He let me do what I wanted. I did the pushing."

A VALUED POSSESSION, the autograph of a major league player, Fritz Peterson, who remembers how much he wanted to be a baseball player when he was a boy in Mount Prospect, signs autographs for the young fans at White Sox Park.

Changing Jobs? Moving Expenses Are Deductible

The Federal Tax Reform Act of 1969 offers some good news to the person who changes his address this year because he has been transferred to a new location by his employer or has taken a new job elsewhere.

For the first time, the federal income taxpayer will be allowed to claim most, if not all, of his moving expenses, or move-related expenses, as deductions when figuring his income tax for 1970, according to the Illinois State Bar Association.

The move must result from a change in the location of the taxpayer's principal place of work to a point at least 50 miles farther away from his home than his old job location. And the taxpayer must move his home in full faith that he will be employed at the new location, or its vicinity, for at least 39 weeks out of the first 12 months following the move.

If those conditions exist, the new tax law allows the taxpayer to claim deductions for moving expenses in the following five categories:

Actual cost of moving household goods and personal effects.

Traveling expenses of the taxpayer and his family from their old residence to the new one, including meals, lodging and, if travel is by automobile, a 5-cent-per-mile transportation allowance plus tolls and parking fees.

Pre-move house hunting trips.

Temporary living expenses at the new job location (up to 30 days).

Expenses of selling, purchase or lease of a residence.

There is no limit to deductions which may be claimed for legitimate expenses under the first two categories: the actual household goods moving costs and costs of transporting the family to the new location. However, deductions for pre-move house hunting trips and temporary living expenses at the new location are limited to a combined total of $1,000.

The limit on deductions associated with the sale of one home and purchase or lease of another is $2,500 less the amount claimed for house hunting and temporary living expenses.

According to ISBA, no deductions were allowed under the old law for pre-move house hunting expenses, temporary living expenses at the new location or costs of selling one house and acquiring another one.

The more liberal income tax deductions for moving expenses became effective with federal tax returns for 1970. Under the new law, if a new employee or transferred employee is reimbursed by the employer for all or any of his moving expenses, he must report the amount of such reimbursement in his tax return and then take the allowable deductions.

Section 217 of the Tax Reform Act also provides, for the first time, for moving expense deductions by self-employed individuals as well as by employees. Self-employed persons may qualify for the same deductions provided they perform personal services — that is, put forth a personal effort — on a full-time basis, either as a sole proprietor or partner in a business.

To qualify for the deductions, the self-employed person must reasonably believe, at the time of the move, that his business will require him to be at the new location for at least 78 weeks during the first two years following the move of which 39 weeks must be within the first 12 months.

Safety Walk Is Planned

Increased safety in the large, south parking lot at Maine Township High School East was a primary topic for discussion at the Dist. 207 Board of Education meeting this week.

Acting on recommendations by Dr. Richard R. Short, superintendent of schools, and John Clouser, Maine East principal, the board approved construction of a north-south six foot walk-way at a point midway across the parking lot at a cost not to exceed $2,500.

The walk will be protected by posts and a steel guard rail. Clouser said the new walk will provide better protection for pedestrians as well as more efficient traffic control.

In other action the board considered Maine West new state safety requirements and reviewed a bid analysis and work schedule as reported by the school architects.

Time For Evening School

Electronic data processing technology, a two-and-one-half year course leading to a certificate in computer programming and systems analysis, and carrying college credit, is being offered by the Maine Adult Evening School.

The program, now in its sixth year, is approved by the Technical Education Service of the Illinois State Board of Vocational Education and Rehabilitation, and by the Veterans Administration.

Those interested in entering the program may obtain complete information at a meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday Sept. 8, in Room 147 of Maine Township High School East Dempster and Potter, Park Ridge. Classes will begin the following week, on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday evenings.

THE SCHOOL year for this program is divided into three trimesters of 16 weeks each.

Dist. 214 Teachers To Vote On Pay

The 800-plus school teachers in High School Dist. 214 will vote today to accept or reject a salary pact worked out by a team of teachers and board members for the 1970-71 year.

The package, which assures a beginning teacher with no experience and a B.A. a salary of $8,000, is one of the highest salary packages in the area.

THE SCALE, only part of the complete Voting on the package will take place this afternoon during the district's Institute Day. Classes in Dist. 214 are scheduled to begin on Monday.

John Harth, president of the association, and members of the Dist. 214 administration are pleased with the success of negotiations, which were concluded in June. Approval of the salary package is expected by those close to the association.

package, provides salaries from $8,000 to $17,225 for a teacher with a master's degree plus 30 hours of graduate work on step 16 of the scale. That's close to the level of the lowest paid district administrators.

A teacher with a master's degree starting in the district — and more and more Dist. 214 teachers have master's degrees — will earn $8,800 under the new scale.

The package also includes, as it has in the past, increments for extra-curricular and instructional related assignments. Teachers this year will be able to earn between $175 and $1200 for extra-curricular work, depending on the load and previous experience.

A variety of increments are available for extra-administrative and instructional related assignments. For example, an audio-visual building director can earn $795 extra per year and special salaries are available for persons working in special capacities during the summer.

Stop Smoking Clinic Planned In Hinsdale

The Hinsdale Five Day Plan to Stop Smoking will be offered by the Maine Adult Evening School next month.

The clinic will be held at Maine Township High School East, Dempster and Potter, Park Ridge, on five consecutive evenings, Sept. 20 through Sept. 24. Dr. Charles Dale of the Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital directs the clinic.

A special family swim hour will be set aside Saturday from 6 to 7 p.m. Adults must be accompanied by children during this hour.

The Five Day Plan uses medical information and exhibits as well as psychological data to stress the detrimental aspects of smoking, and provides constructive help to those who are eager to break an undesirable habit.

Tickets for the course of five sessions are $5 each, and include materials that are distributed to participants. Information may be obtained by calling the Maine Adult Evening School, 686-3600.
